SENATE GROUP WILL REWRITE REVENUE BILL

Mills Flares Up at Sen. Harrison.

Washington, D. C., April 14.—[Special.]—The billion dollar tax bill dumped into the lap of the senate by a leaderless and demoralized house will be rewritten by the senate. This was announced today by Chairman Reed Smoot of the senate finance committee following a spectacular hearing at which Secretary of the Treasury Mills was principal witness.

SEN. SMOOT. [H. & E. Photo.]

Just what changes will be made in the measure, which was rushed through the house by a "soak the rich" bipartisan majority, was not made known by the finance committee leader, although it was indicated that the tax on stock dividends and several other features objectionable to the treasury would be eliminated.

Bitter Battle Forecast.

Regardless of the changes made, the committee decision to rewrite the bill forecasts a protracted and bitter battle before house and senate differences can be reconciled and a revenue bill designed to balance the budget forwarded to the White House.

Today's session was featured by a short but snappy verbal brush between a confident and sometimes cocky secretary of the treasury and the slow speaking but exasperating Democratic senator from Mississippi (Pat Harrison). Following this exchange, which found the Mississippian charging Mr. Mills had not coöperated fully with the committee and the treasury head heatedly denying the charge, a working basis between the members of the committee and the administration was temporarily effected.

Mills Charges Politics.

At the height of the session the treasury secretary intimated that Senator Harrison and some members of the committee were playing politics instead of attempting to put through a revenue bill. His position was that the Democrats were attempting to so maneuver the revenue fight that the Republicans could be held responsible for whatever type of revenue bill was passed.

As for himself, Mr. Mills asserted he was ready to coöperate fully with the committee and to share whatever unpopularity might come from passage of an unpopular tax measure. He closed his opening remarks with a plea for the committee to lay aside all thoughts of partisanship and politics and work out a measure which would be to the national interest.

The upshot of today's exchange between Harrison and Mills was that the treasury head agreed to furnish the committee with an up to date treasury tax program along the lines of the program submitted to the house ways and means committee and rejected by that body.

Agrees to Rewrite Bill.

The secretary also agreed to take the house bill, eliminate the objectionable sections, such as the tax on dividends, the high estate tax rates, and sections which might cause double taxation and other provisions, then rewrite the bill so it would furnish sufficient revenue to balance the budget.

Secretary Mills emphasized, however, that while the treasury took full responsibility for the original treasury program it would not accept the paternity of the revised house bill. That will be Senator Harrison's bill, he said.

One note of optimism was struck by Secretary Mills. This occurred when he said that he was now convinced the President and the house economy committee would agree upon a 200 million dollar economy plan which could be passed if congress was ready to cut the high cost of government.

Prior to the appearance of Mr. Mills the committee was told by a spokesman for the cereal beverage industry that congress was proposing, through its tax on brewers' wort, to place what amounted to its blessing upon the manufacture of real beer. The witness, Levi Cook, urged a cut in the proposed tax of 2 cents a gallon on cereal beverages, asserting that an additional burden would dry up the near beer business. He asserted the wholesale manufacture of real beer

NAVAL OFFICER TELLS OF GANG ATTACK ON WIFE

Defense in Hawaiian Slaying Is Insanity.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1932: By The Chicago Tribune.]

HONOLULU, April 14. — Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, U. S. N., Kentucky born, trained in South Carolina and at the United States Naval academy, was the first defense witness in the second degree murder trial in which he and his mother-in-law, Mrs. Granville Fortescue, and two sailors are accused of the killing of Joseph Kahahawai.

The young naval officer took the witness stand before the jury and Judge Charles S. Davis at the ancient courthouse of the Hawaiian monarchy today. He told the tragic story of the rape of his 21 year old wife, Thalia, by four men on the night of Sept. 12 last near Waikiki beach and named the slain Kahahawai as the man his wife told him was her chief assaulter.

May Admit Firing Shot.

When court was adjourned for the day his story had not reached the scene of the killing of the young Hawaiian athlete in Mrs. Fortescue's home on Jan. 8, but from the groundwork laid and the colloquy between the attorneys and the court it seems evident that Lieut. Massie will admit tomorrow that he fired the fatal shot and that, in addition to the plea of unwritten law which is raised here, a further plea of insanity will be introduced by Clarence Darrow of Chicago, leader of the defense counsel.

Darrow told the court that such action would be taken in behalf of the "moving figure" of this killing—the one who pulled the trigger—and Lieut. Massie began to lead up to this to day.

Lieut. Massie in his own story also dwelt on the "strange effect" his wife's story had on his mind, how he could not sleep, how he could not forget and lived the terrible picture over and over, heard noises and saw faces at his window at night for weeks later.

Darrow Master Showman.

Darrow, his arms folded, his huge shoulders hunched, and his head bowed, stood as the master showman at this stage of the drama. Every juror in the box leaned forward to hear his every word. Lieut. Massie was fairly well controlled, but hesitated and choked when he came to the details of the midnight rape that has stirred a nation and set its navy in action against the old government of this island.

This is only the beginning of a series of sensations to be produced by the defense. Mrs. Fortescue, her eyes shining with love, shook the hand of her son-in-law as he stepped out of the box. She was in tears as the story of the rape of her daughter was unfolded.

All of this came after Prosecutor John C. Kelley had rounded out his case with an effective presentation of Kahahawai's elderly dark skinned mother as a witness. Tears on that side of the case will stand the prosecution in good stead. A mighty defense, indeed, is called for.

"If these were not white people and navy people, there would be a hanging here," said a local lawyer as he observed the close of the prosecution's case.

Call Massie to Stand.

It was nearly noon before the defense got under way.

"Lieut. Thomas Massie," said Darrow in a casual tone, and the pale, slightly brown young Kentuckian walked to his seat before the jury. He said he was 27 years old.

Q.—Position? A.—N a v a l officer. [This in a proud, firm note.]

He said he was born in Winchester, Ky., that he attended a military academy in Charleston, S. C., for three years, went to Annapolis for four years, graduating from the Naval academy in 1927. He testified that he then was assigned to the airplane carrier Lexington in the department of gunnery. In 1929, he continued, he was assigned to a submarine class at New London, Conn., subsequently being sent to Pearl Harbor on the S-43.

Lieut. Massie said he married Thalia Fortescue in 1927.

"She lived in Washington then," he added. "She was 16 years old."

Darrow then paused a moment before resuming.

Q.—Do you remember the incident of the dance on Sept. 12 last? A.—I can't forget it. I was there with my wife, Lieut. and Mrs. Branson, and Lieut. and Mrs. Brown.

Q.—Where? A.—Alawai inn.

Blow Up 13 Story Building; 6 Killed

THE ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUN OPENS UP

57 ARE HURT, MANY MISSING; SUSPECT BOMBS

Columbus, O., April 14.—[Special.]—Six men are known to be dead, 57 are injured, while an undetermined number—possibly ranging as high as twenty—are buried under tons of debris, after an explosion late today that wrecked the state's new $10,000,000 13 story office building in the downtown section of the city. Three of the injured are not expected to live.

The cause of the explosion has not been determined, but officials are working on the theory that bombs were responsible. Construction of the building, virtually completed, was halted a number of times as the result of labor disputes, it was recalled tonight.

See Evidence of Bombs.

Investigators first on the scene reported that a sweet, pungent odor filled the structure. This odor, they said, could be accounted for only by the presence of detonated nitroglycerin. Officials also believe that there were several simultaneous explosions.

The building commission started its investigation within an hour after the explosion. The committee was unanimously agreed that neither natural nor sewer gas could have caused the blast and an explosion in the boiler room was impossible as there was no heat in the room. T. S. Brindle, state superintendent of public works, late tonight advanced the theory that high explosives wrecked the building.

Damage to the structure was estimated at not less than $2,000,000 and some state officials feared there was a possibility that the entire structure would have to be rebuilt before it could be occupied. State offices on the upper floors of the building had been occupied for some time and the lower floors were to have been pressed into service June 1.

Fire Halts Rescuers.

The workmen in the basement were buried by falling débris. Fire broke out and raged for two hours before it was brought under control. Water mains broke and the basement was submerged. Smoke and water added to the difficulties of the rescue crews.

The origin of the blast was believed to have been in the basement boiler room and its irrepressible force carried to floors above through open elevator shafts.

Scores of firemen fought back excited crowds as they crept into the interior of the building and began their search for victims. Tons of marble, tiling, and plaster made progress slow, as did twisted beams of steel and iron.

The first floor was entirely destroyed. The southwest corner and the west and north sides of the building were torn and ripped like pasteboard. Shattered glass was hurled against the concrete retaining wall 50 feet to the west of the building and workmen in that section were flattened to the ground and a number of them cut by the flying glass.

Elevator Shafts Demolished.

Greatest damage was in evidence in the basement and first floor, for scarcely a section of the walls, floors, or ceilings was left intact. The elevator shafts were demolished through the eleventh floor. Strangely, John Whalen, the only elevator operator on duty, miraculously escaped death.

Giant slabs of marble, perilously dangling from slithered plaster and wire reinforcements, made the heroic work of firemen dangerous.

On the second floor the ceilings buckled, beams sagged, and columns in many instances appeared about to collapse.

Virtually every window in the 13 story structure was shattered by the blast. The job of installing the glass had been completed only last week and they were receiving their first washing at the time of the explosion.

Red Cross rescue workers estimated that it might be two or three days before the débris in the sub-basement could be thoroughly searched for remaining bodies.

A wheelbarrow, scaffolding, and fragments of marble could be seen in the Scioto river following the blast. The river is about 70 feet from the building.

Heart Attack Proves Fatal to W. J. Burns

Sarasota, Fla., April 14.—(AP)—William J. Burns, whose success as a detective was unprecedented in the annals of international crime, died at his winter home here tonight of a heart attack. He was 70 years old.

He is survived by his widow, the former Miss Anna Ressler whom he married in Columbus in 1884; two sons, Raymond J. Burns, Ossining, N. Y., president of the Burns agency, and William Sherman Burns, also of Ossining, secretary-treasurer of the agency, and two daughters, Mrs. Randal Borough of Ossining, and Mrs. Cyrus H. King of Detroit.

Funeral services will be held here. Burial probably will be in New York.

BORN IN BALTIMORE.

Born in Baltimore on Oct. 19, 1861, the son of an Irish merchant tailor, young Burns was taken by his parents at an early age to Columbus, O. He delighted in solving puzzles and had he opportunity to gratify his taste when his father became police commissioner of Columbus.

His first marked success came with the solution of the tally sheet forgeries in his state by which a group of men were trying to place a senator in the Ohio legislature. Shortly afterward he accepted an invitation to assist in the unraveling of the "arson mystery" in St. Louis.

In 1889 Burns was offered a position in the United States secret service, and upon his acceptance was appointed to the headquarters at St. Louis.

Nemesis of Counterfeiters.

After a series of minor successes he achieved national fame in 1896 with the solution of the "Costa Rican case," in which a group of Central American revolutionists were attempting to discredit their country and gain funds by counterfeiting Costa Rican money in the United States.

In 1903 he resigned from the secret service and took charge of the Oregon, Washington and California land fraud cases, where he established that several federal, state and city officials were implicated, including Senator John H. Mitchell of Oregon. He was then called to San Francisco to work on the Abe Ruef scandals. His investigations covered three years, when he finally obtained the conviction of Ruef, former Mayor Schmitz and sixteen members of the city's board of supervisors.

Catches McNamara Brothers.

The next accomplishment was the apprehension of the McNamara gang, who were proved to have been responsible for the blasting of the office of the Los Angeles Times on Oct. 1, 1910.

After the discovery of the shadowing of the jury in the Fall-Sinclair criminal conspiracy trial in 1927, Mr. Burns was convicted of complicity in contempt of court and sentenced to serve fifteen days in jail, but was freed by the Supreme court.

IN OIL SCANDALS.

Washington, D. C., April 14.—(AP)—As chief of the bureau of investigation of the department of justice during the Harding and part of the Coolidge administrations, William J. Burns figured prominently in the Teapot Dome oil scandals.

He was appointed to the post in 1921 by Attorney General Daugherty.

Soon after entering the department he was bitterly attacked for general raids upon "Reds" and radicals. In 1923 he led the investigation into the Wall street bomb explosion.

The Teapot Dome case was probably the most lurid and the last major episode of his life.

Since his retirement from the government service and from his private agency work, Burns had been writing magazine stories about his biggest cases.

WIDOW OFFERS BRITAIN $756,000 AS DEFENSE FUND

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, April 14.—Instead of sending a check for £40,000 [$151,200 at the current rate of exchange] for her income tax, Lady Houston, widow of the British ship owner, sent to the chancellor of the exchequer an offer of £200,000 [$756,000] to be used for Britain's defense.

"England is in deadly peril," she wrote, declaring the British lion is now like "a toothless old lap dog. Our soldiers and sailors have been hounded down to beggary and the dole and further reductions will be fatally dangerous."

The newspapers wonder how the chancellor can accept the much needed money without accepting the conclusions of the donor. Lady Houston last year gave $500,000 to enable Britain to prepare for the Schneider cup race when the Labor government refused to supply the money.

King of England Is Toasted By Mellon with Champagne

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 14.—The Pilgrims' society received a shock this evening when it entertained Andrew W. Mellon, new American ambassador to the court of St. James's. Entertaining ambassadors is one of the chief functions of the Pilgrims. Every new ambassador must eat and drink with them, and every homegoing ambassador is expected to, unless he leaves suddenly and unexpectedly.

ANDREW W. MELLON. [Acme Photo.]

But special significance was attached by the British Pilgrims to Mellon's coming. The whisper had gone forth that he was coming to forgive the war debts and shift to American shoulders a part, at least, of this burden. Tonight when he talked without the slightest reference to debts, reparations or other questions in which the British are so much interested, there was nothing but disappointment to record.

A Notable Gathering.

Seats had to be rationed out, so great was the demand for them, and every place in the big dining room was filled. More than 400 persons were there. The prince of Wales and Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon, who had flown especially from Geneva, were present. Lord Derby presided. Eleven ambassadors and ministers of other powers graced the head table. Uniforms and orders made the hall look like a royal levee.

There was one incident which caused comment. That was when Ambassador Mellon, before his speech, drank toasts in champagne to King George and the President of the United States. This was in accordance with his announcement on arrival here that he would follow the customs of this country as regards liquor.

Speech Is Tame.

Mellon's speech was innocuous. It stressed, as do all Pilgrims' speeches, the old story of common language, common culture, and common law, and emphasized the undying nature of Anglo-American friendship. The ambassador spoke of the economic crisis in a hopeful vein, saying that it was only one of many he had seen and that he looked for an early recovery and rise to new heights of prosperity.

"Economic depressions," Mellon said, "are the price we pay for war and they must be reckoned as a seemingly unavoidable stage in the sequence of events. The economic life of nations seems to go in cycles, spurting forward in industrial expansion, then inflation and extravagance, which brings its own retribution.

"Then the downward movement begins and the whole structure seems to topple about our heads. Yet we know by experience that such catastrophes never completely wipe out the progress which has been made, and that when the world begins to mend, the many gains of recent years will not be lost but will be consolidated.

Readjustment Now in Progress.

"Even while we meet here tonight readjustments are taking place the world over and these will continue until the balance has been restored."

Mellon said one of the world's greatest difficulties in the solution of this crisis is that those who are left over from the last century still look upon the past decade as merely a prolongation of all that went before.

"But really the years since the end of the war were the beginning of a new era, not the end of an old. Just as the flames of the French revolution brought an end to the ordered, satisfied world of the 18th century, so the guns of the world war marked another stage in human history.

Tells of Struggle in U. S.

"In America we are facing our difficulties frankly and, while conditions there are serious, they are neither so critical nor so unprecedented as to justify a lack of faith in our capacity to deal with them in our accustomed way.

"But there is much which remains to be done both in America and elsewhere. The world's trade must settle into new channels and, not withstanding tariffs and other barriers, it will grow in volume as we succeed in improving the standard of living and increasing purchasing power.

"While wars may impede our progress temporarily, discoveries and inventions rather than wars change the course of human history. One invention, such as the steam engine, can leave an impression more lasting than any war."

basement was M. M. Winkelman, who was employed with W. R. Huff on one of a number of boilers.

"I thought the entire building was going to come down on us," he said. "The atmosphere was almost instantly black with a mixture of dust, but Huff and I managed to reach an opening leading to the first floor."

Those less fortunate than Hinkelman and Huff who were working in the depths of the basement were in the center section, many feet below the ground. Their means of escape was scanty, the only hope being a single ladder reaching from the bottom of the basement to an opening in the center of the first floor.

Believes Over 25 Buried.

E. O. Lammers, maintenance state electrician, who was doing special work on the second floor, said that he knew there were more than 25 workmen in the center portion of the basement.

They were variously classified as tinners, electricians, plasterers, plumbers, and general laborers, a part of the estimated 160 men who were at work on the building.

When officials went reconnoitering for bodies they found that the heaps of débris, under which many bodies might be concealed, were covered with the water.

During this search, Lieut. V. T. O'Rourke, a fireman, was knocked temporarily unconscious by a falling slab of marble after he had helped remove almost a score of men, both dead and living.

Twenty members of the Ohio National Guard were called out for duty and will work throughout the night at the state office building.

The building, being erected by the Struck Construction company of Cincinnati and Louisville, was to have been completed in another month. State officials were planning to begin in May the task of transferring furniture and equipment from a score of widely separated downtown state offices into the 13 story structure of attractive Georgia marble.

A. F. of L. Chief Shocked.

Thomas J. Donnelly, secretary of the Columbus Federation of Labor, received the following message from William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor:

"I am inexpressibly shocked over the terrible tragedy which occurred at the new state office building today.

"I cannot find language which will adequately express my feelings of distress. It is difficult to understand the origin and cause of such a terrific explosion. The terrible loss of the building and the property destroyed is overshadowed by the loss of life and the injury which numerous workers sustained. I have recommended to the governor that a thorough and complete investigation be promptly undertaken in order to determine the cause of this terrible accident.

"I respectfully ask that you join in this request for an immediate investigation and that you tender your services and the services of organized labor in Ohio, which has suffered so greatly in this explosion, in making an investigation as I have herein outlined."

Hail Saves Policeman's Life.

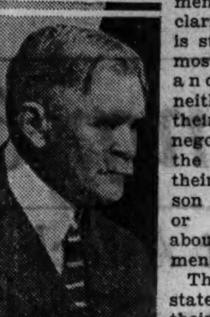
The fact that a workman called to Walter Karshner, special policeman at the office building, probably saved his life. As he answered the call, the policeman walked toward the north entrance. Immediately thereafter, the blast occurred and where he had been standing was converted into a yawning pit.

The basement of the Columbus auditorium across the street was turned into a temporary morgue an hour after rescue work had gotten under way. At the same time a burlesque show was being presented on the main floor.

LINDBERGHS BEG FOR SECRECY IN HUNT FOR BABY

New York Police Trail Ransom Bill.

New York, April 14.—[Special.]—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh issued a statement tonight declaring that "It is still of the utmost importance" that neither they nor their agents in negotiations for the recovery of their kidnaped son be followed or questioned about their movements.



DR. JOHN F. CONDON.

They issued the statement from their home near Hopewell, N. J., as New York police joined the search for the swindlers who defrauded them of $50,000 ransom, and as intimations of important developments in efforts to recover the child came once more from Norfolk, Va.

John Hughes Curtis and Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrage, retired, who are seeking the return of the baby, returned to Norfolk tonight and gave out this statement:

"We are continuing to work on the case. During our absence from Norfolk we have conferred four times with Col. Lindbergh at Hopewell. Regret we cannot give any further information at this time."

Mr. Curtis was apparently in good spirits. Admiral Burrage left the city Saturday afternoon, while Mr. Curtis departed by plane the following morning.

Lindberghs' Statement.

The statement of Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh reiterating their need for freedom from too close observation in their effort to get back their 21 months old son, was as follows:

"Mrs. Lindbergh and I want to express our greatest appreciation to those members of the press who have in many instances given us their coöperation, often to their own disadvantage.

"It is still of the utmost importance for us and our representatives to move about without being questioned and followed and we are again requesting the complete coöperation of all members of the press to that end."

While new activity shifted to Norfolk, there was continued interest in the efforts of Dr. John F. Condon to renew contact with the agents who posed as the kidnapers and swindled Col. Lindbergh out of $50,000.

A cemetery employé witnessed one of the early meetings between Dr. Condon and the agent of the criminals was revealed by Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney.

Police to Question Depositors.

Mr. Mulrooney made this disclosure, after a prolonged conference with Attorney Henry Breckinridge, Col. Lindbergh's closest adviser, who called at police headquarters to enlist the aid of New York City detectives in trying to discover who received the $50,000 paid as ransom.

In accordance with Col. Breckinridge's request, Commissioner Mulrooney said he had undertaken the difficult task of trying to determine which of some 1,600 persons who deposited cash in the East River Savings bank branch on April 4th had in his possession a $20 bill, which later was identified as part of the ransom money.

Detectives will interview each of the persons who deposited money in the bank on that day, two days after Dr. Condon tossed the package containing 4,750 small bills over a hedge in St. Raymond's cemetery to an agent of the kidnapers.

Fear Check on Negotiations.

The police displayed their first signs of interest in the ransom payment after Col. Breckinridge called at headquarters. Prior to that they had maintained a hands off policy for fear they might obstruct efforts to reopen private negotiations with the kidnapers.

Upon leaving police headquarters, Col. Breckinridge drove to Dr. Condon's home in the Bronx, but found that the unsuccessful intermediary had gone out. Dr. Condon had spent most of the day at his home.

In several catch as catch can interviews, Dr. Condon declined to discuss reports that he had reëstablished contact with the kidnapers.

Meanwhile the whereabouts of Col. Lindbergh was a mystery. He was reported to have left his home on some new mission. A news dispatch telling of the arrival of two state troopers from New Jersey at Vineyard Haven, Mass., said a seaplane had been sighted flying high above Martha's Vineyard.

Final Ball Is Held Amid Funereal Drapes.

Draped with black crêpe and decked with myrtle wreaths, the ballroom of the old Virginia hotel at Rush and Ohio streets was turned into a cheerful sepulcher last night for "The Mourners' Bawl." Half sincere, half satirically sentimental, Phi Gamma Nu sorority of Northwestern university, with its doleful informal dance completed the social career of one of the near north side's most famous hostelries. The hotel, first opened to the public in 1891, is to be wrecked in a few days to make way for an open air parking ground.

The room that witnessed so many brilliant functions of days gone by; that glowed with lights and uniforms, decorations, and fine feminine raiment, was in sable garb last night. Slim co-eds whose mothers and fathers once danced there circled the ballroom with their partners. The group had gathered there for years, and even this younger generation, behind its cheerful exterior, admitted that the parting was regretful.

A Ghostly Atmosphere.

Dim lights lent a ghostly illumination to the ballroom. Streamers of black crêpe arched across the ceiling. The walls were covered with silhouettes of bats and owls. And the graveyard atmosphere was enhanced by the elaborately decorated entrance, where a black lacquered wreath centered the crêpe draped portal. Depending from the wreath was a mock tombstone, inscribed:

VIRGINIA
Born 1891. Died April 14, 1932.
May she rest piecefully.
Died of a wrecked heart.

Miss Bertha Feten of 3326 Potomac avenue was chairman of the dance and, with her committee, was responsible for the decorative motif.

"We're really feeling just about like this," she smiled, with a gesture toward the interior. "Once or twice we had parties other places, and they simply didn't go at all. Nobody seemed to feel at home away from the Virginia."

Statue to Historical Society.

The white marble statue of Nydia, the blind girl of Pompeii, which for more than forty years stood in the lobby of the Virginia, was removed yesterday to the Chicago Historical society, to whom it was given by the owners. It is considered a sculptural masterpiece. It is the work of the late Randolph Rogers, American sculptor.

Miss Myrtle McLaughlin, manager of the hotel for the last several years, said that no decision had been made as yet about the disposition of the huge antique sideboard, dated 1546, still remaining in the dining room. The remarkable piece was brought to Chicago from England by Leander McCormick and was exhibited at the world's fair in 1893. There is a possibility that it may be stored and exhibited again at the 1933 exposition.

BOY DIES OF BURNS.

Lincoln, Ill., April 14.—(AP)—Alexander Shurrock, 13, of Chicago, an inmate of the Illinois State school and colony, died today of burns suffered Monday when he was scalded while bathing.

WOMEN BACK DRIVE AGAINST VOTE PLACARDS

Resolutions supporting Mayor Cermak in enforcing the ordinance prohibiting the placarding of electric light poles and streets with political campaign literature were adopted yesterday by the Woman's Chicago Beautiful association. The group, organized to help beautify the city for the 1933 Century of Progress, held its annual luncheon in the Hotel Sherman.

The association voted to send letters to political nominees asking them to abide by the ordinance during the fall political campaign, "or lose the vote of women." The resolutions of the women's group followed Mayor Cermak's order to the police commissioner and the superintendent of streets to enforce the ordinance.

Edward M. Craig, president of the American Construction council of New York City, urged a city planning that would eliminate the blighted areas of Chicago. The World's Fair, he reminded the women, will call attention to the cities of the middle west, and before that time Chicago will do well, he said, to clean up the slums. This can only be accomplished, he said, by the united effort of the civic organizations.

SEVEN CONFESS KIDNAPING OF PEORIA DOCTOR

Seize 8 Men, 2 Women in Roundup of Gang.

Peoria, Ill., April 14.—[Special.]—Eight men and two women, all alleged to have been involved in kidnaping and holding Dr. James W. Parker, physician and capitalist, for ransom, were arrested today. Confessions have been obtained from seven of the band according to the police, and all have been formally charged with kidnaping and are being held in bonds of of $50,000 each.

DR. J. W. PARKER. [A. P. Photo.]

Dr. Parker was seized on March 14 near his home and was held a prisoner in a lonely farmhouse until he was released on April 1 when investigators led by Alexander Jamie of Chicago's secret six began to close in on the abductors. A demand of $50,000 was made soon after the abduction. This was later scaled down to $10,000, but no part of the ransom was ever paid.

Two Women Held.

Those arrested today are Raymond Stoops, 37 year old farmer; his wife, Bessie, and their 17 year old son, Dean; Orlo Stops, brother of Raymond and a Peoria bond salesman; Edward Woodford, a hired man on the Stoops farm; Dwight Bartlett, Homer Massey, Claude Evans, Cecil Menninger, and Menninger's wife, Nellie.

Two Peorians who had gained a fleeting notoriety in politics in past years were arrested on April 1 and also are being held in jail in default of $50,000 bonds. They are Joseph H. Pursifull, an attorney, and James W. Betson, contractor and former policeman. They were taken into custody when they attempted to pose as arrangers of a ransom deal.

Demanded $50,000 Ransom.

Betson is an uncle of young Menninger. The latter and Orlo Stoops are said to have confessed that with Bartlett and Evans they seized the doctor and carried him away with them to Raymond Stoops' farm, which is at Banner, 50 miles south of Peoria in Fulton county.

At the farmhouse they were received by Raymond and his wife, who admitted that they were to have received $2,500 of the expected $50,000. While Dr. Parker was imprisoned Massey and Menninger remained with him as guards, according to Dean Stoops. Woodford appears to have been merely an unimportant cog in the kidnaping machine. Nellie Menninger's part was to keep watch on the police and let the other accomplices know what they were doing.

Menninger is reported to have confessed and described Betson as the master mind who plotted the entire scheme. Betson and Pursifull have maintained since their arrest that they only tried to make a ransom deal to aid the Parker family.

Dr. Parker was taken last night to the Stoops farm and readily identified the room in which he was kept prisoner.

Suspect Already in Jail.

One of the peculiar features of the roundup was the finding of one of the alleged kidnapers, Evans, already in jail. When those who confessed named him as a confederate, the police discovered that Evans, an ex-convict, had been arrested a few days ago for safe breaking.

Massey was taken at Jacksonville and Bartlett was found at New Union, Clark county, near the Indiana line, where he had been in hiding since the return of the doctor. The others were arrested in Peoria or on the Stoops farm.

PUNSTER BANDIT ROBS CASHIER IN CANDY SHOP

A bandit with a flair for puns held up Miss Frances Alloway, 23 years old, of Flossmoor, clerk in the Dutch Mills Candy company store at 6729 Stony Island avenue, last night. "You're a sweet girl in a sweet place," he told Miss Alloway as he displayed a revolver. He continued with similar remarks, but meantime making her hand over what he believed was all the money in the till. "You're too sweet to deceive me," he commented as she handed over $14 and said that was all there was The bandit departed, with $70 less than he might have had. Miss Alloway had managed to conceal that amount while he was talking.

WOMAN KILLED BY AUTO; HER GRANDSON HURT

A grandmother was killed and her 10 year old grandson was cricitally injured when they were struck by an automobile at Fullerton and Central avenues last night. Those struck were Mrs. Anna Friss, 58 years old, and James Friss, both of 3423 North Oak Park avenue.

Mrs. Friss and the boy were walking across Central avenue when the car hit them. Police took them to the Keystone hospital, where the grandmother was pronounced dead. Physicians said James had suffered a skull fracture and internal injuries and might die. Cragin police held William R. Heize, 24 years old, 1624 North Marengo avenue, the driver.

This death and one other increased the Cook county motor toll to 307 since Jan. 1. The other victim:

Edward Tracy, 3 years old, 6538 Minerva avenue. Killed in an alley in the rear of his home by a large motor truck which sped away after the accident.

Herman Dorgan, 12 years old, of Libertyville, died last night at the Condell Memorial hospital of injuries suffered earlier in the day when he was struck in Libertyville by an automobile driven by Justice of the Peoce John Hutchins. Police said that Dorgan was the son of a crippled war veteran and helped his mother earn a living by washing clothes. He was hurrying to school after doing an errand for his mother when he was injured.

A 1932 HOODLUM DECIDES TO TRY AN OLD RACKET

Frankie [West Side] Pope, alleged hoodlum, unsuccessfully tried a new racket last night and as a result police invoked an almost forgotten ordinance.

Pope's racket displayed three elements: Beer drinking, hula dancing, and a cock fight. It was this last sport which uncovered the ancient ordinance.

The affair was uncovered when Capt. John Stege, of the Des Plaines street station, led a squad to a third floor hall at 777 West Adams street. There they found Pope and fifty-six guests. Four dancers were about to go into action. They discovered half a dozen belligerent bantams in a small arena, and fifteen jugs of beer. Capt. Stege took the prisoners to the station. He ordered Pope booked on a charge of promoting a cock fight.

EVANSTON OAK PARK

PIONEER STORE OF REVELL & CO. TO QUIT BUSINESS

Furniture House Founded 56 Years Ago.

An announcement that Alexander H. Revell & Co., one of Chicago's leading furniture houses, established 56 years ago, will liquidate its assets preparatory to going out of business, was made yesterday by Alexander H. Revell Jr.

ALEXANDER REVELL JR.

Three generations of Chicagoans have been served by the house, which had its beginning in a building which still stands at old Fifth avenue [Wells street] and Randolph street. It was opposite the old Briggs house, one of Chicago's early hotels.

Weeps at News of Closing.

Mr. Revell related an incident typical of the store's experiences in the last few days, during which it has been closed. It will reopen tomorrow. A woman called at the store, he said. and asked for a certain type of carpet. She was told that it was not in stock, and that it could not be crdered as the concern was going out of business. She sat down and wept.

"Why, my mother bought her furniture at Revell's when she went to housekeeping. I did the same, and so did my daughter," she said.

Some of the oldest employés in point of service yesterday discussed the history of the company and recent happenings.

"A man came in here the other day who hadn't been in the store for 30 years," said Theodore A. Larson, head of the credit department, who as a boy became a wagon driver and clerk for the store in May, 1888. "He hadn't needed to. He furnished his house from Revell's 30 years ago and had bought no furniture since."

R. D. Murrow, 72 years old, a buyer, who joined the sales force in January, 1892, exhibited a book of sales he had kept since 1893. Many granddaughters of his first customers have bought from him, as well as a few great-granddaughters, he said.

Story of the Founder.

The senior Mr. Revell, whose father, David James Revell, came to Chicago from near Belfast, Ireland, and was a pioneer grocer before his grocery burned in the Chicago fire, showed his merchandising genius at an early age. His father died shortly after the fire and the 13 year old boy shifted for himself. Seeing the red eyes from blowing cinders after the fire, he bought, first a gross, then another gross, of goggles, and peddled them on the streets.

All that was left of the grocery business after the fire was a horse and wagon. Young Revell frequented auctions, hauled his purchases away in his wagon, and if he could not find a market for them in Chicago, drove into Indiana and Wisconsin and sold them there.

In his teens he was offered a job with the Chicago branch of A. T. Stewart & Co. of New York, but refused it because he insisted he was worth $8 a week, and he had been offered $7. At the age of 20 the late Mr. Revell opened a small furniture store in partnership with J. E. Geohegan, but within the year bought his partner's interest.

The present location of Alexander Revell & Co. at Lake street and Wabash avenue was purchased in 1928 and has been occupied by the furniture house since 1929.

BALTIMORE FIRM TO DREDGE LAST WATERWAY UNIT

Awarding of the contract to the Arundel corporation of Baltimore for the dredging of the Dresden island pool of the Illinois waterway was announced yesterday by the United States engineers' office. The company has dredging equipment at Joliet and work on the project, the last of the important dredging jobs on the waterway, is expected to begin next week.

The Arundel company's bid was $536,000 for about three miles of dredging from Brandon road, just below Joliet, to Dresden island. Work on the Starved Rock pool dredging is also expected to begin next week, according to the engineer's office. A drill boat is already in the pool and other equipment is on its way.

A plant for the dredging of the Marseilles pool is now at Utica on its way to the work. The tops of some of the boats must be removed before they can be taken under the bridges below the pool, but work is expected to begin on this job within a week or so.

ROOSEVELT AIDS ARE WORRIED BY SMITH'S ATTACK

Democrats Fear Attitude May Prove Costly.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 14.—[Special.]—Has Al Smith's fiery speech at the Jefferson day dinner last night, in which he uttered a thinly veiled denunciation of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York as a demagogue, upset the Democratic apple cart?

This was the question the politicians were asking today as a survey was made of the results of the gatherings of the Jeffersonians yesterday for the purpose of organizing victory in the presidential election.

Numerous Democratic leaders privately confided their apprehensiveness that the attitude of Mr. Smith bodes no good for the party in the event that Gov. Roosevelt is nominated. They share the feeling that Smith is going to do his utmost to prevent the nomination of the governor and that if he fails he and his followers are likely to develop a lukewarmness toward the ticket which might cost the Democrats the electoral vote of New York and several other eastern states.

Party History Recalled.

There would be nothing new in this experience for the Democrats. In 1896 the eastern conservatives bolted Bryan, in 1900 they easily restrained their enthusiasm for Bryan, in 1904 the Bryanites returned the compliment to Alton B. Parker, in 1924 they deserted John W. Davis most comprehensively, and in 1928 the drys and the bigots bolted Smith even more disastrously.

More optimistic Jeffersonians are of the opinion that if he gets a platform plank on prohibition repeal that suits him Smith will be found accepting the nomination of Roosevelt with good grace and taking off his coat for the ticket.

Roosevelt partisans were angered by Smith's assault on their leader, but they restrained their indignation in discussing the incident for publication. James A. Farley, chairman of the New York Democratic committee, who is the Roosevelt campaign manager, declined to comment.

Predicts His Nomination.

"Gov. Roosevelt will be nominated on the first ballot," he countered. "He will have every delegate west of the Mississippi river except those from Texas and Oklahoma, who are supporting favorite son candidates."

"How can Mr. Smith support Gov. Roosevelt as the nominee, in view of his utterance last night?" Mr. Farley was asked.

"Mr. Smith is a Democrat," replied Mr. Farley. "After the convention is over Democrats will get together."

"Smith's speech was unworthy of him and only goes to prove that whom the gods would destroy they first make mad," said Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, a Roosevelt rooter who ardently supported Smith in 1928. "The Smith speech sounds as if it were written in the house of Morgan."

Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, on the other hand, praised Smith for his frankness.

Smith's immediate purpose, according to the generally accepted view, is to concentrate attention on the appeal to radicalism Roosevelt has been making and to impress the party with the futility of nominating a candidate to which the Smith group and other conservatives are bitterly opposed. With Roosevelt sweeping the primaries so far held, Smith, it is conceived, determined to make a last desperate effort to stem the tide of sentiment that is sweeping his rival toward the nomination.

Republicans Are Elated.

The Republicans, as was to be expected, were elated by the sensational incident of the Jefferson dinner. They only hope they are not deceived by the appearances of irreparable dissension in the Democratic party.

There was a significant lack of enthusiasm even among Democrats for Mr. Smith's proposal of a 20 year moratorium on war debts and the cancellation of a portion of the debts equal to 25 per cent of the value of American goods purchased by the debtors.

The extent of debt cancellation under the Smith plan is shown in the following table setting forth the total indebtedness of each country to the United States, the average annual exports of American goods to those countries in the last three years, and 25 per cent of the aggregate exports for 20 years which would be credited against the debts. The figures, with thousands omitted, are:

Roosevelt Not Worried.

New York, April 14.—[Special.]—Regardless of the popular interpretation, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt refuses to believe that his old pal, "Al" Smith, had him in mind when he sounded this sensational warning against "demagogues" at the Jefferson day dinner in Washington last night.

The governor made that plain today when he dismissed the incident by quoting an unnamed friend as saying:

"Wasn't that a terrible attack that 'Al' made on 'Alfalfa Bill' Murray?"

KEYNOTER

SENATOR L. J. DICKINSON.

Gathering for the important task of choosing a keynoter for the Republican national convention in June, 14 members of the arrangements division of the national Republican committee will meet at the Congress hotel tomorrow morning under the leadership of the party chairman, Senator Simeon Fess of Ohio.

Committeeman Ralph Williams of Oregon, who has been making arrangements for the convention, said yesterday that the keynoter choice and the letting of a few contracts will be the major business of the committee.

From Washington last night came word that Senator L. J. Dickinson of Iowa is a likely choice for the keynote job. No doubt is felt that the man chosen will be a stanch Hoover supporter.

Dickinson has been active in advocating farm legislation and has been more or less of a spokesman for the policies of the farm belt.

Democratic.

Delegates actually selected, 468. Roosevelt, instructed, pledged, and claimed, 255; Lewis, pledged, 50; Reed, pledged, 23; uninstructed and in doubt, 104.

STRAUS DEFENDS ROOSEVELT; HITS SPEECH CRITICS

Refutes Veiled Class to Class Charges.

New York, April 14.—(AP)—A spirited defense of the recent address of Gov. Roosevelt, "which has been criticized even by one or two Democrats who should be his friends," was made today by Jessie Isidor Straus, merchant prince and intimate associate of the governor.

Mr. Straus said it appeared to him that in regard to tariff both the Washington address last night of Mr. Smith and the utterances of the governor were "motivated" by the same thought.

"I have been asked to express, as a business man, an opinion on Gov. Roosevelt's speech last week which has been criticized by the opposing press and even by one or two Democrats who should be his friends, as demagogic, particularly in the expression of 'the forgotten man.'

Denies Class Charges.

"Gov. Roosevelt has been accused of a desire to array the poor against the rich, of creating a class antagonism. I am certain from my acquaintance with the governor that he never has, even for political purposes, harbored any thought of personal gain by splitting the country between the haves and the have nots.

"Gov. Smith in his Washington speech last night referred to the present tariff as a drain upon the farmer, as a boon to the entrenched manufacturer. It was, as I see it, that thought which motivated Gov. Roosevelt. He said nothing against the Reconstruction Finance corporation, but made it clear that it should be supported by additional reconstruction beginning at the other end.

"The farmer has nothing to gain from high tariff, for he competes in world markets for the sale of his products, but in all his purchases he is penalized by a high tariff.

"Those who will study Gov. Roosevelt's speech will observe that he is firmly convinced this country cannot be prosperous when 40 per cent of its inhabitants, who are unable to get the cost of production from their labor, are yet obliged to pay a toll on everything they buy to the interests that support the Republican war chest."

Roosevelt's Son Defends Father.

Boston, Mass., April 14.—(AP)—James Roosevelt, son of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, today defended the presidential campaign policies of his father against the implied criticisms by Alfred E. Smith as contained in the Jefferson day address by Smith last night.

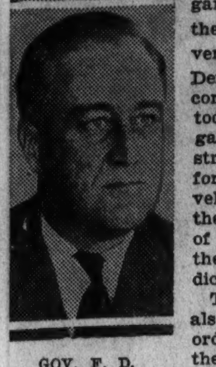
Young Roosevelt's statement, which he made clear was "not made as the representative of any one else," did not mention his father or Smith by name, but indicated his cognizance of Smith's remarks. Smith made sharp criticism of any attempt by a candidate to array "class against class."

Mayor James M. Curley rose to the defense of Mr. Roosevelt, saying the New York governor had not done anything to justify the assertion he has attempted to array "class against class."

ROOSEVELT WINS MICHIGAN VOTES; WET PLANK URGED

38 Delegates Free After First Ballot.

Saginaw, Mich., April 14.—[Special.]—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York won Michigan's 38 votes in the national convention at the Democratic state convention here today. The delegates were instructed to vote for Gov. Roosevelt as long as in the best judgment of the delegation the party welfare dictates.



GOV. F. D. ROOSEVELT.

The convention also went on record as favoring the repeal of the 18th amendment and the Michigan prohibition law and the substitution of state liquor control. The repeal resolution resulted from a hard fight by the more radical wets to secure a stronger declaration than a call for a referendum.

Other resolutions adopted by the convention include a demand for tariff reductions, old age pensions, election reforms in the interest of minority representation, and the revision of tax laws in the interest of lower taxes.

Delegate Dies on Floor.

A proposal to advocate only a referendum rather than a repeal of the eighteenth amendment threw the convention into an uproar, during which Michael Hoban, 72 year old delegate from St. Ignace was stricken with heart attack and fell dead in the hall.

The hottest fight of the afternoon was started with a resolution asking passage of the soldiers' bonus bill, which brought charges that the convention was drawing a red herring across the trail as the American Legion did in talking about beer instead of the bonus.

Maryland for Ritchie.

Baltimore, Md., April 14.—(AP)—The Maryland Democratic state central committee today unanimously endorsed Gov. Albert C. Ritchie for the presidential nomination and heard him praised as the strongest candidate the party could name. The committee set May 12 as the date for the state convention, which will name and instruct delegates to the national convention.

Gov. Ritchie predicted that "no matter who the candidate may be, the Democrcatic party is going to present a solid front to the nation in November."

New York G. O. P. for Hoover.

Albany, N. Y., April 14.—[Special.]—The Republican state committee today indorsed the Hoover administration, pledged fealty to the President, and reelected Chairman W. Kingsland Macy, instigator of the Seabury investigation of Tammany's administration of New York City.

Endorse Hoover in North Carolina.

Charlotte, N. C., April 14.—(AP)—Clifford Frazier, a lawyer and Quaker of Greensboro, was nominated for governor of North Carolina on a "bone dry" platform by the state Republican convention today. Delegates to the national convention were not formally instructed, but a convention resolution praised the "matchless statesmanship" of President Hoover.

ROOSEVELT NOT GOING AS DELEGATE; FEELS "SENSE OF DELICACY"

Albany, N. Y., April 14.—[Special.]—With the Democratic state committee meeting here tomorrow to elect sixteen delegates and as many alternates at large to the Democratic national convention, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt announced tonight that he would not go to the convention as a delegate himself.

A sense of "political delicacy," Gov. Roosevelt said, had prompted his decision.

In elaborating on his brief announcement, Gov. Roosevelt said that, in view of the fact that he was openly a contender for the Democratic nomination for President, he felt that it would not be quite proper for him to sit as a delegate at large in the convention, possibly as head of the delegation. He added that his decision not to serve as a delegate would not preclude his going to Chicago as a visitor while the convention is in progress.

In fact, reservation has been made for him and members of his family at the hotel where convention activities will center.

The name of ex-Gov. Alfred E. Smith remained on the tentative slate of delegates at large when the final processes of elimination were made at the executive mansion this evening.

DRIVE FOR WET ILLINOIS G. O. P. PLANK OPENED

20 Committeemen Pledge Aid for Cause.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

A drive to cut the Republican party of Illinois loose from the Anti-Saloon league and put it on a wet plank basis was launched yesterday by Chicago wet battlers who supported dry Omer N. Custer for governor. Twenty of the newly elected committeemen of west and northwest side wards held a caucus and agreed to act as a unit on a wet party program. Other groups talk of similar action.

The twenty pledged themselves to pick liberal delegates to the state convention at Springfield with directions to battle for a wet plank in the state platform and for the election of eleven delegates at large under instructions to fight for a wet plank in the Republican national convention. Seven national delegates elected from west side districts participated in the caucus.

Barrett Is Leading Spirit.

The leading spirit in the movement was George F. Barrett of the 21st ward, who lined up eighteen west side committeemen weeks ago for State's Attorney John A. Swanson. It opens the battle for control of the state convention and the state party machinery.

Last night Mr. Barrett, Eden T. Brekke [36th] and Edward F. Moore [30th] issued a signed statement setting forth the results of the west side caucus as follows:

"All committeemen present pledged themselves to the selection of delegates to the state and national conventiions with directions and specific instructions for the adoption of planks that will tend to relieve the burdens of the taxpayers, the unemployed, the farmer and for the restoration of public confidence.

Liquor Stand Is Told.

"There was unanimous agreement that the welfare of the party and of the state and nation will best be served by restoring to the American citizen the rights taken from him by the 18th amendment and the Volstead act, and that planks should be adopted in the platforms of the party for both state and nation for the repeal of the Volstead act, and for the repeal, or such modification of the 18th amendment as will place the control, regulation and taxation of the liquor traffic in the hands of the people of the several states.

"Each and all of the committeemen emphasized the fact that they were independent of any alliances with and free from any obligations or allegiance to any political faction, group or alleged leadership."

Other committeemen attending the west side caucus were Paul W. Rothenberg [24th], James Vignola [26th], W. V. Pacelli [20th], H. A. Steinmeyer [22d], William Lass [23d], William W. Garrison [27th], J. A. Porcaro [28th], J. R. Orrico [29th], Daniel A. Roberts [31st], John T. Dempsey [33d], George Hitzman [34th], Frank Peska [35th], F. A. Horrigan [37th], Frank M. Kalteux [38th], Charles J. MacGowan [39th], John J. McKeone [40th], and James C. Moreland [41st].

Similar conferences are expected to be held by committeemen from other areas. The 33 committeemen who last summer signed the round robin pledging themselves to follow Gov. Emmerson as state leader almost to a man have been talking dripping wet in the campaign and for a wet plank for the state party, although supporting Custer, a dry.

Some group leaders in Chicago are preparing to resist efforts by the Small camp to take control of the state convention and to select the delegates at large to the national convention. It developed yesterday that the Small men are putting forward Allen F. Moore of Monticello as their candidate for national committeeman. The national committeeman is elected by the Illinois delegates to the national convention. Moore is a former congressman who managed Frank L. Smith's campaign for the senatorship some years back.

The Emmerson-Custer alignment is advancing George F. Harding for national committeeman. Other candidates may be brought out by some of the wet Custerites.

Analyze New Committee.

The factional wires are so crossed that it looks like a telephone exchange hit by a cyclone. An analysis of the fifty district delegates elected Tuesday was made by one group yesterday, which indicates that the Harding-Emmerson-Chicago-Custer group will be able to control the state convention, also the delegation, the governor having a large leverage in the fact that he will be in control of the state pay rolls for the next nine months.

On the basis of the incomplete returns downstate, the local groups figure that about 20 of the 30 national delegates elected downstate are affiliated with Emmerson-Custer.

In Chicago the division of the elected district delegates seems to be: Snow, 3; Brundage, 1; Deneen, 5; Harding-Emmerson-Harmony, 10; and undetermined, 1.

Although the movement to defeat the Small candidate for national committeeman thus appears to have plenty of margin after making allowances for a normal volume of flop-page to the winner of the governorship nomination, control of the delegates-at-large is an important item. The Chicago group leaders propose to keep it in prominence in the move to make the state convention a wet one. The state convention, set by law for April 22, also may be postponed until May.

Groups of newly elected Republican ward committeemen proposed yesterday to put off the county convention for several weeks. Monday is the day set by the primary law, but it is expected that the election board will not have the proclamation of results ready before May 1.

Will Adopt Three Planks.

The Democrats at their Monday convention expect to organize and to adopt three planks for a county platform. They are:

Consolidation of overlapping governments.

A plank touching on Small's dry record, bringing a declaration that he was a member of the Kankakee county Anti-Saloon league in good standing.

The present officials of the county organization are to be reëlected.

Mayor Cermak, before leaving for French Lick last night, said:

"We will produce abundant proof to show that Small was driest of the drys and that he is still a dry. He has been repeatedly indorsed by the Anti-Saloon league."

One idea discussed by the Democrats was that of increasing the number of delegates at large from Illinois to the national convention to 34, each with one-quarter vote.

Meanwhile, completer returns showed the defeat of William R. Johnson, a dry anti-Saloon leaguer in the congressional race in the 13th [Freeport] district. He was vanquished by Leo E. Allen, city clerk of Galena by 650 votes.

Johnson, whose home is in Freeport, voted for the Jones 5 and 10 and lined up with the drys against the Beck-Linthicum resolution to resubmit the liquor question to the states. He was indorsed by the Anti-Saloon league. Allen, who also was on the list of the Anti-Saloon league indorsements, was supported by the Crusaders, militant liberals, who battled Johnson as a dry of drys. Allen was the only opponent of Johnson in the primaries.

Out of four Democrats, all liberals, Orestes H. Wright of Freeport is leading the field by about 1,500. He is wet and will oppose Allen in November.

The defeat of Johnson makes it five congressmen in a row bowled over in Tuesday's primaries. The other four are Carl R. Chindblom of Evanston, W. E. [Ed] Hull of Peoria, both Republicans who voted for the Jones 5 and 10 and more recently lined up with the wets for resubmission and for beer; James T. Igoe, and Stanley Kunz, Chicago wet Democrats.

Completer returns show that Richard Yates, present congressman and a dry with Anti-Saloon league support, and Julius Klein, a dripping wet, are far in the lead in the Republican race for congressman at large. Stephen A. Day of Evanston is in third place. The vote in 5,446 precincts of 7,229 in Illinois gave Yates 283,607, Klein 156,320, Day 110,019.

For the Democratic nomination for congressman at large the vote in 4,976 out of 7,229 precincts in Illinois gave Martin A. Brennan 245,719, Walter Nesbit 243,614, Frank C. Smuth, 46,837, and James O. Monroe 41,576.

FINAL RETURNS SHOW LAKE CO. PROSECUTOR LOST BY 385 VOTES

Complete, but unofficial, returns from Lake county's seventy-five precincts showed last night that State's Attorney A. V. Smith lost the renomination on the Republican ticket to Charles E. Mason by 385 votes. Smith received 9,705 votes, and Mason received 10,090. A third candidate, A. C. McHenry, tallied 1,625. Smith sought renomination on his record of twelve years as prosecutor. Mason pledged to do away with dry raids. Dry raids marked Smith's régime recently.

NEVER HEARD OF YOU, ALFALFA BILL TELLS GOV. DERN

Denver, Colo., April 14.—(AP)—Two governors who are awaiting the call of Democrats for the opportunity to serve their country in Washington have gotten acquainted.

The Rocky Mountain News reports this is what Gov. William H. Murray of Oklahamo said to Gov. George H Dern of Utah when they met on a train en route to Denver:

"Never heard of you. Are you a Democrat?"

"Alfalfa Bill," a candidate for the nomination for President, sojourned in Denver four hours yesterday and left the distinct impression behind him that he has not abandoned his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination.

All "Het Up."

Kansas City, Mo., April 14.—(AP)—Gov. William H. Murray of Oklahoma stalked impatiently about the train sheds at the Union station here today fuming and visibly perturbed by the unrevealed development that interrupted his speaking campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination.

SENATORS FROWN ON REVENUE BILL PASSED IN HOUSE

Will Rewrite Schedule, Smoot Asserts.

was wrecking the cereal beverage industry.

Secretary Mills appeared before the committee today to thresh out a misunderstanding which had developed over the willingness of the treasury to work with the committee. Senator Harrison had charged that Secretary Mills was not complying with requests from the committee for information. He had asserted that Mr. Mills had declined to comply with a committee request for a definite tax program.

"There can be no doubt as to the position of the treasury," Mr. Mills said as he stood up before the committee, self-confident and puffing at a medium sized cigar. "I stand ready to coöperate with this committee as heartily as I did with the ways and means committee of the house with a view of drafting the best revenue measure possible to meet the present emergency. I believe that the way to proceed is to lay aside all partisanship, to sit around this table with one single thought in mind, the national interest, and with an unequivocal willingness to share the responsibility; and may I add, whatever degree of unpopularity may come from the imposition of additional taxes in times such as these."

Mr. Mills said frankly that he was not satisfied with the revenue bill as it passed the house. That measure, he said, represented a "heterogeneous conglomeration" of nonharmonious tax provisions. He said the measure lacked balance. The treasury, Mr. Mills concluded, would be satisfied either with the original treasury program or the bill recommended by the ways and means committee which carried a sales tax.

He urged the following changes in the house bill:

Leave the income tax provisions as they are, but eliminate the normal tax on dividends and the item repealing the old net loss provision by which the house would prevent the carryover of net losses from one year to another.

Reduce the estate tax rates and apply the 1921 rates.

Keep the gift tax, but adjust its rates to be proportionate to the lowered estate tax rates.

Keep the stamp taxes, but reduce the stock transfer tax, which includes the La Guardia tax of one-quarter of 1 per cent on the value of stocks changing hands.

Would Write New Bill.

"Upon around these items I would write a new bill," the secretary asserted, urging a unified and cohesive tax program.

Responding to a question put by Senator Hiram Bingham [Rep., Conn.] Mr. Mills said that the manufacturers' sales tax at a rate of 1½ per cent would raise $350,000,000 if all food and clothing were exempted. The sales tax rate was 2¼ per cent in the ways and means committee program rejected by the house.

Calling attention to a suggestion by Senator James Couzens [Rep., Mich.] that it might be possible to raise sufficient revenue to balance the budget through imposing the war time income taxes, Secretary Mills said this could not be done unless all income above the rate margin of subsistence was hit and hit hard.

"There are only two ways to raise revenue," Mr. Mills said. "You must tax the outgo, that is sales taxes or excise taxes, or a tax on incomes. If you are not going to impose excise taxes you must hit incomes at the base and hit them hard. This means all income above the margin of subsistence."

Reed Questions Method.

At this point Senator Reed questioned the practicability of collecting higher rates due to the possibility that income tax payers in the large brackets would put their money in tax free securities.

"There is nothing fairer than the income tax if you can apply it honestly," the secretary answered. "It hits only income earned. You must be honest, though. You can't slap on a high federal income tax and add it to high state income taxes and expect the public to refrain from investing in free securities.

"The people must also be convinced that the high income tax rates [war time] were being enacted only for the period of the emergency. They must understand these high taxes are to be automatically suspended at the end of one or two years.

Secretary Mills pointed out that today a buyer can purchase tax exempt New York City bonds on a 5½ per cent basis.

Backs Treasury Program.

Responding to questioning, Secretary Mills said the treasury program submitted to the house several weeks ago, but rejected, would balance the budget if enacted into law. He said the only changes he would make in his original recommendations would be to possibly add a tax on wort and change the rates on gas and electricity.

The secretary said one favorable factor had just developed in the situation with regard to balancing the budget.

"In the last few days," he added. "I have had the privilege of sitting in on the meetings between the President and the house economy committee on a national economy program," he said. "It is now perfectly clear to me that the expenditures of the government can be reduced by a minimum of $200,000,000 if there is a real willingness to make reductions.

"It is definitely in sight. Therefore the figures you have before you in the house bill come within $25,000,000 of balancing the budget. If you ask me to simply suggest a way of adding enough to balance the budget I would suggest tentatively taxing wort more and that will give you $35,000,000 additional and balance the budget."

On only one or two occasions did Secretary Mills allow himself to be shaken out of his accustomed calm. One came when Senator Pat Harrison [Dem., Miss.] persisted in attempting to demonstrate that the treasury head had deliberately refused to send to the committee the information on the treasury's tax program which had been asked for.

"You have not complied with the request of this committee," charged Senator Harrison. "We asked you to send up a treasury program and you have not done so."

"What do you want?" replied Secretary Mills. "Just what is it you want? I am here to give this committee whatever information I can. I am not, however, going to write up a tax bill at your dictation and then call it the Mills bill. If I rewrite the house bill, it will be the Harrison, not the Mills bill."

"Would you object," persisted Senator Harrison, "to furnishing this committee with the same program which you placed before the house ways and means committee, bringing it up to date?"

Would Cut Totals.

"I will send you the treasury's present proposal," Mr. Mills answered. "I stand by all my original recommendations, including the tobacco tax, the one cent gasoline tax, and the domestic gas and electricity tax. I would lower the latter tax rate, however, to bring in a maximum of $64,000,000 rather than $94,000,000."

Baby Left on Rectory Steps

Found by Priest

As the Rev. Joseph Morrison ascended to the rectory of the Holy Name cathedral at 730 North Wabash avenue yesterday he almost stumbled over a bundle lying on the steps. Stooping over, he found a 10 day old baby girl, wrapped in a pink blanket. A note pinned on the white dress read: "This baby has not been baptized." Father Morrison took the baby to the St. Vincent's orphanage.

LIKENS U. S. TAX SPENDER TO GOLD DIGGING WIDOWS

Traffic Club Speaker Rips Bureaucrats.

A scathing arraignment of governmental tax spenders and bureaucrats —pictured as being as avid for the public's money as gold digging grass widows are for their alimonies—was delivered yesterday by G. G. Tunell, tax commissioner of the Santa Fe railroad, before members of the Traffic club.

At the same time the Traffic club, with its membership of 1,800 embracing transportation, shipping, and industrial enterprises, joined in the nation-wide anti-high tax campaign being waged by the Chicago Association of Commerce through unanimous approval of a resolution urging a 25 per cent reduction in public expenditures.

No Sign of Surrender.

"Although taxpayers are aroused, officialdom shows no signs of surrender," Mr. Tunnell declared. "The governing classes refuse to give up their emoluments and privileges. It now appears that city, state, and federal governments have been on a spending spree the like of which has never been seen. Office holders look on their salaries just as gold digging grass widows look on their alimonies."

Mr. Tunell outlined the tremendous growth in federal, state, and local indebtedness in the last few years, which has reached a grand total for the three groups of 34 billion, 706 million dollars.

"The events following the catastrophe of 1929 have focused attention on public expenditures," he continued. "The burden of taxation was one of the causes of business collapse and it now stands in the way of recovery.

Divided Into 2 Groups.

"Public expenditures divide the nation into two groups. In one are legislators, office holders, and social workers who hold that spending on public enterprises will restore prosperity. The other consists of the taxpayers who hold that public taxing and borrowing are retarding the return of good times."

Mr. Tunell asserted that the issue was whether property should be permitted to remain in private hands or pass to the public.

"I believe that taxes and borrowing can be reduced by halting government activities," he went on. "I hold with Jefferson that the best government is the one which governs the least."

Fixed by Law.

"We find an inhospitable atmosphere in Washington when the subject of reductions in governmental expenditures is brought up," he said. "We are told that governmental activities are fixed by law. But these laws can be changed."

The speaker sketched the many ways in which the government could reduce its expenses. He pointed out the futility of spending money on the enforcement of prohibition. He said that education has produced a system in which schools have become "expensive clubs," adding to the tax burden.

Public's Income Impaired.

"The tax paying power of the nation has not only been impaired, but it has been destroyed in many cases," he said, and estimated that one dollar out of every four of the public's income this year will be spent by public agencies.

The Traffic club's resolution said in part:

"There can be no substantial basis for permanent prosperity until the burden of taxation now resting on the American people is lightened.

"Public expenditures must be reduced. A reduction of 25 per cent would not be excessive. It would represent no greater deflation than that to which private industry has been subjected."

HOUSE WILL GET HOOVER ECONOMY BILL ON MONDAY

M'Duffie Threat Brings Quick Results.

Washington, D. C., April 14.—[Special.]—An omnibus bill embodying all features of the President's plan to cut the cost of government is being drafted by the budget bureau and will be presented to the house economy committee on Monday, Budget Director J. Clawson Roop stated today following a conference with President Hoover.

COL. J. C. ROOP. [H. & E. Photo.]

The promise that the administration's proposals will be in definite and detailed form at that time was made shortly after Chairman McDuffie [Dem., Ala.], chairman of the economy committee, had set Tuesday next as the "deadline" for receipt of the President's program.

Threat Gets Results.

Mr. McDuffie said today that if a definite program embodying the administration's recommendations was not delivered before that time he would bring the rule into the house by which he might attach the committee's economy program, including a federal pay cut plan, to the legislative appropriation bill.

The legislative bill was sidetracked in the house today in order that the President's omnibus bill might be considered by the committee, the house taking up the District of Columbia appropriation bill.

The action of the economy committee in postponing a vote on the McDuffie flat rate salary proposal did not mean that the committee chairman had changed his views in the slightest. It simply meant that Republican members of the committee had been successful in postponing action until the President's proposals could be heard.

Chairman McDuffie, and Speaker John Garner [Dem., Tex.] backs him up, believes the committee 11 per cent flat pay cut proposal should be pushed to a vote in the house. Both favor the flat cut in preference to the President's plan to furlough employes and establish the five day week.

Wants Further Reductions.

Senator McKellar [Dem., Tenn.], twice victor in his fight to secure a horizontal 10 per cent cut in all appropriations bills, today battled hard for a similar reduction in the treasury and postoffice departments appropriations bill.

The bill as sent over from the house calls for an expenditure of $1,059,898,463. Many senators, while agreeing that it would be nice to effect a 105 million dollar economy, hesitate to apply the knife because they fear the operation would slice off something from the 108 million dollar allowance for public works.

Senator Oddie [Rep., Nev.] read a report from Secretary of the Treasury Mills indicating that 250 public buildings would be in jeopardy. But Senator McKellar denounced that prophecy as a scarehead.

Senator Copeland [Dem., N. Y.] thought it would be a good idea to pay for all public works by the issuance of bonds, since public buildings are, he argued, permanent capital investment.

Senator Johnson [Rep., Cal.] chided the senate for falling "hysterically" for the America Shibboleth economy.

He referred specifically to an appropriation asked for by Senator Walsh [Dem., Mont.] for $27,000 for a reclamation project for "some poor people out in Montana."

Meyer Makes Report on Creating Credit.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 14.—[Special.]—Further measures to check deflation are understood to have been considered at a conference of President Hoover, Gen. Charles G. Dawes, president of the Reconstruction Finance corporation; Eugene Meyer Jr., governor of the federal reserve board, and Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills at the White House late today.

When the conference broke up none of the participants would disclose the purpose of the meeting, although there was an intimation that the President might have an important statement to make, possibly tomorrow.

Mr. Meyer took with him to the meeting reports on the operation of the latest anti-deflation device—the increased purchase of government securities by the federal reserve banks, in pursuance of action taken by the federal reserve board early this week.

Would Expand Bank Credit.

The effects of the campaign as it is seen by the federal reserve authorities will be rapidly to enlarge the volume of unused bank funds while simultaneously reducing the return which such funds can earn in the market for short term government securities and bankers' bills. Sooner or later the pressure of these surplus funds will become so great as to force banks to seek an outlet for them in fields of credit they are now studiously avoiding.

An expansion of bank credit should halt the decline in security and other prices and give rise ultimately to a recovery in the general price level. At least this has been the experience of former efforts of a similar character officials pointed out and it should work again.

Price Laws Called Useless.

Mr. Meyer told the house bank and currency committee today that proposed legislation to stabilize the commodity price level through the federal reserve system was useless since the system is already doing everything possible to attain that end.

Passage of the proposed bill, he pointed out, might have the effect of tying the board's hands, in that it would place upon the board a definite duty which might not be possible.

Mr. Meyer refused to tell the committee any details of the agreement to speed up the volume of and rate of the reserve system's open market transactions, declaring the rate is not fixed and that it would be "varied to meet changing conditions."

The federal reserve head advocated a revision of the nation's banking structure as the best preventative against a recurrence of the depression. All banks should be chartered by the federal government, he stated.

Bannister in Reno to Sue Ann Harding for Divorce

Hollywood, Cal., April 14.—[Special.]—Harry Bannister, stage and screen actor, arrived in Hollywood from Reno for a legal conference with his wife, Ann Harding, film star, from whom he separated several weeks ago, and then departed for the Nevada city to establish a residence to sue for a divorce. Bannister came by plane. Neither Miss Harding or the attorney would discuss the nature of the business.

BABY GIRL WEIGHS UNDER 2 POUNDS BUT IS PERFECT

New York, April 14.—[Special.]—A baby girl weighing less than two pounds was born to Mrs. Leah Rosenstein of Brooklyn early today. It is perfectly formed and the doctors say it has a good chance to live.

Immediately it was born the infant was wrapped in cotton batting and placed in an incubator. It is fed milk and water, one drop at a time, through an eye dropper. It takes nourishment normally and apparently with relish.

The doctors say that the child, if it lives, will remain in the incubator for about eight months at the end of which period it should weigh four pounds. It is a nine months' baby.

The parents have been married six years and the child is their first.

3 YOUTHS GET 25 YEAR TERMS FOR $172 HOLDUP

For the robbery of $89 in stamps and $83 in government money orders, three youths were sentenced to 25 years each in Leavenworth penitentiary by Federal Judge John P. Barnes yesterday on their pleas of guilty. The long sentences are mandatory for conviction of robbery of the mails with a gun.

The youths sentenced are Andrew D. Snodden, 21 years old, 3521 South Lincoln street; Bartley A. McLeod, 24, and his brother, Martin, both of 1834 West 34th street. The trio held up a postal substation in a drug store at 4104 West 47th street on March 5 and forced Joseph E. Mankowski, a clerk, to hand over the stamps and money orders at the point of a gun. Police captured them a few minutes afterward.

PRIVATE SHOWING TO OPEN CIRCUS SEASON TONIGHT

Chicago's circus season officially opens tonight at a special dress rehearsal of the Sells-Floto circus at the Coliseum. The event tonight is private. The public opening will be tomorrow afternoon.

With the arrival of the last of the European contingent yesterday, every performer has reported, Fred Ledgett, equestrian director, said. Ben Beno, a native American, who has spent the last nine years with European circuses, helped route several of the new acts, so that they were able to reach here on time.

The monster sea elephant, which has remained in his private car in the railroad yards since his arrival Tuesday morning, will greet his public, consisting of newspaper photographers, this afternoon. It was necessary to construct a special tank in the Coliseum to accommodate him.

Among the performers will be the Original Nelson family, the American Belfords, the Picchiani troupe, the Schwarz sisters, Poodles Hanneford and family, the Clarkonians, Flying Bertons, Siegrist-Silbons, the Gretonas, direct from Germany; the Aerial Youngs, Wright Duo, the Whites, Agnes Doss, Viola Hauser, Manuel Macias, Mlle. SIMPSON READY TO RENEW FIGHT ON BUREAUCRACY

Glad He Won, but He Isn't Gloating.

Pleased, but not gloating, over his victory in winning the Republican nomination for congress in the 10th district over two veteran politicians, James Simpson Jr., son of the merchant, regarded his success last night as showing that "the voters appreciate sincerity." He won with a plurality of 228 votes over Ralph E. Church, the Evanston legislator, who worked ardently for the dry cause in the assembly, but turned wet when he filed for congress. The present congressman, Carl R. Chindblom, ran third.

Not yet in his thirties, young Mr. Simpson wanted sleep more than anything else when he talked over his victory. Since July he has been paying strict attention to his candidacy and in the last two or three weeks he was lucky if he had four hours' sleep a night, he said. There'll be a brief vacation now, but it won't be long before he'll start work on his election campaign, for he believes his Democratic opponent, County Commissioner Charles Weber, will be a hard man to beat.

Tenth a Polyglot District.

A polyglot district, the 10th is about equally divided between Chicago and the north shore suburbs, including the Simpson farm at Wadsworth, not far from Waukegan. It contains 588,000 persons.

Mr. Simpson has no universal painkiller for the country's ills, but he does intend to fight hard for his pledges—abolition of prohibition and a reduction in the costs of government. He has heard that one out of every eight family heads in the country has some sort of governmental job, either federal, state or local. "It shouldn't be more than one in twenty-five," he said.

He Meets Bureaucracy.

He added that he had had a personal contact with "federal bureaucracy" not long ago—a small thing, but it impressed him with the possibilities for other such duplication in Washington. The farmers in his district—and Mr. Simpson is a farmer, too—wrote to the capital asking blanks on which they could make their requests for seed loans this year.

They asked for one gross of blanks. When the reply came a gross rolled in by mail on four consecutive days, four gross in all.

"That's a sample of something," said Mr. Simpson. "It looks as though they have several people doing that work in Washington when one or two would probably suffice."

COURT RULES OUT RUMP SESSION, BUT PRAISES 'PATRIOTS'

Little Rock, Ark., Apr. 14.—(AP)—A rebellious majority of the Arkansas house of representatives was ruled out of rump session today by the state Supreme court, but out of the record it was called a "band of patriots" by the chief justice.

As the court's unanimous opinion was delivered to the house, Richard E. Mason, who had been elected speaker of the rump session, became "Mr. Chairman" of a massmeeting of private citizens attacking Gov. Harvey Parnell and other state officials.

The court ruling held the legislature automatically was adjourned last Tuesday through failure to extend the special session within the governor's call. The house had voted to extend the session to consider a retrenchment program.

Gov. Parnell out maneuvered the house today when he signed a road improvement district bond refunding bill, chief object of the special session.

REMONETIZATION OF SILVER SEEN AS IMPROBABLE

Strawn Submits Report to House Committee.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 14.—[Special.]—Doubts that there is an immediate possibility of a remonetization of silver were expressed to the house committee on coinage, weights and measures today in a statement submitted by Silas Strawn of Chicago, chairman of the American section of the International Chamber of Commerce.

SILAS STRAWN.
[Matzene Photo.]

The only hope of enhancing the value of silver as a commodity, according to this statement, lies in a working agreement by the silver producers with the Indian government on the marketing of its 400 million ounces of silver coin and bullion, the existence of which is a demoralizing market factor. Negotiations to achieve this end are in progress.

The statement was prepared by Marshall W. Tuthill, American member of the committee of experts appointed by the chamber to study the silver situation.

Text of Statement.

"From a number of sources," said the statement, "proposals have been made for the establishment of bimetallic systems of currency, remonetization and sundry plans involving the utilization of silver as part of currency reserves, to be developed by international agreement. So long as the maldistribution of gold prevails, we may expect many such schemes, largely based upon the assumption that there is a world shortage of gold. Our committee agreed that such plans, whatever their merit, stand little chance of early application in practice.

"Bimetallism would have to be practically universal, and at the present time the currencies of several countries are not even based on a single metal. In any event, considerable time must elapse before the governments concerned could possibly come to a unanimous decision regarding the utility and reasonability of these theories, and during that time it is to be hoped that the silver problem will have solved itself in a general adjustment of commodity prices.

"The Indian treasury now has available for sale about 400 million ounces of silver. This is the proverbial sword that has been hanging over the silver market and to a large degree responsible for the decline in silver, which has, incidentally, exceeded to some extent the drop in the average price index of commodities generaly.

"It was our thought to remove this 'fear of the unknown' by initiating a close contact between the Indian government and the half dozen American producers who control the bulk of the current world production."

MASSIE REVEALS STORY OF GANG ATTACK ON WIFE

Insanity Defense Plea in Slaying of Hawaiian.

asked Mrs. Massie that afternoon if she would like to go and if she would mind asking two of our friends to come with us. She said she did not care much about it. I asked if she wouldn't go, and she said she would. So I called them up and they said they would attend. At dinner Thalia said if she had to go she would, but she didn't feel like it. I said it was too late to call it off and insisted that she go.

Kelley asked if the defense intended to go into the Ala Moana case. He also asked Darrow if the defense intended to offer a plea of insanity. The prosecution, he said, had a right to know at this time.

Will Plead Insanity.

"We do expect to raise the question of sanity in the last part of this tragedy as to the one who fired the pistol," Darrow responded.

"We object to further testimony by Massie unless the insanity plea is in his behalf," Kelley retorted.

"There is not the slightest difference," Darrow said. "Each is connected and responsible in an enterprise of this sort."

"We have the right, in the event of a plea of insanity, and in view of information that well known psychiatrists are here to testify, to know which defendant we have a right to examine," Kelley insisted.

"If the counsel says he wants the doctors to come and listen to the testimony we are willing to accommodate him," returned Darrow.

Judge Davis permitted the witness to proceed.

Admits Drinks Were Served.

Massie, his hands folded in his lap, went on, speaking clearly.

"We got there at 9:30 o'clock and danced. About 11:30 o'clock Mrs. Raynor——"

Q.—Was there any drinking then? A.—Yes, some.

Q.—What about Mrs. Raynor? A.—She said it was about time to go home. I said, "All right, get Thalia." Meantime we were asked to go to a friend's house. I agreed and looked for Thalia, but could not find her. I looked all over the place. Branson and Mrs. Raynor helped to search for her. We looked on the grounds, but she was not there. We thought she had gone to Mrs. Rigby's. We called on the phone. There was no answer. It was about the end of the dance then. All of us started for cars. I said we were sure to find her at Rigby's.

Didn't Care for Liquor.

Q.—Your wife was fond of parties? A.—I can't say she was.

Q.—Did she care for drinking? A.—No.

Q.—Go on. A.—We started our cars. Branson drove with me to Rigby's home and no one was there. We called a maid and she said she had not been there. We went to the telephone and I called home. Mrs. Massie said something horrible had happened and to come at once. When we got to the front steps we heard her crying. She collapsed in my arms. Blood was coming from her nose and mouth. Her lips were crushed, her eyes were swollen, and there was a bruise on the right side of her face. I thought a truck had run over her. I asked her what had happened. She sobbed, "It's too terrible, awful, horrible." Finally she said that men had dragged her into a car, beaten her, and ravished her.

Unable to Comfort Wife.

I said, "O, God, no!" I sat there dazed. She said, "I hope I die." I tried to comfort her, but couldn't. I went to the phone and called the police and told them when she was assaulted and gave the address. We got towels. She was completely broken. I asked her if she had taken precautions against conception. She said she had. The police came. I told them what I could. She said her jaw was hurting. I asked her to be taken to the hospital. Another car came and I asked them to go to the hospital with her and they did. They examined her there. I waited outside and then went to the police station. The police began questioning her. I saw Branson at the police station. I asked him what he was doing there and he said the police were holding him. I told the police to let him go, because he had been with me all evening. After two hours Mrs. Massie was back home. She could not sleep.

Q.—What did you do next day? A.—I called the commanding officer. I informed Mrs. Fortescue what had happened. Dr. Porter said Mrs. Massie's condition was critical and that she should go to a hospital. The next day the four assailants were brought in for identification.

Tells Identifying Men.

"I object to the term 'four assailants,'" Kelly said, but was overruled.

"Four people were brought in," Massie continued. "She questioned all of them, but seemed to concentrate on Kahahawai. After fifteen minutes the detective asked me to find out what she said. She said, 'They are the ones.' I said, 'Please, darling, don't let there be any doubt. You know if there is any doubt I could never draw an easy breath.'"

Q.—Who were the four men? A.—Henry Chang, Ben Ahakuelo, Horace Ida, and Joseph Kahahawai.

Q.—What about the next day? A.—I learned then that her jaw was fractured.

Tells of Her Suffering.

"They gave her ether," he continued. "I learned several of these men had criminal records. One was in a rape case before. I asked her what happened. She told me she left the dance to walk to Fort Derussy, and that when she got to the turn of the John Ena road a car came by. Two men grabbed her, she said, and she screamed, but they hit her and stifled her. She offered them money and they grabbed her purse, but found nothing and beat her some more. She said that if they let her go she would give them money. They laughed at her. Then they drove out Moana way and turned into the bushes. She told me what happened."

Massie stopped. There were tears in his eyes. Then he went on.

"She said that two of them beat her, Chang and Kahahawai. She said when Kahahawai assaulted her she begged for mercy and that he hit her in the jaw."

Q.—When did she tell you? A.—She told me a thousand times.

Preyed on Massie's Mind.

Green beads were found on the spot which corresponded to those his wife lost, Massie said. Mrs. Fortescue wept as her daughter's suffering was described and how she dreamed of the attack and called out in horror the name of Kahahawai.

Massie told how it all preyed on his mind; how his work at the submarine base had suffered and how he could not sleep nights.

"I went over the whole thing again and again," he said. "I heard footsteps under my window and rushed out of the house with a gun, but could not see any one."

"Did you ever get advice from a doctor about your wife's condition?" Darrow asked.

Operated Upon Later.

"I got that at the hospital," Massie said, "after my wife's mother informed us an operation would be necessary to prevent pregnancy. The operation was performed in October."

With that court then adjourned until tomorrow morning.

The first arrivals at the courthouse today came during the night, bringing camp stools and coffee and remained there until the doors were opened. There was no discomfort as far as the weather is concerned, as the nights here are of velvety softness. Every seat was taken at 9 a. m.

The audience was unusual, for it was composed almost entirely of whites and Hawaiians. The orientals were not interested enough to come. For the first time in the history of Hawaii women of social prominence are attending a criminal trial. One bench was reserved for army and navy officers. They were in civilian clothes.

Speculation as to the nature of the defense was the chief topic. It was felt that the prosecution had built a remarkably strong case of circumstantial evidence for Darrow to meet.

General in Court.

Maj. Gen. Briant H. Wells, commander of the Hawaiian army division, was in court today, dressed in gray flannels. He sat next to smiling "Jimmy" Gilliland, county attorney, whose prosecution of the Ala Moana rape case received so much criticism in service and other circles.

Mrs. Ann Kluegel, militant head of the Good Government association, was in the front row, after a night's vigil of waiting in line.

Mrs. Fortescue appeared calm and pale, wearing a little black turban with a white flower over the wisp of gray hair which fell over her ear. Lieut. Massie, with an ordeal in the witness stand ahead of him, sat solemnly beside her, staring at a row of law books. There was no light social chat in that row.

Mrs. Darrow entered the courtroom late and found a seat next to the sailors, E. J. Lord and Albert O. Jones, stolid young fellows still able to smile.

Mother Awaits to Testify.

Mrs. Esther Anita, mother of the slain Kahahawai, waited in the same row with Mrs. Fortescue while the attorneys argued in the judge's chamber whether she would be permitted to testify. Darrow protested that her testimony would be purely emotional, but Judge Davis overruled his objection.

The session opened with the recalling of Detective Louis McCallum. He told of tests made at the National Guard range this morning to determine how close a .32 caliber Colt automatic could be fired at a dummy without leaving powder marks. He said that firing at any distance over two feet failed to produce marks. The witness said the condition of rooms at the Fortescue house on the morning of Jan. 8 did not indicate a struggle of any kind took place.

These points were intended to strengthen the prosecution's theory that Joe was shot while sitting on a bed.

Maupana Peters, stenographer, testified to the police examination of Mrs. Fortescue a few hours after the killing. Sheriff Pat Gleason, Gilliland and others were present, she said. Her notes were read to the jury.

Mrs. Fortescue's Replies.

Mrs. Fortescue, according to those notes, admitted she was in front of the judiciary building that morning in a blue runabout, but admitted nothing else. She said she was going to the postoffice to mail some letters.

"I don't know," was her most frequent answer to questions by police.

"'Did you see Kahahawai come out and did you point him out to three men?' Miss Peters read from the notes.

"'No!'"

"'Did any one besides yourself sleep at your house last night [the night before the killing?'"

"'I don't know.'"

"'Did you have coffee with any one at your house?'"

"'I don't know.'"

"'Did you go to Lieut. Massie's house in the morning?'"

"'Yes.'"

"'Did any enlisted man drive with you?'"

"'No.'"

"'Was a guard at your house last night?"

"'No.'"

"'Did you mail three letters?'"

"'No.'"

"'What caused you to change your mind?'"

"'I don't know.'"

"'Did you see Kahahawai come out?'"

"'No.'"

Later, according to the notes, she said that Jones took her to a baseball game once. Pressed further the notes read she had said, "'I don't think I'll talk any more.'"

This testimony, it is believed, was aimed at the defense that the guns purchased were for the sailor guard.

What Jones Said.

A statement made by Jones on Jan. 8 was read. He is a second class machinist's mate. He said he had "ankled" around town to several bootleg joints the night before. His testimony at the police inquiry follows:

"Why did you go to the Massie home?"

"Personally me and Massie are friends—we play bridge together. Mrs. Massie and a woman, a perfect stranger, were there."

"Were you sober?"

"I'm never sober."

"Describe the woman you played with."

"Mrs. Massie and another woman."

"Where did you stay last night?"

"At Mrs. Fortescue's."

"Guest and a Guard."

"Why?"

"She is a personal friend."

"Were you there as a guard?"

"No, as a guest and a guard."

Jones was red with embarrassment during the reading of the notes.

He said he went to Lieut. Massie's house that morning for a drink and that Mrs. Fortescue and Mrs. Massie went downtown.

"Did you see other enlisted men at either house?"

"I was drunk for a week?"

"I don't know what I did or didn't do," the notes related he had said. "I went to the Fortescue house about midnight. Me and Mrs. Fortescue had breakfast."

"Was a shot fired there this morning?"

"I'm not certain—there might have been before I woke."

Denied Sleeping at Home.

He later denied that he slept at the Fortescue house or had breakfast there and again admitted that he had coffee there. His statement was without coherence.

The statement that Jones made the next day to police in the presence of Edward Ulii, Kahahawai's cousin and a witness to the kidnaping, was also read.

The fake summons which lured Kahahawai to his death was shown him at the time.

"Did you ever give that to any one?" he was asked on that occasion.

"I don't recollect."

"Were you in front of the judicial building?"

"I don't remember."

"How did you get this document?"

"I don't know."

"You mean you were so drunk you don't know?"

Admits He Was Drunk.

"I would say that in preference to anything else."

"Where did you get this clip of bullets?"

"I keep my civilian clothes in my locker."

"Where is your pistol?"

"At the submarine base."

"Were you at the Fortescue house when Kahahawai was there?"

"I don't know this Kahahawai at all. I don't know whether I was there or not."

"How many times has the Massie house had a bodyguard?"

"All one week, at least two weeks ago."

"Did you pull the trigger causing Kahahawai to be shot?"

"No—where was he shot?"

"How did you get the Fortescue house keys in your possession?"

Got Key Under Mat.

"She leaves them under the mat at the front door."

"You took them from there?"

"Yes."

He admitted that he drove the blue roadster to the Massie home. He said he came in from the submarine base the day before with Lord and had a pint of liquor in his locker.

"We killed it there," he said.

"Have you been at the Massie house often?"

"Yes, but only when Lieut. Massie was there."

"Were you there yesterday as a guard?"

"No, but I was drunk."

"How many drinks did you have there?"

"About three, sir. What's all this hooey about, anyhow?"

There were many odd touches to this recital of what he had told the police. Asked the name of the dog at the Massie home, Jones said he did not know. He said he never played with the dog, as it shed hairs.

Mrs. Kahahawai Called.

Kahahawai's mother, a woman with a dark brown, placid face, and heavy, as most middle aged Hawaiian women are, was called next. She was dressed in a sort of white wrapper and wore a white straw hat. She said she divorced the slain youth's father after having borne four children. She added that she now lives in Kukui street in the tenement district. An interpreter was by her side. She was confused as to which of her children are dead.

"Is Joe alive?" she was asked.

"No," she answered with a melancholy note.

She said she last saw her son alive on Friday morning, Jan. 8. She was asked how he was dressed.

"He had on a blue shirt, blue pants, and a dark brown cap when he left home," she replied.

She said his shirt was not torn when he left home. His underclothes were exhibited. She shed more tears. The mother said they had been washed and all the buttons were on the morning of the killing.

"Where did you see him next?"

"I didn't see him no more."

101 YEARS OLD

[Dubow Photo.]

Capt. Maurice Bernhardt, a cousin of the late Sarah Bernhardt, actress, will celebrate his 101st birthday anniversery today in the home for the aged of the Little Sisters of the Poor at Harrison and Throop streets.

Still erect and spry, without a physical ailment, the bearded Capt. Bernhardt's appearence reminds his friends of that of George Bernard Shaw, English dramatist.

Capt. Bernhardt was born in Paris and appeared on the stage on several occasions with his cousin. He served in the Union navy during the civil war and was a friend of Abraham Lincoln. He also fought in the Franco-Prussian war, and was taken prisoner at Cologne.

During the world war Capt. Bernhardt, who speaks eight languages, offered his services to the United States government, but was not accepted because of his age. He made speeches in various parts of the country, urging the purchase of Liberty bonds.

Rail Employment Chief Observes 75th Birthday

George R. Morrison, superintendent of the employment bureau of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad, celebrated his 75th birthday in his office at the Union station yesterday. A large basket of flowers was given to him by his associates. Mr. Morrison entered railroad service as a telegraph operator when he was 13 years old. His parents went to California in the gold rush of 1849 and he was born in that state.

26 CITIES SLASH COSTS TO BOOST VALUE OF BONDS

Survey Shows Effort to Weather Storm.

New York, April 14.—[Special.]—A survey of special interest to holders of municipal bonds on the subject "How American Cities Are Retrenching in Time of Depression" was announced today by the National Municipal league. The survey, which has been made by Harry H. Freeman of the Buffalo municipal research, summarizes the principal economies reported by twenty-six of the country's largest cities.

The summary is as follows:

New York: There have been no major changes in policy so far as operation and maintenance items of the budget are concerned. About $100,000,000 worth of new building projects have been deferred as not urgently needed.

Chicago Facing Crisis.

Chicago: In the words of its mayor, Chicago "faces its most serious crisis since the fire destroyed it in 1871." Salaries and wages of employés have undergone reductions ranging up to 27 per cent. The personnel has been greatly reduced and it is now proposed to eliminate 2,479 more.

Philadelphia: The chaotic condition of the city's finances, due to several contributing factors, will undoubtedly make budgetry curtailments and emergency measures necessary throughout the entire year.

Detroit: At the beginning of the fiscal year on July 1, 1931, the condition of the city's finances demanded a policy of drastic retrenchment which will be continued throughout the coming fiscal year. Also in the face of an impending deficit for the present fiscal year, which, it is estimated, will amount to nearly $20,000,000, further severe reductions and curtailments have been proposed.

Los Angeles: The decline in the revenues of the general municipal government for the first six months of the fiscal year 1931-'32 indicates that there will be a deficit of $650,000 by June 30. Prospective reductions in property assessments will cause a decrease of $4,000,000 in the tax receipts for the fiscal year 1932-'33.

Cleveland Cuts Expenses.

Cleveland: A recent constitutional amendment which in effect reduces the city tax levy, a decrease in assessed valuations and a reduction in revenues have made necessary a policy of retrenchment in municipal expenditures.

St. Louis: Up to the present time no definite changes in policy have been adopted. However, those which have been discussed are identical with like practices in many other cities.

Baltimore: After deciding beforehand that the tax rate for 1932 would be $24.50, the same as last year, although there will be a decrease in revenues and an increase in debt service, material and expense appropriations were reduced as far as possible to keep within the income that the predetermined rate will produce. It was also necessary to reduce salary appropriations by $927,113.

Boston: The city and school budgets have not been completed, but economies effected last year and those proposed for 1932 offer concrete evidence of a strict policy of retrenchment in municipal and school expenditures. At the close of the fiscal year on Dec. 31 it was reported that the unexpanded departmental balances were the largest in the history of the city.

Pittsburgh Cuts Tax Rate.

Pittsburgh: The 1932 municipal budget has been reduced approximately 13 per cent, or $3,683,000, under last year's total of $28,747,626, by sharp curtailments in operation and maintenance appropriations which have effected a reduction of $2.50 in the former general city tax rate of $25.50.

Milwaukee: The general property tax levy, including schools, has been reduced from $26,432,356 to $25,280,988 for 1932. A budget reduction of 5 per cent was thus effected.

Buffalo: The mayor's budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1 provides for a reduction of $2,288,242 in departmental operating requests. Although subject to further revision by the council, the estimates have been reduced below the current appropriations, including salary appropriations.

Minneapolis: Up to the present time no major changes have been made in the policy of the city in financing its requirements for 1932.

Cincinnati: The total budget for 1932, excluding school appropriations, is $15,676,379, which is $670,491 less than last year.

Newark: Although the 1932 budget has not been adopted, it is apparent that in order to place itself in a more favorable light in the bond market it will be necessary for the city to make drastic reductions.

Kansas City Just Beginning.

Kansas City: Preparation of the budget for the fiscal year beginning May 1 has just begun, and no definite change in the financial policy has yet been determined.

Seattle: In adopting the 1932 budget the city council cut to the lowest possible figure the appropriations for operation, maintenance, and capital outlays. Departmental appropriations were reduced by nearly 10 per cent.

Indianapolis: The state legislature passed a special act in 1931 to prevent the 1932 budgets of all governmental units from exceeding the totals of the previous year.

Rochester: An effort will be made to live within a budget for 1932 which was balanced by drastic cuts by the city manager and council. The total city and school operating budget amounts to $18,594,563 after a cut of $467,000 by the manager and $2,220,946 by the council.

Portland, Ore.: Although no definite changes have been made in the 1932 budget the commissioner of finance has presented thirty specific recommendations for consideration by the council, including no new capital projects and no net increase in the next tax budget.

Houston Cuts Salaries.

Houston: Resulting from a serious effort to reduce municipal and school expenses a considerable number of employés have been dismissed and there has been a readjustment in salaries.

Toledo: The expiration of one mill operating levy and a decrease in assessed valuations have brought a decrease of 45 per cent in revenues from the general tax levy. Municipal salaries have been reduced 5 to 25 per cent and decreases made in departmental appropriations.

Denver: In the absence of specific information regarding definite budget economies for 1932 it may be said the general policy in this city is an insistence on every department keeping strictly within the limits of its budget appropriation.

Oakland: With the inauguration of the council-manager plan at the beginning of the fiscal year on July 1, 1931, a policy of rigid economy and curtailment of expenditures was adopted.

St. Paul: Although no major reductions were made, economies were introduced by salary cuts, except for teachers in 1931, and decreases in departmental appropriations.

Syracuse: Following a shrinkage of 13 per cent in tax receipts, a shrinkage of general revenues amounting to approximately $700,000 and an approximte increase of $700,000 in welfare expense, an advance of $7.77 in the tax was imminent. Salary cuts saved $700,000.

BATTLE OF RIVAL JURIES TAKEN TO SUPREME COURT

Lawyer Seeks to Thwart Feinberg's Group.

Questions regarding the right of Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg to appoint a special state's attorney and a special grand jury and conduct an investigation in defiance of his fellow judges are to be submitted to the Illinois Supreme court under an agreement reached yesterday.

FLOYD E. THOMPSON.
[Underwood & Underwood Photo.]

Attorney Louis E. Hart, who accepted an appointment by Judge Feinberg as special state's attorney, and Attorney Floyd Thompson, who declined a similar appointment by Chief Justice Harry M. Fisher of the Criminal court, departed for Springfield together to get a decision from the high court.

Thompson, who is a former Supreme court justice, said he would ask for writs of mandamus and prohibition, which, if granted, would eliminate Judge Finberg's jury, and Prosecutor Hart said he would join in the request for a quick decision on the problem, but would uphold Judge Feinberg's position.

Both Juries Are Idle.

Both juries meanwhile were idle and the matter of the jail sentence of George Seif, clerk of the Criminal court, was in status quo. As keeper of the seal of the Criminal court Seif refuses to attach the seal to Judge Feinberg's order committing him to jail, and without the seal the commitment order is inoperative.

Attorney Thompson will ask that Judge Feinberg be prohibited from trying to enforce any of the orders he issued as an "ex officio" judge of the Criminal court. The mandamus to be sought aims to force Judge Feinberg to expunge his record in the case, growing out of a petition filed by one of his ward workers and a social leader, which charged that election frauds were about to be committed.

Chief Justice Fisher commented on the situation yesterday when his special grand jury appeared before him. He said the other grand jury was functioning as if it were a legal grand jury, and that the publicity given to the proceedings gave the false impression that the courts were in a controversy.

Fisher's Jury Adjourned.

"As individual judges the members of the court may or may not enjoy the respect of the community," Judge Fisher stated, "but as courts they must have the respect of the community. There are no comic aspects to this matter. It is a serious situation. The Supreme court is to be asked to give its opinion and therefore this grand jury will stand adjourned until April 25."

The Feinberg grand jury has also adjourned until April 25. Thompson and Hart said they expected a decision by that time.

COOLIDGE KEROSENE LAMP GIVES WAY TO ELECTRIC PLANT

Plymouth, Vt., April 14.—(AP)—The kerosene lamps by light of which the late John Coolidge administered the oath of office as President to his son, Calvin, nine years ago, no longer will see service in the Coolidge summer home.

Modern workmen, skilled in modern methods of lighting, today began the task of wiring the century old farm house and will install a small electric plant. The change is in line with extensive repairs begun by the former President last year and lends further support to the belief that Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge will spend more time each year among the environments of the former President's boyhood.

Other changes will include the building of a large ell, containing two bedrooms, a bath room, and a library.

Although Mr. Coolidge has indicated he would arrive here soon after April 18, his Plymouth neighbors do not expect him before the first of May—for two reasons: First, the roads are in poor condition, and then the trout season does not open hereabouts until May 15.

SEIZE TWO MORE IN "TREASURE" MURDER INQUIRY

Two new suspects were arrested yesterday by Sheriff Lester Tiffany of Lake county and placed in the county jail at Waukegan for questioning regarding the death of William Hancock, 80 year old Antioch resident, who was found dead Tuesday night in the house where he was reputed to have a hoard of bonds and other securities.

The prisoners are John Windling, 29 years old, a second hand automobile dealer living a few doors from the Hancock home, and Joseph Neimer, 30 years old, a landscape gardener. Neimer lives part of the year in Antioch, but was arrested yesterday in Racine, Wis. He waived extradition and was taken to Waukegan, asserting that he had not left Racine for a week.

R. F. Allner, Antioch deputy sheriff, informed Sheriff Tiffany that he had been told that Neimer could be identified as the bandit who invaded Hancock's home several months ago, seeking the aged man's hidden wealth, and robbed him of $76. Hancock's housekeeper, who was present during that robbery, was unable to identify Neimer last night, however.

Mrs. Margaret Heis, housekeeper for Windling, and Stanley Class, 17 year old hitch hiker whom Windling picked up in Ohio recently and brought to his Antioch home, have been in custody in the case since Wednesday.

Veteran Enters 58th Day of Fast; Loses 125 Pounds

Miamiville, O., April 14.—(AP)—Wilson Fitzwater, 88, civil war veteran, today entered his 58th day of fasting. Fitzwater is growing weaker daily. While he has drunk water copiously, his only approach to food has been an infrequent sip of eggnog. His weight has dropped from about 250 pounds to 125. Friends attribute his refusal to eat to an enfeebled mind.

TRIBUNE FLEET LEADERS RACING PROW AND PROW

Chicago Tribune, N. Y. News Pass Mackinac.

Plowing down Lake Michigan neck and neck, the Chicago Tribune and New York News were in the lead last night in the last lap of the annual race of The Tribune's paper fleet from Thorold, Ont., to Chicago.

The winner of the 800 mile race is expected to dock at The Tribune's warehouse near the mouth of the Chicago river this evening or early tomorrow. If Capt. B. J. Brown of the Tribune wins he will signal his victory with one long blast of his whistle. If the News comes in first Capt. F. V. McIntyre will loose two blasts of his whistle.

Three Blasts for Thorold.

Three blasts will be the signal in the event Capt. George Ferguson of the Thorold manages to make up a disadvantage of nearly five hours under which he was running yesterday morning and overhaul the other two vessels.

The Tribune and News were racing prow and prow when they passed Mackinac island at 10:20 a. m. yesterday, the lighthouse keeper there reported by telegraph to H. A. Laird, traffic manager of The Tribune. The Thorold passed at 3 p. m. and was followed an hour later by the Bennington, a chartered ship which is also carrying paper to The Tribune.

Capt. Fred Mastine has a slightly faster ship in the Bennington and h . hopes of overhauling the Thorold before they reach Chicago. Because all of the light ships have not been sent to their posts about the islands at the north end of Lake Michigan the fleet will be unable to take the shorter and more direct route south of the islands, and will have to pass to the north. This will add about six hours to the ships' time and increase the distance from Mackinac island to about 380 miles.

Carry 14 Million Pounds.

The fleet, carrying more than 14,000,000 pounds of newsprint for The Tribune, had the first important cargoes to traverse the great lakes this year when it left the plant of the Ontario Paper company, a Tribune subsidiary, at Thorold Monday. The navigation season on the lakes opens officially today, and masters of other ships have been requested to report the position of any of The Tribune's fleet which they sight during the day.

The ships, after passing Mackinac island, will be out of sight of land until they appear off Grosse Point, near Evanston.

TWO BANDITS POSE AS DEPUTIES; SEIZE CASHIER, ROB BANK

Kenosha, Wis., April 14.—[Special.]—Two armed men today robbed the Silver Lake State bank, fifteen miles west of Kenosha, of $5,000 and escaped after handcuffing Clifford Janke, an assistant cashier, to the bars on the bank vault.

The men, posing as deputy sheriffs, appeared at the home of Janke while he and his wife and Miss Mabel McKee, a school teacher, were at breakfast. Drawing their pistols and announcing that they were bandits, the women were then taken into the basement of the home and tied to a post.

Janke was then taken to the bank and forced to open the vault. While the robbers were there two of the bank's customers, Pieber Van der See and his son, William, entered. They were forced to lie on the floor.

When the two men left in the automobile in which Janke had been taken from his home Van der See ran out and raised an alarm. Volunteers tried unsuccessfully to follow them. Their car was found abandoned southeast of Silver Lake. Apparently they had changed to another car driven by a confederate.

102 YEARS OLD, BUT STILL DOES OWN HOUSEWORK

Reynolds, Ill., April 14.—[Special.]—Professing no belief in any religion but a form of theosophy, Mrs. Alfred Black of this village, believed to be the oldest person in Rock Island county, will celebrate her 102d birthday tomorrow. The aged woman still does her own housework and reads without glasses.

"I believe I have seen all there is to see in life," she said, "but you know it is so hard to remember everything."

Mrs. Black is a native of Athens county, Ohio, and has been married 64 years.

Mr. Black, who was with Gen. Sherman on his famous march through Georgia, and who served throughout the civil war, is sixteen years his wife's junior.

Benton Harbor, Mich., April 14.—[Special.]—South Haven's new postoffice took a step forward today when it became known $20,000 of the $105,000 for the federal building had been received. The check was brought to South Haven by Fred C. Westmore, Grand Rapids, federal attorney, to be split among property owners of sites.

DISMISS MURDER CHARGE AGAINST WINNETKA YOUTH

CRIMINAL COURT.
Louis Herman, William Kopenhki, and George Paschke, larceny, sentenced to 1 year each in Pontiac reformatory by Judge Phillip Sullivan.

The murder charge against Edward Roehl, 17 years old, who confessed and then denied that he was one of the bandits who shot and killed Edwin Russell Thompson, young broker, in a holdup, and three of his companions was nol prossed yesterday before Judge Walter T. Stanton in the Criminal court. The murder took place in the Lake Avenue Tavern in Glenview on Nov. 25, 1930.

Since the state depended on Roehl's confession entirely for prosecution, the case collapsed when he repudiated the statement, Judge Stanton was told. Roehl's co-defendants were Frank Tey, Louis Bruneau and Frank Fisher.

Roehl, who is the stepson of Richard J. Douglass of Winnetka, cold storage company official, and Bruneau had also been indicted on charges of robbing the Maryland restaurant at 1011 North State street on Oct. 27, 1931. This charge was nol prossed when Meda Brady, 1569 North Hoyne avenue, the cashier, who handed over $75 to the bandits, said she had been mistaken in identifying Roehl.

Alienists examined Roehl and found him "legally sane but suffering from hallucinations," according to William A. Rittenhouse, acting first assistant state's attorney.

WOMEN FORGIVE EX-SENATOR FOR SUFFRAGE LAPSE

Cheer When Wadsworth Assails Prohibition.

By GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.

Washington, D. C., April 14.—[Special.]—When James W. Wadsworth Jr. was a United States senator a while ago women all but hissed him because he opposed the 19th amendment.

Today when he appeared before the senate judiciary subcommittee considering prohibition repeal five hundred lovely ladies all but kissed him because he opposed the 18th amendment.

Half a thousand delegates to the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, which yesterday closed its conference here, had gone to the committee hearing to applaud their leader, Mrs. Charles H. Sabin of New York, as she told the senators that 631,537 women were for repeal. But when former Senator Wadsworth got up and denounced present prohibition he pretty nearly stole the show from Mrs. Sabin.

The women clapped and yelled. Some stood up on chairs and cheered. Some sat down and stamped their feet in admiration. They made such a racket that several capitol police came running down the corridor to see what the rumpus was.

Assembly Is Noisy.

It was the second time the police had come a-running. Earlier in the day five hundred jubilant women with many an orchid, many a pearl, had tried to make their jubilant way into the committee room. Hundreds of them spilled out into the corridor, and Senator Blaine [radical Rep., Wis.], chairman of the subcommittee, decided to move up to the largest room in the senate office building.

At last everybody who could get a chair sat down; others perched on tables and window ledges. It was all very gay.

Senator Blaine announced that there were so many repeal and resubmission resolutions before the committee that to start off with witnesses could "just talk about what they thought of prohibition."

There was a cheer.

And another cheer when academic Hiram Bingham of Connecticut, Republican leader of the wet forces in the senate, made the opening statement. He referred to the enormous revenue that the repeal of the eighteenth amendment and a tax on liquor would bring into the treasury. He cited cities where drunkenness has increased greatly since prohibition and mentioned Oak Park, Ill., in that list.

Wadsworth Hits Dry Law.

Then Mr. Wadsworth began to talk. He threw aside his printed speech, which was all about revenues and statistics, and smashed into the 18th amendment for its inappropriateness in the constitution.

"It's the only police regulation in the entire constitution," he charged. "The other amendments enable the people to say to the government, 'Thou shalt not.' But this permits the government to say to the people, 'Thou shalt not.' It would be just as unconstitutional if it were a police regulation forbidding you to speed your automobile. It simply doesn't belong in that document.

"And once we violated the principles of constitutional law we got into trouble and we've been in trouble ever since."

There was a soprano cheer of approval.

Then the former senator grew autobiographical as he smiled and said:

"I've had enough experience to know that nowadays extremists on both sides of the question judge a public servant solely on the wet and dry issue. Every man in public life wants the question settled. You know the presidential candidates would give anything to have it settled."

Mrs. Sabin Is Heard.

Mrs. Sabin, good to look at in her smart black gown, her double rope of pearls, her chic black turban trimmed with white rosebuds, walked up to the head of the table.

"The prohibition amendment, however noble in purpose, has failed," she made the theme of her address. And she told the senators that when she said she represented more than a half million women who thought the same way she meant "represented," because each woman had joined her organization for but one purpose, to get the prohibition law changed.

Following her sprightly speech a Mr. Frank Boland of New York, representing the American Hotel Men's association, lamented that prohibition had driven food from the hotel dining room to the speakeasy; rejoiced that prohibition had produced a combination cork screw, bottle opener, fastened to the hotel room wall, so that guests could not take it away.

House Adds Names.

Prohibition was given attention over in the house today, too. At the close of today's session a dozen new names had been added to the O'Connor-Hull beer petition, bringing the total number of signatures up to 108. Among today's signers are Illinois Representatives Harry P. Beam, Leonard W. Schuetz, James T. Igoe, and Edward A. Kelly. From the central states area also came Representatives Samuel B. Pettingill [Dem., Ind.], Seymour H. Person [Rep., Mich.], and Clarence J. McLeod [Rep., Mich.].

Spike O'Donnell's Guard Beats Concealed Gun 'Rap'

Sanford Rosenbaum, bodyguard of Edward (Spike) O'Donnell, gangster, was freed yesterday when he was arraigned before Judge Thomas A. Green on charges of carrying a concealed weapon. Police were unable to connect him with the ownership of a revolver which had been thrown from an automobile in which he was arrested.

MILK DRIVERS REJECT 20 PCT. CUT IN WAGES

Plan Further Discussion of New Contract.

The milk wagon drivers' union last night refused to accept the proposal of the Chicago milk distributors for a 20 per cent wage cut. By this action the negotiations for a new wage contract are returned to the executive committee for further discussion. The offer of the distributors called for a flat $40 a week scale. The present contract provides for $50 a week, plus commissions.

Six thousand men, out of a total membership of approximately seven thousand, meeting in union headquarters at 220 South Ashland boulevard, voted unanimously to refuse the employers' offer. The meeting was orderly and the vote was taken after a little more than an hour debate, during which the entire economic situation as it affects the milk industry was discussed.

Plan New Conference.

"Another conference between the seven union representatives and the distributors' representatives will be called," Robert Fitchie, president of the union, said. "After the distributors have been notified of the union action a date will be set for the conference. Following that conference another general union meeting will be held."

The distributors' proposal was made April 11, following the third conference between the two groups. The present $50-a-week-with-commissions contract expires April 30. In the distributor's offer no provision is understood to have been made regarding commissions or a two weeks vacation with pay which is now in force. The union last night did not discuss a counter proposal.

Plan to "Pass On" Any Cut.

Dr. F. D. Walmsley, president of the Borden's Farm Products company and spokesman for the distributors, said recently that any reduction in the wage costs would be passed on to the consumers in the form of a reduction in milk prices.

Milk is retailing in Chicago and the nearby cities at 12 cents a quart and 8 cents a pint. In two previous reductions of one cent a quart on Jan. 1, 1931, and Jan. 1, 1932, farmers shouldered the largest part of the cut. No change has been made in retail prices on pints of milk since Dec. 1, 1922.

WRITER SEEKS DIVORCE; SUES CO-RESPONDENT

Lester B. Colby, magazine writer and former newspaper man, living at 137 Custer street, Evanston, filed suit for divorce yesterday in the Circuit court against Mrs. Mary Frances Colby, who is now living with her parents in Houston, Tex.

He charged adultery, and named as a co-respondent Charles Salter Martin, 1117 North Dearborn street, Illinois manager of a tea importing company. He also filed the praecipe of a suit for $50,000 against Martin.

In his bill, Colby states that his wife left him last October. On Jan. 16, he states, he went to an apartment in a north side hotel, discovered that his wife was there, and summoned police. With their help he broke in the door and found his wife with Martin, he charges. The couple have two children, Mary Elizabeth, 17, and Byron, 12 years old.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

AN UTTERANCE OF PATRIOTIC STATESMANSHIP.

The speech of former Gov. Smith at the Jefferson day banquet in Washington was an utterance which the great patriot and statesman to whose honor the occasion was dedicated would have applauded. In this speech the American people heard the clearest and most forceful call to patriotism and common sense that has been given by any public man in this republic for many years. It was the utterance of a statesman, as inspiring in its spirit as it was sound in its practical wisdom.

What effect upon political action it will have we would not predict. But to the thought and the spirit of the nation it cannot fail to bring a clarity, a practical direction and a new hope which are its greatest need at this time. Here is leadership above partisanship or self-seeking, counsel as loyal to the common good as it is straight thinking. If Mr. Smith can impose his statesmanship upon the public leadership and the public opinion of the nation he will have accomplished a service seldom surpassed in our history.

The speech touches with power and illumination upon every major issue before the people in this crisis. It blows away every destructive fallacy which demagogues and destructionists are exploiting in this congenial time of doubt and sacrifice. Nothing more needed saying than its rebuke of this exploitation of the people's sore need. There is both heart and brains in what Mr. Smith says on this sinister aspect of the time.

"This is no time for demagogues. At a time like this, when millions of men, and women, and children are starving throughout the land, there is always the temptation to some men to stir up class prejudice, to stir up the bitterness of the rich against the poor and of the poor against the rich.

"Against that effort I set myself uncompromisingly. I protest against the endeavor to delude the poor people of this country to their ruin by trying to make them believe that they can get employment before the people who would ordinarily employ them are also again restored to conditions of normal prosperity. A factory worker cannot get his job back until business conditions enable the factory owner to open up again, and to promise the great masses of working people that they will secure renewed employment by class legislation is treachery to those working people, to the principles of the Democratic party and to this United States itself."

To the difficult and momentous problems of international debts and tariffs Mr. Smith brings reasoned counsel and practical suggestion worthy of serious consideration. How practicable his plan for debt adjustment might prove to be no one can say. But it is conceived from the viewpoint of stalwart Americanism and proposes the way for effective action. Mr. Smith has thought broadly and soundly upon our world economic relations and the policies he proposes are constructive.

On prohibition Mr. Smith's summary could not be bettered.

"We have spent in recent years hundreds of millions of dollars in the futile, foolish endeavor to make people temperate by law, and, while we are spending that, the farmers are losing the millions of dollars which formerly came to them from the sale of their cereals for use in alcoholic beverages, and thousands of men legitimately engaged in that industry are out of employment.

"Yet some members of congress are too cowardly to apply to this situation the sound Jeffersonian doctrine of local self-government. They stand meekly by while a police ordinance grafted on our constitution shuts off millions of dollars of income and causes millions of dollars of wasteful outlay; they quake with terror before small organized minorities who believe themselves self-appointed.

"If this party desires to adhere to the principles of Jefferson, if it wishes to be true to itself and to the people of this country, it must in Chicago, in no uncertain terms and in a language of the clear kind that Jefferson could write, declare for the return to the state of the power to control the manufacture and sale of alcoholic liquor. Let us not duck nor dodge; let us put into our platform a plank for a new constitutional amendment on this subject such as every man within the sound of my voice knows that Jefferson would write if he were alive and with us tonight."

As for Mr. Smith's advice to his party we could wish it adopted by both parties, for its good sense is broader than Democracy. Party platforms have come to mean less and less to the voters as they became devices to evade issues and responsibilities, not to define them. This has bred inevitable cynicism in the public and demoralized our system of party government.

The people are tired of this camouflage which no longer deceives any one and now demand frankness and courageous decision.

And finally, upon the paramount issue of retrenchment and relief from destructive taxation, Mr. Smith has spoken to his party words which, if it is wise enough to heed, will be memorable in our political records. "The Democratic platform," said Mr. Smith, "should definitely declare for a thoroughgoing reorganization of the governmental machinery to prevent overlapping of function, duplication of effort and the consequent waste and inefficiency which grow from it. This must be done without fear or favor. In fact, it is my belief that the present house of representatives should have presented such a plan.

"I spoke about it in the campaign of 1928, and if I am any judge whatever of public attitude to governmental questions what I said about it was received with acclaim by audiences which listened to me throughout the United States. It is passing strange that every time additional money is required for the operation of the government nobody thinks of dispensing with some of the existing expenditures or retrenching in government expenditures, but everybody seeks immediately new fields of taxation.

"The chairman of the ways and means committee of the house of representatives said recently that congress was against economy, in favor of more appropriations and against lower taxation.

"The Democratic party cannot afford to maintain any such attitude. It must make a vigorous and forceful effort to reduce the cost of this government, to cut out useless activities, to consolidate necessary ones, and so to reorganize the various departments as to eliminate overhead and unnecessary expenditure of public money before it seeks new avenues of taxation."

This is the counsel of patriotic statesmanship which rises above the clamor of demagogues and false prophets and above the pretenses and evasions of self-seeking politicians. Whether it will be heeded by the party bosses as in congress recent political action gives little reason to expect. But that it will sink into the mind of the people and be welcomed there there can be no shadow of doubt.

THE BOARD OF TRADE SHOULD WORRY.

The Farmers' National Grain corporation has appealed to the secretary of agriculture to close the Chicago Board of Trade. The Farmers' National is the grain holding agency of the farm board, and the board of trade has refused to admit it to membership in its clearing house. This, says Mr. C. E. Huff, head of the corporation, constitutes a violation of the grain futures act which admits coöperative associations to all the privileges of membership in contract markets. Therefore, he argues, it is the duty of Secretary Hyde to close the pit.

The question seems to turn upon the claim of the Farmers' National to be considered a coöperative association. It is a poor claim, in our judgment, and Mr. Hyde will make a serious mistake if he gives much weight to Mr. Huff's argument. Mr. Hyde is in a hot spot. He is well disposed toward the farm board, but he must know that the wheat crop is financed from grower to consumer largely by means of bankers' credit. That credit is forthcoming only because the bankers know that the wheat offered as security for loans can be converted into cash at a moment's notice by the simple device of offering it for sale in the Chicago market. There is no other market existing today, anywhere in the world, on a scale large enough to assure the bankers of the complete safety which they now enjoy. There is also no other futures market broad enough to enable buyers of grain to hedge it without demoralizing grain prices.

No doubt such a market might be developed in time, but it cannot conceivably be improvised between now and June when the new wheat crop will begin to flow in enormous volume into the central markets. That can only mean that if Mr. Hyde closes the board of trade the price of wheat in the United States will hit the toboggan. Few will dare buy it, and those who do will be obliged to advance a much larger proportion of the price in cash than they now do, because the bankers will regard wheat loans as involving extraordinary risks. The more cash which is required to buy a bushel of wheat the lower the price must fall.

The farm board itself is in a highly vulnerable position. It has borrowed large sums against the wheat it holds, and these loans might be impaired by further sharp declines in the price of grain. Meanwhile the board's cash is being drained by heavy charges for storing the grain it owns. It must find a means to finance its operations in the next crop year, and it is evident to the naked eye that no more money is going to be voted for its fantastic schemes by congress. The farm board, being the largest speculative holder of wheat the world has ever seen, will be utterly destroyed if the ready market for the wheat it has cornered is closed.

The board of trade has often adopted an attitude of humility in the presence of the politicians. Farmers of the United States can congratulate themselves that the board of trade has at length sloughed off its inferiority complex and is now asserting its and their rights with courage. In this fight the interest of the farmers is identical with that of the members of the exchange. The indications point to a greatly reduced crop this year as a result of serious injury to winter wheat. Even with the farm board's present holdings hanging over the market, prices should rise, provided the normal marketing facilities are not interrupted. Of course, if Secretary Hyde does close the Chicago market and the courts permit this utterly destructive course to be carried out, even a widespread crop disaster will not improve prices.

SOLVING CHICAGO'S FINANCIAL PROBLEM.

[Illinois State Journal.]

Reviewing Chicago's financial situation, THE TRIBUNE of that city announces that it is not nearly so hopeless as it has been pictured. It decides that "careful budgetary management for three or four years would go a long way toward reducing the floating debt to something like manageable proportions."

Just so, just so. Now, who is to do the budgeting? The community has a multiplicity of governments charged with this duty, but no one of them is disposed to function to this end. "A rationing of available revenues" is glibly suggested by the newspaper, but the suggestion is based on the assumption of coöperation between the "essential" and "less essential" governments.

No two Chicago officials can agree as to what governments are essential. Each of the multitude will insist that his is the most important. No one of them will consent to a curtailment of tax spending activities. They are agreed on only one thing—that the floating of more bonds is a specific for deficits.

So long as we have numerous independent tax levying bodies we can have no general budgeting anywhere. Congress offers an example of what can occur, even if appropriations are made by a single body, when tax spenders furnish the estimates.

SPRING VEGETABLES.

NOW is the time for all good people to eat early spring vegetables. Nearly every one comes out of the winter with some minor evidence of scurvy. It is not much. There is no danger to life. No serious disorder threatens, but there is a train of small disturbances that is in evidence.

Gums are not quite as firm as they should be. If they are examined closely in a good light, here and there is a somewhat boggy area. The membranes do not hug the teeth closely everywhere. In a certain place the gum is a little too red. There may be a little blood on the toothbrush. Perhaps the tongue can locate a part of the gums that is a little sore.

At times the tongue is a little too large and the edge shows the print of the teeth. The ridges across the roof of the mouth are a little too large and they, too, may be a little sore and red. When a farmer finds a horse with this condition he says he has the lampas, and he lances the gums and gives some doses of "condition" powder. Of course, what the horse really needs is some fresh young spring grass.

Coming back to the human animal, the minor discomfort may not be felt in his mouth. It often takes the form of pain in the joints. If the complainer is a child, this may be called growing pains. Very frequently the discomfort takes the form of a neuralgia. Headache may be one way in which the system tries to tell us that things are not quite as they should be. Constipation is another of these disorders which develop out of the early spring condition. And still another is some form of disorder of the skin. As a rule, there is nothing more than a roughening, or some unimportant blemish.

The old time remedy was to take a spring tonic, or a herb tea. The modern method is to lay in a new supply of vitamin by eating some fresh stuff, such as early radishes and onions, English peas, early salads, and greens. Many of these are best eaten raw. They are of value even though cooked in soups, or boiled, provided the juice is used.

In a short while the early spring fruits will come on the market. They should be eaten, for while they do not have the fine flavor of their successors they are timely in their arrival.

It is true that refrigeration has helped to prevent these minor spring troubles by supplying us with fruits and vegetables out of season. But at best they do not entirely fill the bill. The best vegetables are those that are eaten soon after being pulled, just as the best fish are those that jump from the water into the pan.

CHANGE YOUR DIET.

S. H. S. writes: I am a woman 30 years old and engaged to be married. My chest is flat and I have almost no breast glands. I go swimming, belong to clubs, and exercise, but I cannot change this flat chest nor increase the size of the breast glands.

1. What can I do?
2. My mother said I had milk in the breasts when a baby. Is this the cause of my present trouble?

REPLY:

1. Change your diet. Eat yeast, wheat germ, eggs, and other foods rich in vitamin B complex. Get married when the getting is good.
2. I doubt it, but I am not sure of my ground.

ITCHING OF THE NOSE.

A reader writes: What is responsible for itching of the nose when there is no apparent cause such as catarrh? My child has it. We thought it just a habit, but cannot cure it.

REPLY.

This sign, when it is not due to hay fever or something of that kind, may mean worms. Perhaps it may point to other conditions or causes.

INFECTED SINUS.

Mrs. E. G. writes: What causes a running nose? This is the second year that I have had it. Of course, it does not run in the summer months.

REPLY.

The probable cause is an infected sinus. Among other causes are hay fever and several kinds of asthma.

TO TRACE ANCESTRY.

Chicago, April 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Recently a gentleman died leaving a large estate with no will and no direct heirs. I am inclined to think I am an heir, although I have not been able to prove relationship due to the fact my parents died when I was young and I haven't the real history of their family. Could you tell me if there is any way to get a history of one's ancestors? I would have to trace it back nearly two hundred years when my great-grandfather came to this country from Scotland and settled some place in North Carolina. Is there any place where one can obtain records that far back?

A VERY OPEN FACE LETTER ON A CERTAIN SUBJECT.

"Let the Postoffice Know if You Move, Urges Postmaster Lueder."—Headline. Dear Mr. Lueder, while we thank you most kindly and even affectionately for your suggestion, we take this opportunity to inform you that we are not telling the postoffice when we move. When—and if—we move, Mr. Lueder, it will be at the dark of the moon, and we are going to lower our lares and penates and the electric refrigerator and the radio and two suits of clothes out of the window and go down the fire escape. There will be a large fat man sitting on the corner watching our front door, but we hope to elude him by going down the alley. Something seems to tell us, Mr. Lueder, that that large fat man will be the butcher, or possibly the grocery man, but, at any rate, we do not care to meet him face to face.

Deeply as we appreciate, Mr. Lueder, your interest in our welfare and your earnest attempt to have us get all our monthly bills promptly and without the aggravating delay caused by moving, at the same time, Mr. Lueder, you will pardon us if we do not tell the postoffice when and where we are moving. We have always, Mr. Lueder, regarded the postoffice with sincere respect, not unmixed with admiration. That feeling has abated to a certain extent, Mr. Lueder, since we received word that the postoffice is going to stick us a cent more for postage in the near future than at present. You will forgive us, Mr. Lueder, if we are not giving three loud and vociferous cheers for the postoffice as frequently as we once did.

However, Mr. Lueder, we decline to inform the postoffice when we are moving, not because of any feeling of resentment over the raising of the price of stamps from two to three cents, but simply and solely because of circumstances over which we have no control. As we have vaguely hinted, we think it best that the time of our moving remain a deep and awful secret. Please explain this to the postoffice in the best way you can, as we would like to avoid saying anything that might stir up bad feeling. Thanking you again, dear Mr. Lueder, for your letter and with the deepest regards for the postoffice and yourself, we remain affectionately yours, etc., etc., etc.

FOREBODING.

Blithe was the way I wandered
Before I met with love,
A lusty wind beside me,
A comrade sun above——

Fair was the way; but only
One heart contained me then;
When love has left me lonely
Will it be fair again?

DOROTHY KISSLING.

WE NEVER THOUGHT they could do it, but the Republicans have at last found a keynoter, Senator Dickinson of Iowa. Gosh, he's the bird that has to stand right up in front of the whole convention and point with pride! Oh, gosh, gosh!

BIRDS IN THEIR LITTLE NEST AGREE, AND 'TIS A SHAMEFUL SIGHT, ETC.

We would gather from the remarks of Mr. Alfred Emanuel Smith of New York at the Jefferson day dinner of the Democrats in Washington that he is not entirely pleased with the candidacy of Mr. Franklin Delano Roosevelt, also of New York, for the Democratic nomination for the presidency. In fact, after reading Mr. Alfred Emanuel Smith's remarks we gather it is his belief that as a President Mr. Franklin Delano Roosevelt would make a fine alderman from the Fourth ward in Albany. And it was Mr. Franklin Delano Roosevelt of New York who gave to Mr. Alfred Emanuel Smith the glowing title the Happy Warrior. Tsk, tsk, tsk! how truly sad this all is. However, there is a bright side to everything, Pollyanna, do we but look for it, and this little rift within the Democratic lute is the first real good, hearty laugh they've had for months and months and months. But as we were saying:

And 'tis a shameful sight,
When the children of Democracy
Fall out and quarrel and fight.

MRS. SABIN says "the eighteenth amendment is poisoning our national life." We can't speak with scientific accuracy on that point, but we know that some of the gin we've drunk in cocktails lately tastes pretty strongly of barbed wire, deadly nightshade, old shoe leather, cabbage, hair oil, and gasoline. If that stuff is poisoning our national life what won't it do to our stomachs?

EXTRAMURAL.

From the broad portals of the school he went,
As unafraid of life as cavalier,
Armed with a boundless faith and well content,
And weighty with his knowledge as a seer.

Bent on achievement, surer of his ground
And learned in philosophy and art,
Skilled in debate and victory new crowned,
Daring the world, sufficient and apart.

But that was long ago, he's humble grown
And quite unsure of all the themes once taught,
A little skeptical of things he'd known
Though scarred with many battles he has fought.

Of casting pride from out the hearts of all.
It made a man of wisdom out of him,

CHINA-JAPAN WAR, 1894

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 29.—Former Secretary of State Foster started from here for Japan, where he will join the peace commissioners of the Chinese government to act as their legal adviser. He was accompanied by John Henderson, the son of former Senator Henderson of Missouri, who goes in the capacity of secretary to Gen. Foster.

LONDON, Dec. 30.—A dispatch from Peking says that the ex-viceroy of Nankin, Liu Kun-yi, has been appointed to the chief command of all the Chinese forces. Thus he supersedes Li Hung Chang and Prince Kung, the emperor's uncle, who only a short time ago was appointed to that position with two or three others.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 1, 1895.—Minister Kurino of Japan says that in his judgment there will be no armistice and no abatement of the war between China and Japan until the peace plenipotentiaries have actually assembled and have formulated some basis for a cessation of hostilities and have themselves asked for an armistice.

28 YEARS AGO TODAY

APRIL 15, 1904.

ST. PETERSBURG.—Rumors are current that Vice Admiral Togo sent in a number of steamers on the night of March 31 and succeeded in sinking several of them, thus blockading the channel off Port Arthur. [The March 31 is probably according to the old style calendar, which, under the new style, would be April 13.]

LONDON.—A dispatch from Tokio says it is believed there that the entrance to Port Arthur harbor was blocked by the wreck of the Petropavlovsk and that the other Russian warships are unable to enter. The dispatch adds that fighting is still proceeding.

ST. PETERSBURG.—The loss of the torpedo boat destroyer Bzstrashni with forty-five officers and men and the disaster to the battleship Pobieda, added to the destruction of the battleship Petropavlovsk, has simply stunned the Russian people. Vassila Verestchagin, the Russian painter, was a guest of Vice Admiral Makaroff on the Petropavlovsk and it is reported that he perished with Makaroff, Vice Admiral Molas and thirteen officers of the general staff.

LONDON.—Russia's naval power in far eastern waters is annihilated. The possibility of the diversion by the Baltic squadron is removed and Port Arthur practically is at the mercy of the enemy as a result of the latest Japanese successes.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

APRIL 15, 1916.

EL PASO, Tex.—There is a persistent rumor here that a second fight between United States cavalry and Mexicans has taken place either at Parral or just north of there, in which the Americans suffered serious losses.

MEXICO CITY.—The Mexican government will insist with inflexible determination that any armed expedition of the United States which enters Mexican territory in the guise of a punitive expedition must be limited to 1,000 men of one service alone—cavalry—according to a statement made to the Associated Press by Juan Neftali Amador, subsecretary of foreign relations.

WASHINGTON.—The dispatch of an ultimatum warning Germany to reform the conduct of its submarine warfare or suffer a rupture of friendly relations with the United States is the course President Wilson contemplates in regard to the latest phase of the controversy with Berlin. This was the decision reached by the President and his cabinet after consideration of Germany's reply to the American inquiries regarding the Sussex and other disasters attributed to German submarines.

PARIS.—The Germans before Verdun are engaged in a terrific bombardment of the French line, probably preparatory to another infantry drive at some point. The bombardment has been especially severe against the lines to the west of hill 304, on the west bank of the Meuse, where the latest attack of the Germans was centered.

LONDON.—British troops advancing to the relief of the besieged Kut-el-Amara garrison in Mesopotamia have inflicted a severe defeat on the Turks. Gen. Lake reported that the Turks have been driven back on the south bank of the Tigris from one and one-half to three miles.

THE COSTS OF VETERAN RELIEF.

Chicago, April 10.—My understanding is that the entire income tax, based upon the palmy days of incomes, goes to the veterans, this being the principal expense of government. The truth, as I see it, is that the great war, like most, gave to the youth of this nation the grandest lark ever experienced in the history of a people. For the most part the soldiers were drafted into an excursion, all expenses paid, and very few paid any penalty. Without this adventure the vast majority of these men would have lived and died as hillbillies or the like, with nothing whatsoever to illuminate their existence. Comparatively few met with a war injury or a disease which might not have happened them during that period of civil life, and, as a matter of fact, the greater number were returned in fine physical trim due to an outdoor life of exercise.

And now the taxpayers are expected to pay the equivalent of what would be twenty-five dollars a month for every one of the four million men in the service of the war.

We have in this vicinity two great hospitals, open to the veterans, where they may present their discharge papers and have their tonsils out at a cost of some twenty dollars a day to the taxpayers. If a veteran loses a leg under an automobile fourteen years after the war he will be cared for and be given some one hundred or one hundred and fifty dollars a month for the rest of his life.

There were a few men in the great war who did a great service and who came out of the war with a great physical loss and for these men the taxpayers, I believe, are anxious to give everything for their welfare and happiness. Nothing certainly is too good for them or their dependents, but I cannot believe that even the majority of veterans wish, particularly in these times, to lavish treatment and support to all the Toms, Dicks, and Harrys who think that the country owes them something.

A rough guess would be that one hundred million, not a thousand million, dollars a year, properly expended, would complete the debt of the American people to the bona fide victims of the wars.

The country is at last tax conscious. One hears on all sides a loud voice in rebellion against them. Why not, then, begin where the major trouble lies and tune down these expenditures to what the nation can afford to pay?

A BROOKHART CONVERT.

Chicago, April 11.—I move that the government take action to put the stock markets of this country out of business, because they are a one sided, crooked gambling device, as proven by this depression, for the cleaning up of the little fellows by the big ones. Prices can be regulated by other methods.

A LITTLE CELEBRATING.

Chicago, April 11.—Last Saturday I had occasion to do a little celebrating, and, not being a drinker, I could not accurately gauge my capacity and consequently I probably imbibed too freely. At 6 p. m. I hailed a cab on La Salle street, near Randolph, and gave the driver my address. I was drowsy and fell asleep. When I woke up I was driving in the cab a couple of miles beyond my home, the driver's excuse being that he did not wish to disturb my sleep. When I got into the cab I had three dollars in my hand, which evidently dropped to the floor when I dozed off. When I went to pay my bill I mistook a ten dollar bill for a one, and handed it with a one dollar bill to the driver, receiving some silver in change. My bill should have been under two dollars.

My point is that when a young lady calls a cab she does so because she wants to reach her destination as quickly and as safely as possible. Through the dishonesty of this driver I lost twelve dollars and I was delayed in reaching my home. After this experience my confidence in cab drivers is gone, and it's the trolley car for me from now on.

HOUSES OF PRAYER.

Chicago, April 11.—I read an article in this morning's Voice of the People in which a gentleman boasts of having placed on a church bulletin board a clipping from THE TRIBUNE which he considered favorable to his candidate for governor, Omer Custer.

As I read I could not help but meditate, "My house is the house of prayer, but ye have made it a den of thieves."

Why not compel some of the churches to incorporate as political clubs and pay taxes, rather than mask as a house of prayer to escape taxation, and use the funds which should go to the common tax burden for the purpose of political activity?

WILLIAM C. NAPIER.

MEETING THE DEFICIT.

Chicago, April 9.—The nation's perplexing problem, the deficit, would find its solution by means of a citizen loan and entertainment and luxury tax.

A citizen loan would resemble the Liberty loans of the world war. Such loan could provide for an issuance of stamps or certificates in denominations of 5, 10, 25, and 50 cents, and $1, $5, $10, and $25. The certificates could bear a statement of redemption after two years and honorable citizens would demand no interest rates. It would garner into the empty coffers a sum of about $1,000,000,000 in a space of six months.

A none too heavy tax of about 4 per cent upon entertainment enterprises would yield an amount of about $750,000,000. Such levy could be laid upon attendance receipts of theaters, dance halls, baseball and football games, boxing and wrestling performances, etc.

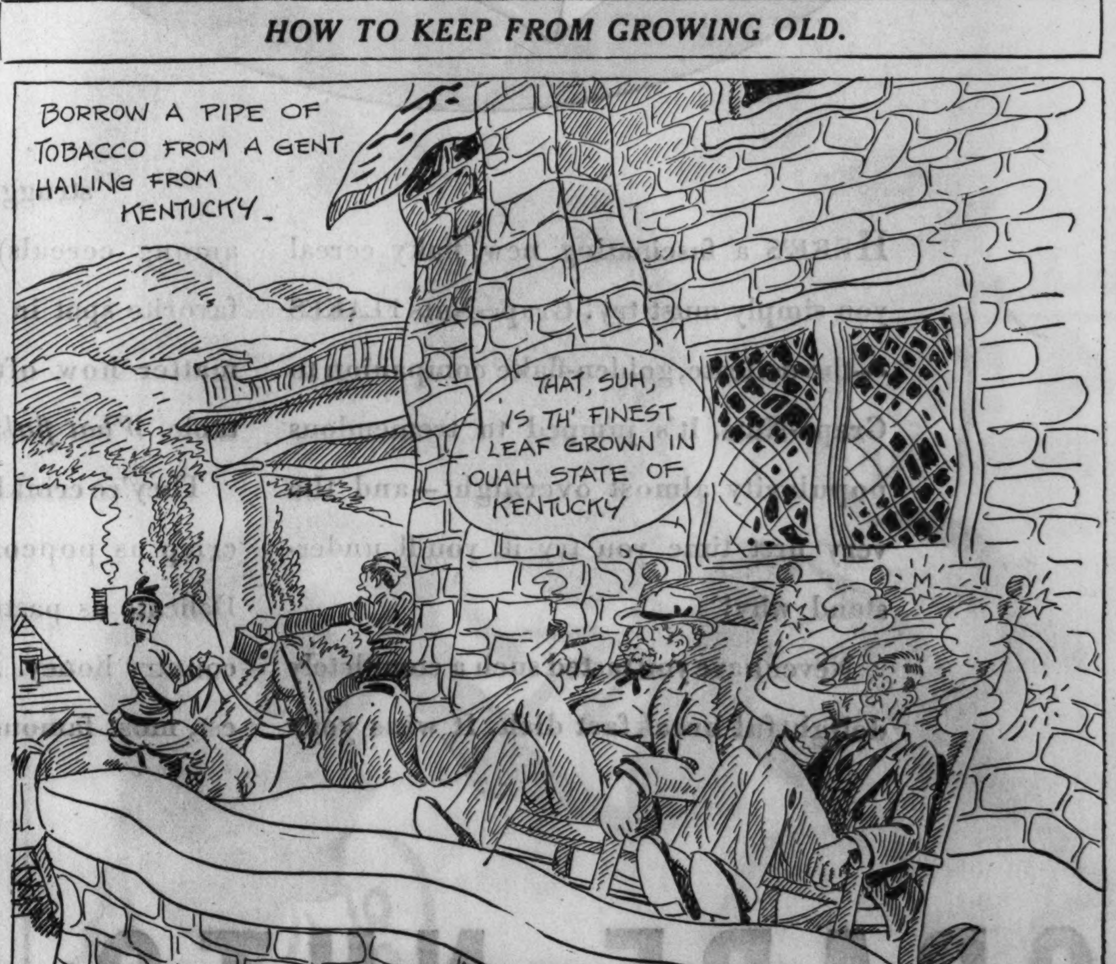
HOW TO KEEP FROM GROWING OLD.



IRISH DAIL GETS BILL TO ABOLISH OATH WEDNESDAY

Row with Britain to See Action.

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, April 14.—(AP)—A bill to delete the oath of allegiance to the king from the constitution of the Irish Free State will be introduced in the Dail Eireann next Wednesday, it became known today.

The oath of allegiance to the king has become a bone of contention between the new Free State government of Eamonn De Valera and Great Britain since the fiery Republican, as president, publicly stated and reiterated that the oath is not mandatory and is the essence of the kind of "inequality" that has kept Ireland and England at odds for 750 years.

Oath in Treaty of 1922.

The oath of allegiance was included in the Anglo-Irish treaty creating the Free State in 1922 and was regarded by the government party of William T. Cosgrave as an integral part of that treaty.

When De Valera came out for president in the elections of February of this year as one of his principal campaign arguments was to abolish the oath to the king, and shortly after he became president he reiterated his determination to do away with it, although he took the oath when he became president.

The British government immediately dispatched a note of protest, which declared that Great Britain would look with grave concern on any attempt to abolish the oath to the king.

De Valera Reiterates Stand.

On April 5, after much discussion, De Valera's cabinet agreed on a reply, which was prefaced with an expression of friendliness toward Great Britain but an insistence that the government had a mandate from the Irish people to forego the oath in the future.

De Valera seized upon the first occasion he could find after the note was sent to reiterate his former stand that the oath can no longer be regarded as necessary by the Free State, and urged British leaders to adopt a "courageous stand" and end once and for all the bitter struggle between England and Ireland.

J. H. Thomas, secretary for dominions, speaking in the house of commons, said that a reply would go forward to Ireland, and also stated that England would remain on her first contention for retention of the oath.

Illness Delays Chicago Woman's Suit for $250,000

Philadelphia, Pa., April 14.—(AP)—Illness of Mrs. Estelle M. Wolon of Chicago, has caused postponement until Monday of the trial of her breach of promise suit against Charles Newbold Welsh. Mrs. Wolon, 38 year old proprietor of a tearoom in Chicago, is ill with the grip at a hotel. A jury was chosen for the trial yesterday. Mrs. Wolon seeks $250,000 damages from Welsh, a well known Philadelphia clubman.

JACOBS' BUDGET CUTS COSTS IN ASSESSOR OFFICE

Will Finish Year on Funds Left by Old Board.

On several occasions in the past, J. L. Jacobs, as county efficiency expert, told the county board that he thought the appropriations sought by the old board of assessors were excessive and wasteful. On such occasions it was customary for one or more assessors to pound lustily on the nearest table and declare that Mr. Jacobs could do no better himself.

Yesterday Mr. Jacobs, who became county assessor after the Kelly act had abolished the old board, presented to the county commissioners a budget for his office which in its figures accepted the challenge of his predecessors.

During the first three months of the 1932 fiscal year, which started on Dec. 1, the old board of assessors spent $334,710, which was 40 per cent of its total appropriation for the year. However, Mr. Jacobs said that he believed he would be able to finish the year on the remaining 60 per cent of the appropriation, which is $497,000.

Fires Many Pay Rollers.

To do this, he dismissed most of the 189 pay rollers whom he found in the assessors' office when he took it over, and has built up a new staff of 126 permanent employés. These will be supplemented later by extra help, which is provided for in his budget.

In addition to carrying on the work on the 1931 reassesment, his staff probably will have to do over most of the work done by the old assessors, he told the commissioners.

"I have examined the work already done," Mr. Jacobs said. "If I am asked to approve the 1931 quadrennial work, it must be redone in many phases. There are many situations of which I couldn't possibly approve. I found that out of 400,000 personal property returns, all but 35,000 had to be thrown out. If we want to save a loss of time and money in the courts, this must be done over."

Budget for Nine Months.

The budget for the nine months of the fiscal year, from March 1, when Assessor Jacobs took office, to Dec. 1, provides for 104 regular jobs in the real estate department and 22 jobs which will form the nucleus of the new personal property department. The budget follows:

Regular staff [126 men]	$191,848
Extra help, real estate	80,000
Extra help, personal property	75,000
Extra help, quadrennial records	76,549
Township assessors	45,000
Total	$468,397

That is approximately $28,000 below the $497,000 which the old board of assessors left in the appropriation. In addition there remains an appropriation of $135,497 for publishing assessment lists and mailing them to taxpayers.

"Is your decrease in personnel due to a change in operation, or to better trained help?" Mrs. Edward J. Fleming, one of the commissioners, asked the assessor.

"Well, both," he replied. "But I'll tell you one thing. There'll never be as many jobs in that office as there have in the past."

Women Have Some Words.

Mr. Jacobs appeared at the morning session of the finance committee. Mrs. Fleming, when he had finished, suggested an adjournment until 2 o'clock. Commissioner Mary McEnerney replied that she saw no reason for returning.

"Why, that's what you're paid for," Mrs. Fleming told her.

"That's none of your business," cried Miss McEnerney, shaking a finger at Mrs. Fleming. "I want you to keep your nose out of my business. You're always sticking it in when it isn't wanted."

The male commissioners then adjourned the meeting.

Authorize Transfer of Air Line Business in Merger

The Illinois Commerce commission yesterday authorized the Century Air Lines, Inc., to cease business in Illinois and transfer its assets to American Airways, Inc., in accordance with a merger recently arranged between the two companies. Issuance of the order followed a conference at which officials of American Airways promised the commission that the cities of Bloomington, Springfield, and East St. Louis, now served by Century, would continue to receive adequate service.

PROF. E. O. JORDAN OF U. OF C. NAMED TO HEALTH BOARD

Council Approves Mayor's Appointment.

The city council yesterday approved Mayor Cermak's appointment of Dr. Edwin O. Jordan, professor of bacteriology and hygiene at the University of Chicago, to be a member of the board of health. His appointment fills the last vacancy on the board of health as reorganized by Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, the president.

Dr. Jordan has been a member of the university faculty since 1892 and has been head of his department since 1914. He is editor of the Journal of Preventive Medicine, co-editor of the Journal of Infectious Diseases, and the author of a number of books on bacteriology and public health.

Receive Tag Day Request.

The council received and referred to the finance committee a request by the Disabled American Veterans of the World War for permission to hold a tag day Oct. 1. At the same time the aldermen rescinded a resolution passed last July, requiring that any organization participating in the annual tag day of the Chicago Federated Charities must obtain the indorsement of the Chicago Association of Commerce. Instead the federation must file with the council, at least 90 days before the tag day, a list of all organizations which are to participate.

The council adopted a resolution introduced by Ald. Barnet Hodes [7th] requiring the committee on judiciary and state legislation to investigate and report on three subjects connected with regulation of public utilities. They are: Progress of the home rule bill providing for regulation of utilities by the city; the advantage or disadvantage of state over local control or utilities, and the effectiveness of the Illinois commerce commission as compared with utility commissions in other states.

Millions for Experts.

Ald. Hodes pointed out that in the last eight years the city has spent $4,337,160 on experts and special counsel in utility rate cases and has had little return in the way of lower rates. The city in some cases, he said, has had to carry on court fights without aid from the Illinois commerce commission, and in the gas rate case, now under consideration, is required to employ experts and make its own investigations.

Pupils Give Concert on Homemade Instruments

More than 100 kindergarten pupils, ranging in age from 4 to 6 years, presented a concert yesterday at Haines public school, 23d street and Wentworth avenue, playing instruments which they had manufactured. Thirty per cent of the young musicians were Chinese. The concert was the main event of the annual spring festival and art exhibit of the school. Miss Olga Huncke directed the program, assisted by Mrs. Helen Frank.

SIX LOST GIRLS BACK HOME AFTER FLEEING SCHOOL

Six Chicago school girls who started out to see the world were back in their homes last night and glad to be there. The wanderers were found hiking in Illinois, route 25, south of Kankakee, yesterday afternoon.

Their return ended a twenty-four hour search, which began when they failed to attend their classes at St. Hilary parochial school, California and Bryn Mawr avenues, Wednesday afternoon. Police searched through the northwest woods along the Des Plaines river, where it was believed they had gone. The parents feared for their safety because of the number of casuals living in the forest preserves.

The girls are Dorothy Mosher, 14 years old, 5707 North Artesian avenue; Jane Wagner, 13, 5510 North Artesian avenue; Rosalie Casey, 13, 4850 North Artesian avenue; Helen Moran, 13, 5405 North Campbell avenue; Lorraine Borscha, 13, 5921 North Maplewood avenue, and Lucille Ziegler, 14, 5915 North Campbell avenue.

Three Kankakee policemen, who had read of the girls' disappearance, found them walking dejectedly, their shoes dusty, their dresses wrinkled, and faces unwashed. The adventurers admitted their identity and said they wanted to go home. They had spent Wednesday night in a farmhouse.

"We were tired of school and wanted to see the world," the girls said.

Ten Jurors Selected for Communists' Trial

Ten jurors were selected yesterday before Municipal Judge Thomas A. Green in the trial of seventeen alleged communists who were seized during a demonstration north of the Michigan avenue bridge, March 17. The jury will be completed today. A central figure in the trial is Steve Chuck, an agitator, who, it is charged, shot three policemen.

DELAY DEADLINE TO APRIL 23, BUT 25,000 PAY TAX

City Employes to Receive Wages Next Week.

Unaware that the county board finance committee was meeting overhead to extend the delinquency date on 1930 taxes to April 23, thousands of taxpayers jammed the county treasurer's office in the county building yesterday to pay their taxes before the deadline, originally set for today.

The extension was asked by County Treasurer McDonough partly because his office has not facilities to handle the rush of last minute taxpayers. Substations were formerly established at 200 points throughout the county, principally in banks, to handle tax payments, but banks are not accepting them this year.

The county board at its meeting today is expected to adopt the resolution, approved by the finance committee, setting the new delinquency date on April 23. This action must be ratified by the legislature when it reconvenes next week.

25,000 Pay Their Taxes.

More than 25,000 taxpayers paid their taxes yesterday. Police were called to handle the crowds in the treasurer's office and in the auxiliary office established for tax payments in the old Foreman bank building. A record was set for 1930 tax collections. The offices will be open until 9 o'clock tonight, 5 o'clock tomorrow, and all day Sunday.

Edward J. McCabe, assistant to Treasurer McDonough, estimated that yesterday's collection would be between $5,500,000 and $6,000,000. Eight large taxpayers accounted for $4,071,510. They were the New York Central railroad, which paid $999,872; the University of Chicago, $242,061; Union Stock Yards and Transit company, $564,629; Central Manufacturing District, $305,519; Milwaukee railroad, $321,169; Swift & Co., $608,862; Container Corporation of America, $119,398, and the Northern Trust company, which paid $800,000 on real estate and which it holds as trustee.

City Workers to Be Paid.

City employés will receive another two weeks' pay early next week, Mayor Cermak announced yesterday But school employés, who have participated with city workers in the last few pay days arranged by the mayor, will go payless. The school board has no more securities which are acceptable by the city in exchange for funds for school pay rolls.

Controller Szymczak informed Mayor Cermak that the school trustees have issued tax warrants for 60 per cent of their 1931 levy. Chapman & Cutler, bond attorneys, have given an opinion stating that they will not approve purchases beyond this percentage, in view of the uncertainty of tax collections.

1932 Levy Awaiting Approval.

The school board's 1932 levy has not been adopted by the city council, and when it is, officials said, they were doubtful whether the city would find these warrants acceptable. The 1932 school tax levy, totaling $75,398,918, was submitted to the council yesterday and ordered deferred and published. Aldermen were of the opinion that the council might be able to pass the school levy without waiting for the city budget, still in the making.

The city now holds in its aggregate of funds $26,346,000 worth of school board tax warrants. This sum, advanced to the school board, would be sufficient to pay all city employés for six months, Ald. Jacob M. Arvey [24th] stated. Of the warrants held, $17,035,000 worth are 1931 issues, purchased in recent months to pass on to the school board some of the funds which the city obtained from banks by the sale of its tax warrants. Of the remainder, $4,100,000 is in 1928 warrants and $5,211,000 in 1930 warrants.

SEIZE SUSPECTS IN SWINDLES BY FAKE TELEGRAMS

Sergt. Kyran Phelan of the detective bureau left last night for St. Louis to question two men arrested there who are believed to have operated a fake cablegram and telegram racket by which wealthy men were defrauded. The men under arrest are John Richards and Alexander Scheftel.

Accompanying Phelan was Michael Tadelman, 17 years old, of 1253 South Kedzie avenue, a newsboy, who was used as a messenger by the swindlers. Police said he identified a photograph of Richards as one of the schemers.

On March 17 the fake cablegram swindle was perpetrated on Miss Mary Northwood, secretary to Chauncey McCormick. Mr. McCormick was in the West Indies at the time, and a message purporting to come from him was received by Miss Northwood instructing her to pay $6,000 to a Mr. Cunningham for a rare rug. She did so. The rug cost about $5. Mr. McCormick, it is said, told police last night he would prosecute Richards and Scheftel if they are the swindlers.

The secretary of Gordon P. Kelley, head of the Miehle Printing Press and Manufacturing company, was another victim of the fake telegram swindle. Tully Warner, 29 years old, was arrested in an attempt to swindle A. J. Pixley and was later identified as the "Mr. Sand" who obtained $1,100 for fake diamonds from Mr. Kelley's secretary. Police said last night that Warner probably was the "go-between" for the St. Louis prisoners. Attempts to swindle several other wealthy Chicagoans recently were frustrated.

HITLER VISIONS VICTORY DESPITE WRECKED ARMY

Predicts Power in Prussia Will Be His.

BERLIN, April 14.—(AP)—Police raided 150 gathering places of the National Socialist "storm troops" today in carrying out President von Hindenburg's order of yesterday for dissolution of the organization.

They met resistance only at two places where they found some of the troopers trying to remove records. The offenders were arrested. At Hamburg there were a number of other arrests, but some of the prisoners were members of the reichstag and these were released.

Adolf Hitler, National Socialist leader said that the government's order would not put an end to the existence of the storm troops.

"We'll Be Back Stronger."

"We'll be back 600,000 strong," he said. "Our storm troops were suppressed once before when we had only 20,000. When the ban was lifted we had 60,000.

"I tell you that we'll get from 8,000,000 to 9,000,000 votes in the Prussian elections on the 24th. Together with Alfred Hugenberg's Nationalists we'll take over the power and the ban on the troopers will be lifted."

In a statement to his troopers Hitler denounced the order of suppression as "a last blow of despair" by the government, and named April 24, the date of the Prussian diet elections, as "retaliation day."

Nazis Protest to President.

"Our answer," he said, "will not be a parade but a sweeping finishing stroke. As long as I live I belong to you and you belong to me."

Other Nazi leaders showered protests upon President von Hindenburg charging that his order was discriminatory inasmuch as it does not apply to the "Iron Front" organization of the Social Democrats nor to the "Steel Helmets," another military organization of war veterans."

Hitler sent orders to the troopers to avoid any action which might give the government cause for postponing the Prussian election. If they conduct themselves peacefully, he told them. "this blow will recoil a thousand-fold upon those who are responsible."

Hugenberg, the Nationalist leader, expressed apprehension in a campaign statement lest the "Steel Helmets" would be next to go under the ban, while the "Iron Front" would continue as a "civic danger."

The United Patriotic society issued a manifesto condemning the government's action as "kotowing to the Geneva disarmament farce."

This evening the ban on the storm troops was extended also to the Hitler Jugend, a Nazi organization for youths under 21, and it was reported from Brunswick that the great Nazi training center at Kreiensen would be dissolved.

French Influence Denied.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, April 14.—The German government today denied Adolf Hitler's charges that it was acting upon orders of the French government when it dissolved the National Socialist [Fascist] "storm troops."

Many Fascist demonstrations were reported in upper Silesia today in protest against Von Hindenburg's decree. At Breslau police used night sticks to disperse the demonstrators. In central Germany the duke of Coburg loaned his private cars to the Nazi party to aid in moving their property before the police arrived.

Hitler and his chief lieutenants conferred throughout the day with legal experts on ways to oppose the government. It was reported they plan to appeal to the federal supreme court on the ground that the police have overstepped their powers. Chancellor Heinrich Bruening left today for Geneva to confer with Secretary Stimson and European statesmen.

Hitlerites Attack Viennese Editor.

VIENNA, April 14.—Councillor Klebinder, the proprietor of the newspaper Sonnund-Montagszeitung, was assaulted tonight in a restaurant by three armed Hitlerites who struck him with a leather truncheon, a knuckleduster and a riding whip.

The affair was a sequel to the publication by the paper of a special edition saying that the father of Adolf Hitler had borne the name of Schukelgruber until he adopted that of Hitler to obtain an inheritance.

BIG CIRCUS PYTHON TURNS ON MASTERS; 2 PERFORMERS HURT

New York, April 14.—(AP)—A 25 foot python chased thrills up and down the backs of an afternoon audience at Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey circus today by turning on its masters and painfully injuring two performers.

Snapping out of its lethargy while being borne into the arena, the big snake wrenched its armor plated head and huge body away from a file of troupers, wrapped its heavy coils around the body of Luigi Canestrelly, acrobat, and sank its fangs into his bare right arm.

While the acrobat and reptile struggled a score of fellow troupers rushed into the ring and pried the python loose before it could crush its victim to death. In the mêlée the snake loosened its hold on Canestrelly and snapped the finger of Alfred Cardona, noted aerialist.

The performers were taken to the circus hospital where Canestrelly was given an anti-ternus injection for safety sake, although the bite of a python is not poisonous. The cause of the trouble, still hissing and lashing about, was locked securely in his cage and the show went on.

IRVING NETCHER AND HIS BRIDE REACH CHICAGO

Irving Netcher and his bride, the former Roszika Dolly of the Dolly sisters dancing team, arrived in Chicago yesterday from Palm Beach, Fla., on the Illinois Central railroad's Seminole, and went to the Drake hotel for an intended week's stay. They were married March 16 by Mayor James J. Walker in New York.

Roszika was quoted in a dispatch from Paris on the eve of their departure from there March 8 as saying that "if this marriage doesn't take I'm going into a nunnery." Mr. Netcher was asked last night if it had "taken."

"Of course it's taken," he said. "There's not the remotest danger of my wife's retiring to a nunnery."

Mrs. Netcher said that she was through with the stage for good.

Mr. and Mrs. Netcher will attend a birthday party tomorrow night honoring Mr. Netcher's mother, Mrs. Mollie Netcher Newbury, at the Edgewater Beach hotel, he said. At the end of a week they will go to New York, later sailing for Paris, which they will make their home.

Mr. Netcher was divorced in 1930 from his first wife, Constance Reed. Mrs. Netcher has been married twice before, both marriages ending in the divorce court.

Members Banquet on 26th Anniversary.

A group of business men who have not felt the depression attended a jovial banquet last night at the Congress hotel. Waiters and bus boys, accustomed in the last year to serving dolorous diners whose chief topic of conversation is red ink, smiled happily as they attended to the wants of men whose business has actually improved in 1932.

The happy banqueters were members of the Newspaper Carriers' association of Chicago, the men who direct the delivery of newspapers to the homes of Chicago's citizens. More than 600 members and their wives were celebrating the 26th anniversary of the association.

12½ Per Cent Increase for Tribune.

The general topic of conversation was the increase of home delivered circulation of newspapers. THE TRIBUNE, for example, is delivering 12½ per cent more newspapers to homes at present than a year ago. Speakers talked about better times rather than hard times.

Sitting in places of honor at the tables were veteran newspaper carriers, men who have sold and delivered papers for upward of forty years. The publishers, circulation managers, and home delivery department managers present cheered these men as they were introduced.

Widely Known Dealers Present.

Among them were dealers known to thousands: Ray Henshaw, Fred Rice, George Kaiser, John Kanitz, Max Danzig, G. B. Harrison, W. F. Mearns, L. M. Mitchell, and Sam Savitsky.

Officials of the association present were Joseph Epstein, president; Harry Micksell, treasurer; Peter Hummelgaard, vice president, and Albert Zahn, secretary. Circulation managers who attended were Louis Rose of THE TRIBUNE, James Shryock of the Daily News, John Snyder of the Evening Post. Max Annenberg, founder of the association in 1906, flew from Detroit to be present and was cheered by the members.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Poland, Auril 14.—Warsaw police late last night arrested more than 900 communist agitators who had been hiding in dens and cellars of the city. Among those arrested was Marc Lew, counselor of the soviet trade delegation to Poland, and many leaders of the Polish communist party.

The police confiscated large sums of money and documents alleged to prove that the Russian delegation had financed anti-government activities and was preparing widespread communist disturbances for May 1.

The Moscow legation is understood to be filing a protest demanding the release of the prisoners.

'HONOR' CONVICT CAPTURED AFTER KIDNAPING GUARD

Using a butcher knife as a weapon, Albert Manning, 19 years old, an honor convict, kidnaped a guard outside the Stateville prison wall at Joliet yesterday and forced the guard to drive him to Chicago. Manning's liberty was of brief duration. Police seized him last evening in the home of his sister, Mrs. Dorothy Tipton, at 1042 Argyle street.

Manning walked up to Daniel Ingram, the guard, while the latter, off duty, was spading his garden just outside the north entrance of the penitentiary. Brandishing the knife and threatening Ingram with death, Manning compelled him to start his automobile and drive to Chicago.

Daniel Tipton, husband of Manning's sister, who permitted the convict to hide in his home, was arrested on a charge of aiding in a felony.

At 63d and Stony Island avenue Manning abandoned the guard's car and boarded a taxicab with the guard still a captive. Near Argyle street Manning forced Ingram from the cab. Earlier he had robbed him of $42. Ingram notified Summerdale police, then communicated with prison officials.

Records revealed the address of Manning's sister, and Policemen John Donlin, William Nicks, Henry Jaeger, and Al Roesch surrounded the house and found the convict as he was about to leap from a window. Manning entered prison in January, 1930, from La Salle county on a charge of burglary.

CALL TROOPS TO QUELL MINE RIOT; 1 SLAIN, 30 HURT

New Outbreak Feared in Ohio Coal Fields.

Columbus, O., April 14.—(AP)—The Ohio National Guard tonight moved into the eastern Ohio bituminous coal mine strike area, where one man was killed today and about thirty others injured in serious rioting.

Adj. Gen. Frank D. Henderson called out the guard after a conference at which John Cinque of Bellaire, president of the eastern district of the Ohio United Mine Workers, said he could be responsible for his own men but not for other striking workers.

Fear More Trouble.

The Third battalion of the 145th infantry at Akron, the 166th service company at Columbus, and the medical detachment at Cleveland were ordered mobilized at Cadiz, in Harrison county. The 145th, consisting of 270 men, had been standing by at Akron all day and entrained immediately.

The Somers mine of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company, near Adena, scene of today's rioting, was quiet tonight. National Guard observers and Harrison county deputies, however, feared the invaders might return to the district and continue their own efforts to persuade working miners to answer the strike call issued April 1 by the United Mine Workers.

In the meantime, Secretary of Labor William N. Doak telegraphed Ohio operators and union officials to meet with him in Washington next Wednesday, when efforts will be made to settle their differences. Union leaders said they would attend the session.

Striker Shot to Death.

The rioting at the Somers mine was the most serious since the coal diggers in a majority of the Ohio fields walked out in protest against wage reductions. More than 500 men sought to induce the workers to strike. The workers refused, and while en route to the mine with guard officers and deputy sheriffs were bombarded with stones. About 30 were injured. At the mine mouth a general fight occurred. Walter Kimbel, a striker, was shot and killed, and another man was wounded in the leg.

Sheriff Maurice Wooster and his deputies drove off the assailants with tear gas bombs; order was restored, and the miners went to work.

Guard officers said Kimbel was killed by a bullet from the gun of an unidentified person, but the strikers claimed he was felled by a shot from a gun in the hand of a guard officer.

Hunt Furniture Mover as Woman Dies of Injuries

Police searched last night for Herman Harman, 2617 Sheffield avenue, a furniture mover, following the death during the day of Mrs. Mary Mirabelli, 49 years old, 9555 Commercial avenue. On April 4 Mrs. Mirabelli discovered that Harman and some other movers were taking the furniture of a tenant out of a flat in the building which she owns at the Commercial avenue address. She demanded that they stop, asserting that the tenant owed her rent. Herman, it is charged, pushed her down a flight of stairs when she stood in his path. He was arrested on a charge of assault the following day, and released on a $25 bond.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste, and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

BOARD OF TRADE AND GRAIN CORP. SWAP CHARGES

U.S. Agency Presses Fight for Membership.

Charges and counter-charges continued to fly back and forth yesterday between officials of the Chicago Board of Trade and C. E. Huff, president of the Farmers' National Grain corporation, who appealed to Secretary of Agriculture Hyde on Wednesday to take away the license of the board.

From the Board of Trade came a statement that "ill advised announcements" of the federal farm board and the department of agriculture have disturbed grain markets and depressed prices throughout the world.

From Mr. Huff, on behalf of the $20,000,000 corporation created by the farm board, came a second statement declaring that his organization and its affiliates were the only ones striving to hold up grain price levels against persistent bear raids.

Answers Board of Trade.

Moreover, the grain corporation head added, the Board of Trade is "stubbornly refusing to comply with provisions of the federal statutes for wholly selfish reasons." He asserted that his organization had made a number of unsuccessful efforts to obtain recognition from the board and that he would continue his efforts to close the grain pits to all trading unless full privileges are granted the Farmers' National and its subsidiary the Updike Grain company.

The differences between the exchange and the corporation were brought into the open on Tuesday, when it was revealed that the clearing corporation of the Board of Trade had moved to expel the Updike company. A membership in the clearing corporation is necessary in clearing trades made in the pits.

According to members of the Board of Trade, the majority of the members have always voted to allow true farm coöperatives to function as full members. But their spokesmen maintain that the Updike company is not a coöperative.

Charges Blow at Co-ops.

In reply to these arguments against his group Mr. Huff said:

"It is apparent that every possible effort is to be made by a certain element in the private grain trade to prevent further growth of the cooperative movement.

"Peter B. Carey, president of the Board of Trade, finds the grain markets somewhat improved as to price levels and is fearful that our actions may result in an unfavorable turn in the grain markets and no end of injury to business in general. He should be reminded that the Farmers' National Grain corporation and its affiliated cooperatives are the only agencies consistently attempting to maintain price levels against frequent efforts of speculative bear raiders in the private grain trade to hammer down the level of grain prices."

Grain Exchange's Side.

The other side of the picture, as presented in the Board of Trade statement, was:

"Great uneasiness resulted from the request to Secretary Hyde to revoke the board's license as a contract market. Panicky announcements in recent weeks, statements and denials of various government and farm organization officials, were declared on the Liverpool market yesterday to have tumbled over each other in confusion, while markets have become demoralized and declining prices have occasioned still further losses to farmers the world over."

Arthur F. Lindley, president of the board's clearing corporation, asserted that the refusal to admit the government financed grain company to membership was "inescapable." However, another hearing on the application of the Updike company will be held by the clearing corporation directors on Tuesday.

Leaves for Washington.

Mr. Carey left yesterday for Washington, ostensibly to confer on tax matters with governmental officials, but it is believed he will see Secretary Hyde about the Huff request for closing of the Board of Trade.

Every indication has been given that the Board of Trade will stand pat and fight against all efforts to force it to accept members it does not want. The battle will be carried on not only in Washington but among the grain farmers of the middle west.

Lawrence Farlow, secretary of the Farmers Grain Dealers' association, whose officials will meet today at Jerseyville, Ill., said last night that resolutions would be passed condemning "political interference through the department of agriculture and the farm board's agencies."

URGES CANADA TO TAKE OVER RADIUM FIELDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., April 14.—Government control of Canada's newly discovered vast radium deposits at Great Bear lake by the formation of a commission and the utilization of Canadian supplies to break the allegedly profiteering Belgian radium trust in the interests of world cancer sufferers was urged by Senator Alexander D. McRae in the senate here today.

The Belgian trust, said Senator McRae, had fixed radium price at $70,000 a gram retail, and $50,000 a gram wholesale, whereas Canada could produce radium from Great Bear lake pitchblende at $10,000 a gram. Six hundred tons of Canadium pitchblende, the senator declared, would supply the demand of the world for a year.

Mr. McRae urged the whole new radium field taken over by the government, with stakers of claims to be bought out at generous prices.

GEN. MA READY TO ATTACK JAPS' PUPPET DICTATOR

Plan to Advance Into Manchuria from North.

SHANGHAI, April 14.—(AP)—War and preparations for war in two spots far removed from Shanghai stirred China today, and "communism" dotted dispatches describing the conflicts. The two spots were Harbin, Manchuria, and Amoy, Cantonese China, almost equidistant from Shanghai, Amoy being about 850 miles southwest and Harbin about 900 miles northwest.

Dispatches from Harbin told of increasing opposition to the new state of Manchoukuo and stressed that Gen. Ma Chan Shan had withdrawn his support from the Japanese sponsored Henry Pu-Yi and had established headquarters on Soviet Russian territory

To Attack from North.

He intended to attack Manchoukuo from the north, it was said, and at present was at Blagovestchensk, Siberia, just across the river from his former capital, Heilungkiang, in the state of Heilungkiang, Manchuria.

Corean and Chinese communists were reported assisting Chinese irregulars throughout northeastern Heilungkiang.

These dispatches apparently were confirmed by the Rengo [Japanese] news agency correspondent at Harbin, who said that Chinese rebels in Kirin had captured the town of Pogranitchnaya, in Kirin province on the Soviet Russian border. Japanese cavalry was sent up to Imienpo, 150 miles away. Japanese military authorities at Harbin blamed the wreck of a troop train this week with the loss of 11 lives on "Red terrorists."

Amoy dispatches said Chinese Red armies in Fukien province, against whom the Nanking government recently sent large bodies of troops in an effort to head off civil war, were converging on Changchow in retreat.

British Ask for Warship.

British missionaries at Changchow, 25 miles west of Amoy, were reported evacuating as the communist troops approached. Foreigners at Amoy were uneasy and British officials asked for a warship to protect the port.

Meanwhile peace parleys in the old Shanghai war zone were at a standstill, with Mamoru Shigemitsu, the Japanese minister to China, verbally attacking the Chinese reference of peace proposals to the league of nations.

He said this action signified the collapse of the parleys and left the way open for Japan to take any action she may deem necessary to protect her interests.

League Body Meets Tomorrow.

GENEVA, April 14.—(AP)—The committee of 19 of the league of nations assembly will meet here next Saturday to consider the situation at Shanghai.

In 1916 the Negro regiment which he then commanded as colonel was federalized and sent to the Mexican border. A year later Gen. Denison, still a colonel, was sent overseas with his organization and fought with the French troops.

After the war Col. Denison was made a brigadier general. He retired in 1922 at his own request. In private life he was a lawyer, and for thirty-five years had law offices at 36 West Randolph street. He served as an assistant corporation counsel and assistant attorney general.

Minneapolis, Minn., April 14.—(AP)—Mayor W. A. Anderson today vetoed salary reductions for city employés voted by the council last week, calling such a move "false economy." PLEA OF TOWNS IN GAS HEARING IS TURNED DOWN

Motion for Quick Hearing Denied.

The Illinois commerce commission preëmptorily denied a motion presented yesterday by the Illinois Municipal league asking an immediate hearing to bring about a reduction in the temporary rate charged for natural gas by the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, said rate to continue in force until the commerce commission fixes a permanent rate.

The motion was offered by Attorney Harry R. Booth, counsel for twenty-eight municipalities in the league. He cited complaints of consumers that their gas bills are higher now than they were before the commission ordered a so-called reduction six months ago and quoted a statement of Samuel Insull, head of the Public Service company, that the concern was earning more money under the "reduced" rate than hitherto.

Chairman Appears Impatient.

G. Gale Gilbert of Mount Vernon, chairman of the commission, appeared impatient with Mr. Booth. He and the other commissioners advanced the view that the hearing asked by the Municipal league would serve only to delay a final adjudication of the case.

"This petition is too general and indefinite," Chairman Gilbert objected at one point. Mr. Booth started to explain that the Municipal league was merely seeking to have the utility produce records showing what profit it has made under the new rate.

"You may talk when I get through," Chairman Gilbert said. "You are to be polite."

Wants Company Data.

The petition pointed out that gas consumers are not in the habit of keeping their bills from year to year and took the position that evidence bearing on the experimental rate could best be obtained if the commission would have the company produce data.

Commissioner J. Paul Kuhn interjected a remark that the motion proposed nothing which the commission was not already doing or contemplated doing. Mr. Kuhn announced that he did not propose "to have a lawyer gain credit for what we intend doing anyway."

With the skirmishing over, Assistant Commissioner Robert Farrell proceeded with the hearing in which Assistant Corporation Counsel Joseph Grossman is seeking to secure a reduced permanent gas rate on behalf of Chicago from another Insull company, the Peoples Gas, Light and Coke company. Mr. Grossman devoted the day to cross-examination of various officials of the company on the cost figures they have offered in justification of the present temporary rate. The hearing will continue today.

3 GENERATIONS ON JOB CENTURY AS U. S. CONSULS

Washington, D. C., April 14.—(AP)—For a whole century the Stars and Stripes have been kept flying over the American consulate at Gibraltar by one family, the Spragues.

Today the state department dispatched letters of congratulation to Richard L. Sprague, the present consul, upon attainment of a centenary of service unequaled in American history.

It was Richard L.'s grandfather, Horatio, Boston merchant, whom President Jackson named in 1832 to represent the United States at the gigantic rock fortress of Great Britain guarding the entrance to the Mediterranean. He served until his death in 1848, when his son, Horatio Jones Sprague, succeeded. The second Horatio died in 1901 and his son took charge. The second Consul Sprague entertained three American ex-Presidents, Fillmore, Pierce, and Grant, and extended the hospitality of the consulate to Admiral Dewey when the latter was on his way home from the Philippines.

ORDERS DIVORCE SUIT WITNESSES TO LEAVE TOWN

Frank Ahern, 9140 Western avenue, one of the owners of the Evergreen Golf club, was granted a divorce yesterday when Judge Craig Hood, sitting in the Circuit court, found Mrs. Stella Ahern guilty of adultery. Similar charges brought by Mrs. Ahern against her husband were dismissed and the judge ordered two witnesses who appeared for her to "get out of town."

The witnesses were Miss Martha Pubanz of Manawa, Wis., and Gerald McKune, 804 Rush street, both formerly employed at the golf club. They contradicted their statements repeatedly when cross-examined by Attorney Benjamin B. Davis.

Ahern charged that his wife had been found in the apartment of a grocer, Nick Mouloulas, when it was raided in March, 1929. Recently Mrs. Ahern lost a $100,000 suit for alienation of affections against her mother-in-law, Mrs. Anna Ahern.

HOSPITAL STRIKE SETTLED; ALL TO GET BACK JOBS

Settlement of the strike of 41 attendants and orderlies of the psychopathic hospital was virtually assured yesterday. An agreement to take back all the strikers and 27 others previously discharged was reached by union labor officials and a committee representing the board of directors of the Cook County School of Nursing.

After the 68 are taken back, any eliminations of attendants deemed necessary will be made upon the basis of length of service, it was decided, the newer employés to be dismissed first. This will mean that some of the 27 workers originally discharged will be retained because of their seniority.

John Fitzpatrick, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor, accepted the compromise on behalf of the unions only after he had harangued the county commissioners for an hour, attacking the administration of the nursing school.

"This whole trouble is the fault of Frank S. Shaw, president of the board of directors of the school, and Miss Laura Logan, dean of nurses," he said. "In selecting attendants for dismissal they were animated by personal prejudices. They fired experienced attendants of 15 years' service favorites."

50,000 ASK BRITAIN TO PAY FARE HOME FROM AUSTRALIA

LONDON, April 14.—(AP)—The house of commons has received a petition signed by 50,000 persons who describe themselves as British-born emigrants to Australia and who ask repatriation to England.

They said they were induced to leave their homes for Australia by propaganda issued by the Australian commonwealth and state governments, but which proved to be "extravagant, misleading, and in many cases indubitably false."

In the last two months the house has discussed this situation several times and a few days ago J. H. Thomas, secretary for dominions, said the government could not consider providing return passage.

C. L. DOUGHERTY, PIONEER GRAIN MAN, ENDS LIFE

Charles L. Dougherty, veteran board of trade member, committed suicide yesterday in his home at 4500 Ellis avenue by shooting himself. He was 72 years old and had been a board of trade member from 1885 to 1929 as head of C. L. Dougherty & Co. Miss Alma Anderson, housekeeper for the Dougherty family for 35 years, heard the shot and found the body in his bedroom. A .25 caliber pistol was on the floor.

"He had grieved over the death of his wife who was taken ill just about three years ago at this date and died May 6, 1929," Miss Anderson told police. "He often said he was sorry he had lived so long and whenever a friend died he would say 'Isn't he lucky?' Yesterday he got out a picture of a group of his friends and remarked, 'They are all dead but me'."

He retired from business in June, 1929. Since then he suffered three strokes and had been partially paralyzed. He is survived by a son, D. R. Dougherty of Washington, D. C.

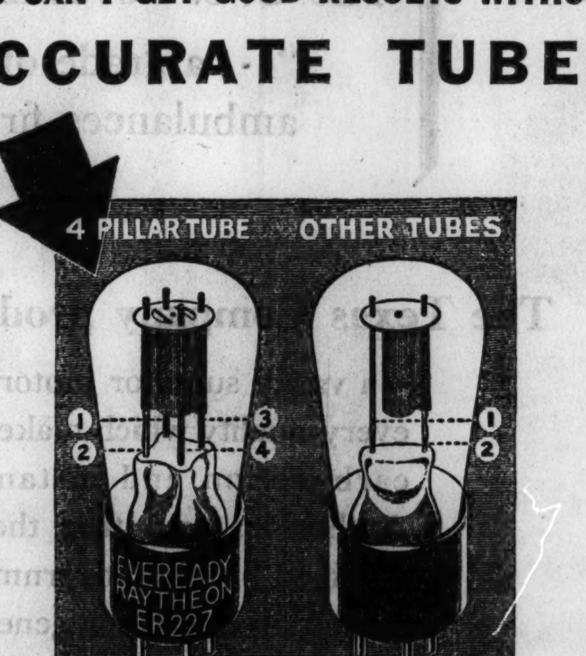
YOU CAN'T GET GOOD RESULTS WITHOUT

ACCURATE TUBES



WHEN radio tubes are made, they are adjusted to give true tone. But they get knocked and jolted in shipment and handling . . . they are shaken in usage by the vibration of powerful dynamic speakers.

Unless a tube is strong, it may lose its vital accuracy. Eveready Raytheon 4-pillar Tubes have four sturdy pillars to anchor their elements in place. All other tubes use only two supports, and are easily damaged in handling and usage.

Your dealer can demonstrate the superiority of 4-pillar tubes. To realize what a wonderful improvement they can make, install a set of 4-pillar tubes throughout!

EVANSTON OPENS DRIVE TUESDAY TO INCREASE JOBS

Evanston next Tuesday will inaugurate the "Evanston Emergency Plan," modeled on that of Rochester, N. Y., with the aim of relieving unemployment and restoring the normal volume of spending by those who are able to spend.

From April 19 until May 3 canvassers will visit homes in the north shore suburb and ask householders to sign cards pledging a definite amount of spending. This pledge reads:

"Believing that the principle of normal spending within my means will benefit myself and others, which in turn will help the whole community, I hereby pledge that I will, during the next three months expend approximately $.... in improving my home, factory, store, buildings or grounds by purchasing desirable equipment or by making additions, repairs or alterations, or by making personal purchases for myself, family or friends, which otherwise might be deferred."

More than five hundred members of the American Legion auxiliary will meet at 9:30 a. m. today in the grand ballroom of the Hotel La Salle preliminary to a one day canvass of the downtown business district in the Chicago Legion campaign for the reëmployment of men and money. The workers will be under the direction of Mrs. Marcia Raber, president of the Cook county council of the Legion auxiliary.

CITY EMPLOYE GUILTY OF PLOT TO "FIX" CASE

Samuel Koppel, an employé of the city department of streets, and Charles Lefkovitz, a convicted bandit, were found guilty of conspiracy to obstruct justice in connection with a plot to "fix" an attempted robbery case before Judge George Fred Rush in a bench trial in the Criminal court yesterday. The defendants were sentenced to a year each in the Bridewell.

Evidence of the conspiracy was presented by Assistant State's Attorney Henry Seyfarth, who contended that Koppel, a Democratic precinct captain, had acted as an intermediary for Lefkovitz.

Lefkovitz is alleged to have tried to hold up the grocery store of Morris Kaufman and Abe Meyerson at 2112 Division street. In court yesterday Kaufman and Meyerson testified that Koppel had paid them $50 apiece on their promise that they would not appear against Lefkovitz.

Lefkovitz was subsequently found guilty of attempted robbery and placed on probation. Then he and Koppel were indicted by the grand jury on the conspiracy charges.

Family Album Collection Put on Exhibition

Hobby of Park Fieldhouse Director.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

WHAT if the old plush covered family album flourished today? Think of the volumes that would repose on the living room tables of Jimmy Walker and the prince of Wales, generally conceded to be the most photographed men of this modern era; King Albert, with a reputation for submitting to the lens more graciously than any other representative of royalty, or Herbert Hoover, the despair of Washington cameramen.

This was the thought that ran through my head yesterday when looking over one of the most unusual collections I have seen in many a day—a collection of old family albums representing most every type of binding, practically every variety of picture, and many of the leading photographers of the Victorian era. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bosserman, who have gathered together these three or four dozen albums, say they have a unique hobby. Who else, except perhaps a commercial photographer, has even thought of assembling a group of these cozy, latched volumes that were the chief delight of society four, five, and six decades ago?

On Display at Park Fieldhouse

Mr. Bosserman has placed the collection on display at the Gage park fieldhouse, where he is the director and very generously welcomes visitors to see it. Women's clubs and students, from the University of Chicago in particular, have frequently manifest their interest in the exhibit.

"It's just a personal hobby," Mr. Bosserman remarked yesterday, "but I'm glad to share it with those who are interested. The various types of covers are characteristic of different parts of the country, as well as the families that owned them. Take this album, for instance, which represents Pennsylvania with grain embossed in metal on its plush cover. It belonged to a family with extensive agricultural interests. The albums conservatively bound in dark leather, stenciled in gold, come from Boston nine times out of ten."

There is more unusual interest, perhaps, in the big double-decker album that opens out and then opens out again, or in the figured plush book that reclines on a miniature easel. Another volume provided additional entertainment for the Sunday afternoon caller in the '80s and '90s with a hidden music box that starts to play as soon as the book is opened. Then there are portrait books with mirrors, pictures of the owners, or ivories for covers.

When Photographs Were Novelty

The album reigned supreme in the home living room the last half of the 19th century, when the photograph was still more or less of a novelty. The big volumes were preceded by the little miniatures, ample in size, for most of the pictures finished back around the '50s. Two of these are included in the Bosserman collection.

It is really an evening's amusement to look through the old books, for there is something delightful and wistful in the photos of the '60s and '70s and earlier, hard and glossy as many of them are. On one page is a crinolined debutante who visited one of the studios where "ladies had the attendance of a respectable female," and on another a top hatted broadclothed gentleman. They might well be illustrations for a Trollope novel.

For those interested in the beginnings of commercial photography there is a pretty problem since both France and England claim the honor of the invention and the scales are nicely balanced between the disputants. What actually happened seems to have been that in 1802 Tom Wedgewood, the son of the great potter, conceived the idea of and invented the process for recording objects by the action of light on paper sensitized with silver nitrate, but he arrived at no method of fixing the impressions received. No further progress was made until Nicephone Niepce of Chalon sur Seine, a French country gentleman of a scientific turn of mind, who had already attempted to invent a motor boat and very nearly succeeded, commenced experiments about 1814 with the object of securing the pictures seen in the "camera obscura."

Somewhere about 1825 Niepce actually obtained pictures in his "camera obscura" on metal plates coated with bitumen, and about the same time Daguerre in Paris began to experiment along the same lines. He heard rumors of Niepce's achievements and wrote him asking him to explain his process. But the letter was coldly received, comprehensible, of course, since Niepce was something of an aristocrat and Daguerre a showman.

Not until Niepce met Daguerre by accident in a Parisian optician's shop buying lenses was he disposed to take the showman seriously as a scientific experimenter. Niepce died before more postive results were reached and Daguerre alone received the credit for the invention in 1839 of the daguerreotype, the forerunner of the modern photograph.

Jimmy Cagney a Holdout for Higher Salary

His $1,400 a Week Doesn't Satisfy Now.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., April 14.—It is bad luck either for Jimmy Cagney, new Warner Bros.' star, or for the Warner studio, that the studio set the example of paying $675,000 for two years' work to Bill Powell, because Mr. Cagney can't seem to swallow his own pay roll figure of $1,400 a week in comparison with the heavier figures of others so close at hand.

Cagney skyrocketed to fame last year from an absolutely unknown start in the movies. Appearing in a couple of successes, he was given a Warner contract for $550 a week. Following this by appearing in a couple more hits, Cagney's salary was raised to its present figure last September, but not until he had declared a one man strike against the studio to insist on an upward revision.

Now Cagney is in New York again. He was scheduled to start a feature part in Warner's newspaper columnist story, "Blessed Event," next Monday, but sent a nonchalant notice that he won't be here in time.

It is interpreted as another hint to the studio to raise Cagney's salary. Inasmuch as Cagney's pictures, like "Public Enemy," "Taxi," "Blonde Crazy," and the most recent, "The Crowd Roars," have been credited with surpassing the best drawing power of Powell films, and even of Ruth Chatterton's (who is drawing $675,000 for two years' work for Warner's), Cagney feels an utterly human urge to share with his employers in some of the big money he is bringing in.

Incidentally I am told that one of the major studios offered Warners a bonus of between $100,000 and $200,000 to purchase Cagney's contract from Warners, but the latter studio would not sell. And Universal tried a couple of times to rent Cagney's services at $50,000 a picture—the money to go to the actor's employers. This, together with the fact that Erlangers in New York wanted to pay Jimmy $5,000 a week to appear on the stage in one production there possibly makes it pardonable for Cagney to be thinking in big money terms himself.

Mae Clark is reported improving steadily in Santa Monica Rest Home, where she has been spending the last two months recuperating from a partial breakdown.

Fred Beetson, local head of the Will Hays Producers' organization, will wed Mabel Johnson, former head of the Central Casting Office Call bureau, on April 27, the fifty-fourth wedding anniversary of Beetson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Beetson. Miss Johnson formerly was employed at Paramount studio before going to Central Casting, which is affiliated with the Hays organization. Mrs. Minnie Beetson, the film official's former wife, recently received a final decree of divorce. Beetson formerly was active in Republican politics in New York state.

The marriage of Charlotte Jones, motion picture actress from Chicago, and Albert Dion Barr-Smith, Australian stage actor, today was announced as taking place at Calabas near Los Angeles April 5. Miss Jones, who recently played parts in "Torchy" comedies, in "Hold Everything," and who doubled for Sylvia Sidney, formerly was Mrs. Aaron J. Jones Jr. of Chicago, but secured a divorce there from the manager of the Chicago Erlanger theater in 1927. She and Barr-Smith are honeymooning in San Francisco. Barr-Smith is an actor with the Ruth Chatterton-Ralph Forbes company now putting on "Let Us Divorce" in San Francisco. Miss Jones is 24 years of age. Barr-Smith is 28. They were married by Justice of the Peace Arthur W. Sleeper of Calabas.

Celebrate Two Birthdays in British Royal Family

LONDON, April 14—(AP)—Two members of the British royal family celebrated birthdays today, but both were abroad. Princess Beatrice, King George's aunt and mother, of the former queen of Spain, was 75. She spent the day quietly at San Remo, on the Italian Riviera. The earl of Athlone, brother of Queen Mary, was 58. He is traveling abroad with his wife, Princess Alice.

For Children

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

A common complaint made by lots of parents about furniture for children is that boys and girls so soon outgrow their beds, chairs, etc. And then where are you?

Manufacturers have cudgeled their brains and the clever little maple desk-bureau pictured is one of the answers. It will be useful and practical always; not just when Junior is six or seven but when he is much older, for the writing compartment, which closes like a drawer, is removable and fits into the space now occupied by the top drawer. When the desk is thus arranged an adult can use it with ease.

Another nice feature about this piece of furniture is that it is made as carefully and with as much attention to line and design as if it were intended for a grownup. There is, too, a nice absence of the too familiar rollicking rabbit, plump puppies, and other animals that are often painted on children's furniture and that are quickly dated.

List Fashion Features for 1932 Models

Writer Tells What Makes Clothes New.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

EACH season this fashion merry-go-round operates more and more like one of the greatest of American institutions, the automobile show . . . each season the same famous cars are presented, ingeniously improved upon, with enough new gadgets to make us quite dissatisfied with last year's models, some gay new paint colors to distract, and then the urge to buy gets its start.

And the same clever tricks are staged with new spring clothes . . . coats, suits and dresses, the indispensables of every wardrobe, are always good, but the 1932 models are as new and glistening and smart and as different from last year's versions as the same comparative improvements in motor cars.

Your wheel base as usual remains the same . . . but the streamlines this year are longer and more slender . . . good new color schemes include two and three color combinations, but the models of 1932 are particularly noticeable for the tricky little gadgets and accessories that were not part of the equipment last season.

Markings for 1932 Models.

Since no printed instructions are issued to prospective buyers by the makers, the spring fashions to insist upon are high waistlines, high, wide and handsomely handled shoulders, skirt sections that depend on their biased cut to cling properly, and the scarf girdles that knot and cross and double cross themselves in a most intricate manner.

You can tell a 1932 coat by the fabric . . . which should be rough crêpe-like wool . . . the sleeves are loose and long . . . the smartest styles have either huge buttons or metal clips . . . capes are thrown about the shoulders of the unfurred models, and, whether you select a furless coat or the afternoon models loaded with fur, be sure that the one you decide upon is long and completely covering.

The 1932 dresses are a great improvement over last year's . . . this season they are longer and more picturesque . . . the newest material is a silk crêpe that looks exactly like crinkled crêpe paper . . . much rougher and bumpier than last year's pet. Prints will always be with us . . . that is, good, well behaved and restrained prints that will be seen and not heard . . . prints that will make you look sleek and neat, never fluttering and flittering.

Predict Big Dots for Summer.

And if you like old things brought up to date you can sink a lot of your budget in dots, for as the days grow longer and warmer dotted apparel will dash smartly all around the clock . . . one of the newest evening gowns is made of corn flower blue crêpe with dollar dots about six inches apart . . . the windup sash is of three wild colors, scarlet, bright blue and jade green.

The 1932 accessories go in for shine and polish . . . the smartest hats are the kind that positively gleam . . . consequently there's a run on the supply of black patent leather pumps and oxfords . . . bags follow the straight and narrow pathway made by the shoes and lend a fashionable luster to all spring ensembles.

Extra attractions for your wardrobes are highly colored and also polished costume jewelry, especially the new ivory beads and ball earrings . . . and patent leather belts and hat bands and even stiff little bows for tailored trimness. Everything gleams this season . . . even the new low price marks that are shining examples of smart reasonableness!

Society Backs Jobless Men in Show Plans

'Breadline Frolics' to Be Given in Loop.

BY JUDITH CASS.

IT is hard to know where to begin to tell about the "Breadline Frolics" to open Monday evening, April 25, by jobless and homeless men of the city's shelters, for there is so much to tell, but perhaps the first thing to explain in this column is society's interest and part in it.

Mrs. Waller Borden, at whose residence the society editors heard about the show over a cup of tea yesterday, modestly claims a very small part in it, but those who know how industriously she has labored for months to bring some ray of sunshine into the lives of the thousands who are living in the shelters know that she really is the "angel" of the show.

It all started months ago when she heard through Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy and Mrs. Charles G. King, both ardent workers for the Joint Emergency Relief fund, that the men in the shelters were to have no Christmas cheer. She canvassed her friends and their clubs and got together socks and cigarets, and saw that every man had something to make Christmas different from every other day.

From this contact she learned how necessary it was for these men to have "playthings," so she secured boxing gloves, musical instruments, playing cards, games, and six pianos for them, and it was then that the men began singing and doing "stunts" to amuse themselves.

Since then at various times Mrs. Borden has gone to the shelters and seen the "stunts" and at last she said that if a professional theatrical man thought as much of the show as she did, she would help the men put it on at a loop theater. The man, Guy Robertson, saw it and agreed that it was a "grand show," and said that he would help by rehearsing the men, and so the "Breadline Frolics" started.

Men Insist on That Name.

Mrs. Borden wanted to call it by a more dignified title, but the men themselves would have nothing but the snappier, more descriptive title. Mrs. Borden secured the Majestic theater from Otto W. Lehmann and gathered together a committee, called the producers and workers' committee, to put the opening night over in a big way, but the men are doing all the rest of the work—cleaning the theater, lettering the posters by hand, and all the other details. Rehearsals started last Monday afternoon and those who have seen them say the show really is a "wow."

Every penny taken in at the box office will be used to give the men of the shelters the necessary start to go

VARIOUS BEEF ROASTS' PRIME ATTRIBUTES TOLD

Many Varieties All Have Their Points.

BY VIRGINIA THOMPSON.

As one roast of beef said to another, "You may be a better cut to American cooks, but I am very well known to French cooks. And I am becoming better acquainted with American cooks every day." Whereupon the big butcher shop resolved itself into a hubbub of beef voices, with the sirloin butt shouting at the rib roast, and a veritable babel of all the other five pounders of beef chiming in.

Thanks to my timely intervention, there was no open warfare. However, I had to promise that I would put the matter up to you, giving you the merits and claims of each, that you might determine which roast or roasts was the favored one in your household. Here they are!

Sirloin Butt Favored.

Now the sirloin butt roast has many advantages in its argument that it is a delicious chunk of solid meat, quite lean, and yet interspersed with sufficient fat to warrant a completed juicy roast. It is peculiarly adapted for large social functions in that it is easy to carve and makes for quicker and more efficient meat service. The meat is seared in a very hot oven, following which the heat is reduced to moderate, and about eighteen minutes is allowed for each pound involved. As with other meats, potatoes may be added during the last forty minutes of roasting, and provide a saving of time and fuel, as well as an excellent means of treating that vegetable.

The rib roast was correct in one thing that he said: he is an old friend of most housewives. We will wager that you didn't know though, that the rib roast is taken from the next wholesale cut to the sirloin butt, and both are outstanding for excellence of beef flavor. The rib's clinching argument is that he has been famous for lo these many years at king's banquets, presidents' dinners, and the like.

With Yorkshire Pudding.

True, with Yorkshire pudding, he is no mean competitor. He tells us that the pudding is at its best when it is baked in the same pan with the meat, during the last half hour of the roasting, right under the meat rack, for it absorbs flavor from the beef drippings present. If you are one who favors the rib cut of beef, remember that [after the twenty minutes searing process] each pound requires sixteen, twenty-two, and thirty minutes for rare, medium, and well-done beef, respectively.

Dealers are most obliging about the boning of shoulder cuts of meat, so that is why the rolled shoulder roast can make a strong plea for your attention. He is truly a lord of all he surveys when he comes steaming, juicy, and flavorsome to our tables. If the roast has but a small amount of fat about it, have the butcher wrap some about the meat, or else add some suet or bacon fat to the roasting pan. Baste frequently, as you do for all methods of cooking by "dry heat." Or again, the cook may cover her pan, after the searing has been accomplished, and roast—up to the last thirty minutes—with a close fitting cover. The convenience of this size roast makes it an excellent offering for family or church menus. Take about twenty minutes for each pound.

May Roast With Bone.

Although the shoulder is generally boned, it may be roasted with the bone. The treatment followed in cooking, however, is similar, or it may be pot-roasted, or again, it may be cooked with tomato, stock, and other vegetable additions. With the bone in it, a shoulder roast, and this is the same as a "chuck roast," will take about twenty-five minutes for each pound of meat. Cabbage is good cooked with it. Carrots, onions, tomatoes, and other root vegetables are good. Choose your own assortment, and be a liberal young woman with your seasonings.

Well seasoned with vegetable juices, immersed in egg and crumbs—nice soft fine white crumbs—and then gently tumbled into deep fat—that is the cookery method which makes the short rib roasts hold up their hands for attention and praise. This is the roast cut, but instead of being whipped into a hot oven, the roast is cut, in one's own kitchen, into three inch strips before cooking. But the ribs tell us that they are also mighty good if they are simmered with peppercorns, bay leaf, and thyme, and offered to spring palates in that form. Either way they honor the navel wholesale cut from which they are taken. Served with stuffed green peppers, a glorified spinach ring, and a fresh strawberry dessert—well, do more than use your imaginations!

Water Added to Pan.

In Brittany, baked stuffed onions, savoring of the rump roast's own gravy, accompany this lean and firm beef cut. The meat is seared, and since it is lean, water is added to the roasting pan for the basting. Use only enough to keep the beef from burning, and add more, from time to time, as necessary. Season the onion stuffing with parsley, a drop or two of garlic juice, and a tablespoon of spicy kitchen sauce. Then lay these buxom vegetables about the roast, during the last hour's baking, and they will impart flavor to the meat as well as absorb some of its rich meaty relish.

In consideration of the many beef roasts now reclining in the neighborhood markets—let us know which you prefer. It would indeed be hard to pass judgment upon them as they repose in all their cherry red and mellow white beauty there—so take them home to your own kitchens,—before you give the honors to one certain cut. We would like to know your decision.

KNOW YOUR ROAST BEEF

CITY SEALER'S 'DON'TS' GUARD HONEST WEIGHT FOR WISE HOUSEWIVES

One way of getting honest weight, if you're suspicious of a dealer's measures, according to City Sealer Grein, is to observe the "don'ts" which he has listed for the benefits of housewives. Some of them are:

"Don't gossip with your merchant until you are sure he won't cheat while distracting your attention with chatter.

"Don't be afraid to examine the scales to make sure they are correct.

"Don't buy commodities in dented measures, or let the merchant use liquid measures for measuring fruits and vegetables.

"Don't accept coal by the bushel basket until you have made sure that the basket hasn't a false bottom.

"Don't accept a package of sugar or flour weighed in advance unless it is reweighed in your presence.

"And if those don't work," said Mr. Grein, "don't forget to notify me if you suspect a dealer of giving you short weight, as that is one way to help catch and punish offenders."

ONE-DISH DINNER SAVES TIME AND IS EASY ON PURSE

A whole dinner in one dish makes an inexpensive, time saving meal, especially for busy mothers of large families.

Onion soup with cheese is one of the most tempting of these one-dish meals. Made with meat stock, and served with toasted slices of bread and plenty of cheese, this soup is not only filling but a highly nutritious and ample meal. A cheap and satisfying addition to it, if desired, is cornbread, with its store of fuel food to add to the various nutrients of the soup.

Meat stew, made of beef, lamb, or oxtail, with a mixture of vegetables and a breadstuff of some kind—dumplings, whole grains of wheat, or barley—contains all the essential kinds of food at very low cost. Serve in addition, if desired, dried apricots, raisins, or prunes, to give variety of flavor and a finish to the meal.

GOOD SAUSAGES PROVIDE THRILL FOR THE PALATE

Imagination and the palate as well can get a thrill from properly made dry sausages, which are numerous as to names and tastes, shapes, and twine knots.

There's Genoa sausage, about which the twine runs in nautical loops and hitches, reminding one that Genoa was famous for its sausage, ships, and sailors even back in the middle ages. The people of Milan are accused of not being able to forget the tall, straight lines of their cathedral in making sausages, for the Milano type is corded with the twine running in lengthwise strands and reminding one of church spires.

Selected cuts of meat are used in making the best types of dry sausage, which is allowed to dry and cure slowly so that it is compact and concentrated.

Among the spicy, unsmoked dry sausages of the Italian type are Milano, Salami, Cappicoli, D'Arles, Frizzes, Pepperoni, and Allessandria. The unsmoked and lightly spiced types include Mettwurst, Cervelat, Farmer, and Holsteiner.

HOW ROMANTIC IS CHEESE? SO SAYS AN EPICURE

It's a Food That Also Has Historical Background.

BY PHYLLIS HAMMOND.

Countries all over the world have given their particular cheese characteristics which have made famous the names of towns and villages of their origin. Let us take France for instance. The well known Roquefort cheese originated there in the village of Roquefort, where the herds of sheep that supply the milk used in its making are pastured on an immense plain of fine herbage protected by strict laws. A diet of prepared food and water, whitened with barley flour supplements their menu.

Camembert, a soft, rich cheese, originated in the former province of Normandy. Neufchatel is a French cream cheese and Pont L'Eveque a French product of great delicacy. Port Du Salut, a mild Limburger, had its beginning with the Trappist monks in France. The same cheese is made by the Trappist fathers of Quebec today and called Oka. Limburger owes its name to the Belgian province of Limburg.

England Helps Variety.

England also contributes its share of cheese to a world seeking variety in foods. The village of Cheddar produces a cheese by the same name which averages about 70 pounds in weight, is of firm body with a nutty flavor and aroma. Cheshire, resembling Cheddar, is also of English ancestry and in full size weighs sometimes as high as 150 to 200 pounds. The richest and finest of English cheese is Stilton, manufactured in Leicestershire and West Rutlandshire.

A spiced butter-milk cheese of soft, yellowish composition is Appetitost, which is imported from Denmark. Mysost is a Scandinavian and Danish cheese made chiefly of evaporated whey. Norway is known for its Floedeost, Gammelost, and Gjedeost, a strong flavored brown cheese made from goat's milk. Sweden's boast is Bondost, similar to Gouda cheese.

Edam Is Salted and Red.

Edam, a salted red round cheese from Edam, Holland, is colored by use of carmine or a weak solution of litmus and Berlin red. The round form is obtained by pressure of the curd in iron or wood. Here is a unique and tasty suggestion for your next spaghetti party. Heat the shell of an Edam cheese in a moderate oven and pour in your cooked spaghetti. To brown, cover with cracker crumbs and replace in oven.

Excellent for sprinkling on bread and butter is Sap Sago cheese, "Schabzieger" to the Swiss. It is a small crumbly green cheese, colored with powdered dried leaves of the Blue Melilot, a clover which contains the vanilla like compound, coumarin. Old fashioned Swiss cheese or Schweizer is called Emmenthaler if you would be correct. It is distinguished by holes of various size and number. Coming from Emmenthal, Switzerland, the cheese, strange to say, is known in France as Gruyere, taking its title from the Swiss village of that name.

Lightly Smoked Product.

Italian cheeses are many. There is Caciocavallo, a lightly smoked product; Gorgonzola, a pungent, mottled cheese produced in Italy's northern mountains; Pecorino, from Italian sheep's milk; and Provolone, a round or oval cheese resembling Caciocavallo. Parmesan is the title of a group of Italian cheeses of similar character. In grated form they make an excellent addition to spaghetti and soups. The best known types of Parmesan are Reggiano or Lodigiano.

Argentine cheese are Sorrento and Goya. Dunlop cheese, rich, white, and buttery, was formerly the national cheese of Scotland.

The most unique cheese made in America is Pineapple. It is highly colored and of pineapple shape. Cord nets, in which these cheeses are hung to cure, produce the diamond shaped ridges seen in the rind. Buttermilk cheese, from the curd of buttermilk, resembles cottage cheese, but is of a finer grain. Kosher Gouda, made for Jewish trade, bears a special stamp for identification.

Do you ever stop to think of the backgrounds of things that are familiar to our daily menus? Think of the far away places our commonest foods come from: Rice and coffee, and grapefruit and pineapple, and bananas. Bananas traveled a lot before they reached us. To begin with, they probably originated in southern Asia, and moved east until they reached India, where it is thought Arabs obtained roots and took them to the Holy Land and into Egypt. Established next on the east coast of Africa, the banana moved to the western coast with the slave trade, and the Portuguese carried banana plants with their human cargoes to the Canary islands. And here the church comes in. I think Willa Cather in "Death Comes to the Archbishop," has given us the most vivid picture of just how great a debt we owe to the church for our good living, for one of the many plants the missionaries brought to the new world was the banana. In 1516 the Rev. Father Tomas de Berlanga, a Spanish priest, introduced bananas into the island of Santo Domingo and later, when he was made bishop of what we know as Panama, he took them there also. When missions were founded, the priests built up gardens and orchards around them, including bananas among the other fruits, so eventually banana culture became a part of life in Central America.

Not until the early eighteen hundreds did bananas enter our country by way of Cuba, and they enjoyed no great popularity then. The beginning of the present century, however, saw a marked increase in public taste for bananas, and their use is becoming more and more widespread as new ways to serve them are found.

Incidentally, from what was once considered a somewhat indigestible food the banana has come to be recommended as an item of children's diet by a good many eminent authorities, the only qualification being that the fruit be ripe enough, or, if eaten raw, of unquestionable ripeness.

One of the best points about bananas is adaptability. They may be served as fruit, plain or with cream. Their flavor is delicate enough to permit effective combining with other fruits. Cooked, they may be served as fruit or vegetables. For cooking, the banana with a deep yellow skin is ripe enough, but for eating raw it should have little brown flecks on it.

OFFICERS LEARN TO FEED ARMY ON 30 CENTS A MAN

Here's How Uncle Sam Feeds His Fighters.

BY EVERETT SWINGLE.

"Thirty cents per day per man" is the restriction placed on army, navy, and marine mess cooks in United States service.

One of the reasons our military forces are considered the best fed in the world while remaining within the restriction can be found in the 12th annual food expert's school for officers of these corps, in which this year's class is completing its work in classrooms, laboratories, test bakery, and experimental mess at the Sixth corps area headquarters, 1819 West Pershing road.

In practically every climate in the world the experience gained by these officers will be applied to the purchase, receiving, and issuance of foods and general supervision of the mess in their respective services, according to Col. C. L. Corbin, commandant, who supervises the school.

Only School of Kind.

"Chicago was chosen as a location because of the prominence of the city as a food center," declares Col. Corbin. "So far as is known, the school is the only organization of its kind in any of the military establishments of the world. Graduates will put their knowledge to use all over the United States and in all of its possessions, as well as on battleships at sea, at the United States Naval and Army academies, and at such far away points as China and other places in which American military forces are operating."

Men enrolled in the quartermaster corps subsistence school range from second lieutenants to captains, who have been in service anywhere from three to twenty years. The present students are in their third three months term and are scheduled to graduate May 31.

This month the lieutenants and captains are preparing all the meals and baking all the bread, rolls, cakes, cookies and other delicacies eaten by about 100 men from the headquarters detachment.

Terms Are Full.

In the first term of school, the curriculum includes preliminary studies of botany, chemistry, physics and physiology.

In the second term, eight weeks are devoted to packing house products and much time is spent in the stockyards.

The final term includes studies of spices, flavoring, salt, vinegar, condiments and sauces, soaps, candles, toilet articles, paper and matches, miscellaneous groceries, nutrition and messing or feeding of troops, administration, dairy products, monographs and public speaking and a general review.

Beans Army's Sore Point.

If you want to arouse the ire of an army man, it seems, just offer the trite comment that you understand beans are still the standby of the military forces.

Maj. Warden, assistant commandant, is quick to set one aright on that.

To prove the facility with which the school supervisors and students dish up interesting meals for 30 cents per day, here are two menus served in the experimental mess, expertly calculated as to calories, variety and tastiness:

BREAKFAST.

DINNER.
Oyster stew, fried fillet of haddock, mashed potatoes, string beans, butter, bread, jam, rolls, coffee.

SUPPER.
Veal pot pie, fried potatoes, lettuce, beet salad, bread, butter, jam, cocoa.

Here's the other:

BREAKFAST.
Oranges, apples, French fried toast, pork sausage, butter, jam, syrup, coffee.

DINNER.
Broth and crotons, leg of veal, mashed cup, Parker house rolls, butter, coffee.

SUPPER.
Spaghetti and cheese, lettuce and asparagus potatoes, peas, tomato-cherry aspic, fruit salad, bread and butter, coffee, blueberry pie.

But that isn't all. On Sundays the cooks of the school cherish a rule that chicken should be served in some form and that ice cream must be on the menu. This is all figured on a cost basis, however, so that the men still eat within the 30 cents a day limit.

FRIEND TOLD HIM ABOUT ALL-BRAN

And It Brought Relief from Constipation

Those who are bothered with constipation should read Mr. Gelpke's unsolicited letter:

"I have suffered with constipation for years. A friend of mine told me to try ALL-BRAN. I have taken ALL-BRAN for the past six weeks as a breakfast food. It has regulated my bowels as clockwork. Now I would not be without a package at all times."—Mr. Leslie Gelpke, 273 Ridgewood Ave., Newark, N. J.

Common constipation—with its headaches, loss of appetite, sleeplessness—is due to lack of "bulk" to exercise the intestines, Vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract. Both are present in Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, as well as iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in lettuce. Within the body, it forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes. Being a natural corrective, ALL-BRAN is not habit-forming.

Try ALL-BRAN in place of pills and drugs—so often harmful. Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily—serious cases with every meal. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

In the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

KITCHENS OF OUR ANCESTORS HELD HEART OF HOME

Tell Truer Colonial Tale than Drawing Room.

BY IRENE STEYSKAL.

Of the two approaches to our colonial yesterdays the more familiar is a dignified Georgian front. The other, less formally impressive but with a quaint and friendly charm, is around the back way and in through the kitchen door.

Entering by the front door, you will contemplate the elegance of tapestries, brocades, frail porcelain, and oil portraits, rugs from the orient, carved candlesticks and brackets with glistening crystal pendants. In the kitchen there is a crane hung kettle singing, a kitten dozes on the hearth, firelight dances with the shadows on dark rafters and glints on row of pewter plates and burnished caldrons.

In the drawing room colonial Georges, Marthas, Nancies, in their best laces and linens, bow and curtsy and converse in well turned phrases. In the kitchen a grizzled pioneer in homespun, wig awry, communes with his long stemmed pipe in the chimney corner or a gentle eyed Priscilla is lost in day dreams before a forgotten spinning wheel.

Kitchen Center of Life.

Treasure house for architect, housewife and historian, poet, painter and weaver of romance is the old colonial kitchen. Before the advent of more prosperous days the life of the early settlers centered there. Draufty it may have been with few, ill-fitted windows, its spaciousness poorly and meagerly furnished, but the beneficent household spirit that smiles from a glowing hearth in a room that has been much lived in suffused it with endearing charm and a simple, homely beauty. Here in the pursuit of their fireside industries were the colonist and his good wife, sturdy, serious and at their ease.

That there were few idle feminine hands among the first settlers is readily evinced by the colonial kitchen, a fact amply confirmed in letter, journal and diary. For example, one Yankee confesses in a note to a neighbor that so excellent a cook is his wife, so irreproachably neat and tidy, so industrious a worker, so admirable a housekeeper, that scarcely can he restrain himself from telling her so.

The Women Did Work.

More generous in his praise is Friend Christopher Marshall from the City of Brotherly Love. While confiding that he himself is easily fatigued by exertion, he is eloquent in his admiration for his faithful, elderly spouse.

He writes, "As I have in this memorandum taken scarcely any notice of my wife's employments, it might appear as if her engagements were very trifling; the which is not the case but the reverse. . . . She is constantly employed in the affairs of the family, which calls for her constant attendance, not only to provide, but also to attend at getting prepared in the kitchen our bread, meat, pies, etc. . . . Added to which her attendance is demanded in the orchard, cutting and drying apples . . . in the making of cider without tools for the constant drink of the family, her seeing all our washing done and her fine clothes and my shirts, the which are all smoothed by her; added to this her making of twenty large cheeses, and that from one cow, besides her sewing, knitting, etc.

Woman's Work Never Done.

"Thus she looketh well to the ways of her household and eateth not the bread of idleness; yea, she also stretcheth out her hand to her needy friends and neighbors . . . My dear wife meets little respite all the day, the proverb being verified, that 'Woman's work is never done.'" With becoming piety the memorandum concludes, "For the constant assiduity and press of her daily and painful labor in the kitchen, the Great Lord of the Household will reward her in due time."

Change in the old order is nowhere more pronounced than in the province of kitchen equipment. A fruitless search might a colonial dame make among the endless labor saving devices of a twentieth century apartment for even a modern version of her spinning wheel, candle rods hung with wicks for the autumn dipping, snuffer boats, sausage gun, the long handled bed warmer with its perforated lid, the leach tub for spring soap making, to be undertaken only with the almanac's assurance that the moon was in the right quarter. And what would her pioneer consort think of the latest improvements of his old powder horn and blunderbuss that hung above the mantel out of the children's reach?

Southern Kitchen Place of Joy.

Though never a gathering place for the family as in the northern colonies, the southern kitchen—usually separated from the main house and connected with it by a covered arcade—was a small world apart where strange romance was brewed. The folklore of Uncle Remus' "creeturs" had replaced the forgotten legends of prank playing Robin Goodfellow. Every child of the southern plantations knew that the magic circle of the kitchen chimney was the meeting place for Bandmaster Brer Rabbit and his talented cohorts, Brer Fox, Brer Tarrypin, Brer B'ar, whose plunketyplunking on the frying pans and trivet made musical "juberlee."

Here, crowned with her red, yellow, and blue plaid bandanna with a small army of scullery maids at her beck and call, reigned the portly, broad smiling cook. Economy was a word without meaning. Why exercise care in the use of ingredients so long as the finished product pleased the master and mistress? Why skimp on the use of utensils when there were a dozen minions whose duty it was to scour them?

The characteristic informality of a southern kitchen during the process of a meal preparation might shock the orderly, frugal soul of a Dutch or New England housewife, but even she must eventually melt to the sheer joyousness of an atmosphere redolent of gladsome odors, vibrant with bubbling laughter, chuckling, chortling, sputtering, gurgling from a score of kettles, skillets, and saucepans.

IN THE OLD DAYS

Household Hints

Add a slice of lemon or a teaspoon of vinegar to the cooking water to prevent potatoes from discoloring.

In making fancy sandwiches it is more economical to cut the bread lengthwise of the loaf.

VEGETABLE FOOD VALUE IS OFTEN LOST IN COOKING

Money can be poured down the drain of the kitchen sink in water in which vegetables have been boiled. The vitamins and minerals lost if the cooking water is discarded must be replaced from other food sources, all at a cost.

The solution is to eat raw all vegetables which are palatable that way, cooking experts say. Cabbage, onions, and celery are typical of the vegetables which lose a considerable portion of their food value in cooking. Baking is another solution, for certain vegetables may be left in the skin until after cooking to conserve some of the food elements otherwise lost.

ART OF PICKLING ANCIENT AS THE CITY OF POMPEII

Those who know pickles, both modern and historical, probably know that the art of pickling certain vegetables is as ancient as the heyday of Pompeii, from which explorers, after 2,000 years since its destruction, have dug out pickled olives which still retained their characteristic flavor.

To the modern buyer, however, pickles usually mean a cucumber in some form. But even there, one can find a wide range of names and labels which have to do not alone with the size of the preserved cucumber but also the manner in which it was put up and the type of liquid used in the process.

As to size, labels on pickle jars often range through 25 different sizes. Most common of the small pickles are the gherkins, which are one to two inches in length and number from 100 to 500 in a gallon. The smallest often are labeled midgets. Small pickles are from two to three inches in length, medium, three to four inches long, and large, more than four inches.

Sour pickels are cucumbers flavored by vinegar added to the brine after the curing is completed. Dill pickles have been flavored with dill. Sweet pickles are in brine to which has been added vinegar sweetened with sugar. Mixed pickles usually contain cauliflower, onions and sometimes other vegetables.

Sweet mustard pickles are prepared much as "chow chow," which is mixed sour pickles covered with a mustard sauce or dressing. The sweet mustard type has been sweetened with sugar. Net weight statements on labels, the law requires, must apply to the weight of the pickles exclusive of the brine or vinegar.

LAZY CHILDREN ARE OFTEN STARVED FOR NOURISHMENT

The United States Bureau of Public Health reports that far too many children are undersized, flat footed, flat chested, anemic and listless. These afflictions are chiefly caused by improper feeding. Before any parent speaks of his child as "lazy" or "nervous", he should ask himself—am I at fault?

It is easy to satisfy a child's appetite and leave his body still starved for vital, balanced nourishment. Left to choose for themselves, children soon begin to "play favorites" with foods. Nothing is more important than Balanced Nourishment to promote orderly growth and rugged health.

Ranking high among foods rich in nourishment are the whole grain cereals, wheat and rice. Mother Nature has packed them full of valuable minerals, proteins, carbohydrates—and bran, to promote intestinal hygiene. Give your children the nourishing value of whole grains!

Today there are two breakfast foods which retain all the rich body-building elements of WHOLE GRAINS—WHEAT POPS and RICE POPS—"popped" from entire kernels of wheat and rice. POPS are crispy, crackly, crunchy with the sun-kissed flavor of Nature's grains. Children love them—so do grown-ups. Because of their rich food value, POPS are one of the most economical cereals you can buy. Ask your grocer for WHEAT POPS or RICE POPS. FOODTOWN KITCHENS, Inc., Chicago, Ill.

out on jobs—clothing, shoes, etc.—when employment is offered them. Plans are under way to repeat the performance on Tuesday and Wednesday, the 26th and 27th, at popular prices, and it may be that if some embryo plans blossom that it will have a longer run. The opening night will be "society" night, but the women at Mrs. Borden's yesterday emphasized that evening clothes would be taboo that night. The black-faced men on the stage will be the only "dressed-up" ones in the theater!

Working with Mrs. Borden—and never have I seen such enthusiastic workers—are Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, Mrs. Freeman Hinckley, Mrs. Morris L. Johnston, Mrs. Walter B. Wolf, Mrs. Frank B. Mulford, Rabbi Mann, Lester Armour, Mrs. Arthur Meeker, Mrs. Edward F. Swift, Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy, Mrs. Barrett Wendell Jr., Miss Emily Larned, Mrs. Parmalee McFadden, and Mrs. Ernest R. Graham.

Madonna Center Open House.

Open house at Madonna center yesterday afternoon turned the Loomis street settlement into something resembling a madhouse for an hour or so when visitors came in throngs to see the children of the center at their regular Thursday classes and games, and to have tea with members of the committee for the annual Madonna center dinner dance to be given on April 30 at the Hotel Sherman.

Dozens and dozens of youngsters, dancing, singing, sewing, and cooking inside the settlement building; scores of boys playing in the yard and improvised gymnasium; fifteen girls in smocks doing duty as teachers and guides, and half a hundred delighted visitors all contributed to the pleasant confusion of the scene.

After the guests had made a thorough tour of inspection of the settlement itself, they all had tea in the little apartment where the resident directors, Miss Mary Amberg and Miss Marie Plamondon, reside.

The object of the tea was to acquaint friends of the center with the work carried on there with the funds from its annual benefit dances. The occasion wasn't a party for the children, who weren't even warned of the expected visitors, and the classes going on were by no means "demonstrations," but simply part of the settlement's regular schedule.

An average of 400 youngsters come to the center every day and find there the only recreation the neighborhood affords, as well as a variety of classes in everything from kindergarten to practical needlework. There are evening classes, and clubs, too, for boys and girls beyond the school age.

Reduce Price of Dance Tickets.

Among the members of the junior committee who are active workers at the center are Virginia Amberg, Kathleen Bagley, Agnes and Helen Bichl, Betty Kellogg, Marion Randolph, Florence and Noel Cremin, Dorothy Walsh, and Alice and Lauretta Bremner. All of these girls, of course, are also working for the success of the dinner-dance.

Tickets for the dance this year have been reduced from the usual $15 to $12 per couple, and because the settlement is meeting such increased demands for help in its neighborhood no funds will be expended on decorations or favors for the dance.

Among those present yesterday were Mrs. Frank M. Gordon, Mrs. Edward O. Brown, Mrs. Richardson Dunham, Mrs. Charles F. Spalding, Mrs. John Ward Amberg, Mrs. William J. Lawlor, Mrs. George Douaire, Mrs. Kinney Smith, Mrs. William Stenson, Mrs. Joseph Stenson, Miss Florence Otis, and Miss Barbara and Miss Dorothy Senn.

Jane Anderton Is Engaged.

From Juan Les Pins, France, yesterday came a cable bringing the interesting news of the engagement of Mrs. Jane Wright Anderton to J. Earling Fitch, son of Mrs. Frederick Thwaits and the late Lawrence Fitch of Milwaukee. The wedding is to take place at Antibes on April 30.

Mrs. Anderton is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Van Doren Wright of Chicago, who have spent much time abroad in the last few years and who are wintering on the French Riviera this year. With them are their youngest daughter, Marion, who made her debut here in 1930, and Mrs. Anderton and her two children. Their other daughter, Mrs. Alexander Stoller [Brier Wright] and their son, Redmond S. Wright, and his wife, the former Glee Louise Viles, and their baby, all live in Paris.

Mr. Fitch is a grandson of the late Albert J. Earling of Milwaukee and Chicago. His mother is on her way abroad for the wedding, but his stepfather and his sister, Mrs. Thomas S. Van Alyea [Margaret Fitch] did not go over for the event. Mr. Fitch and his bride will return to Milwaukee in July and will spend the summer with the Thwaits at their country place at Oconomowoc. Mrs. Anderton is the widow of Charles E. Anderton Jr., who was killed in an airplane accident near Madison, Wis., in July, 1930. He also was a Milwaukeean, although the Andertons lived here after their marriage in 1923.

Wig and Powder Club Meeting.

Mrs. John Elliott Jenkins and Mrs. James Otis will be joint hostesses at a meeting of the Wig and Powder club tonight at the Jenkins' residence at 10 East Schiller street. After dinner Mr. Jenkins will talk informally about how sound is put on moving picture films. Usually the Wig and Powder members meet in the daytime, but they are meeting tonight so that their husbands can attend the party.

Also on today's calendar are the lecture that Count Serge Fleury will give at the Arts club at 11:30 o'clock; a luncheon at the Chicago Woman's club at 12:30, given by the board of directors of the Chicago Lighthouse for the Blind for the directors of the Lighthouse Volunteer aids, and the committee chairmen of the supper dance to be given by the aids on May 14 at the Bal Tabarin, and a lecture under the auspices of the Renaissance society of the University of Chicago at 8:30 o'clock at the Oriental institute by Mme. Galka E. Scheyer on "The Blue Four in the Art of Today and Yesterday."

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kellogg Higbie of 2650 Lake View avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Dorothea Lucia, to James Draper, son of Mrs. Lura A. Draper of Hinsdale.

Mrs. John M. Glenn and Miss Mary Glenn of 1131 Forest avenue, Evanston, have returned from over a two months' cruise on the Carinthia, having been in the West Indies, Mexico, and South America.

Mrs. D. Mark Cummings is in New York after having spent several weeks in Florida, and will return to Chicago next Monday.

Stuart Logan returned yesterday from a four day trip to New York City, whence he went to attend a business conference and to make the acquaintance of his new grandchild—the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Terbell (Phoebe Logan). Last Monday was the first wedding anniversary of the young Terbells, but Mr. Logan was too occupied with business concerns to join them in the celebration. Mrs. Logan motored to St. Louis over the week-end to visit her mother, who has been ill, and returned to Chicago on Wednesday.

Mrs. Charles T. Boynton and Miss Edith Boynton of Highland Park returned yesterday from a lengthy sojourn in California.

Sign of spring: The tennis courts of the Country club of Evanston are being resurfaced and the tennis committee is reminding its members that this is the time to acquire new rackets and to have old ones restrung. The club's tennis professional will be back at the courts on June 1.

The Rt. Rev. George Craig Stewart will officiate at the marriage service and will act as celebrant at the nuptial mass, assisted by the Rev. J. McNeal Wheatley, rector of St. Luke's. Miss Rockwell will be given in marriage by her brother, Devere Rockwell, and will be attended by Miss Esther Stamats. The Rev. Victor Kennan will serve Dr. Fenn as best man. A wedding breakfast for the families and close friends will be held at the Georgian hotel after the ceremony. After a motor trip through the east the bride and groom will reside in Baltimore.

Mother Wants Money, Child Love in Union

Security Means More to Elderly Woman.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

A mother tells of the beauty and charm of her 23 year old girl, of the girl's nobility of character, of the sweet amiability of her disposition. And of her failure [if I may construe mother's words to fit the situation honestly] to cash in these many gifts in a large way, financially.

Daughter, with all her fine charms and attributes, exhibits the bad taste [in mamma's eyes] of falling in love with a boy of her own age, a good looking nice enough boy, college trained, but with an income that at best can offer only a three room apartment.

Mother asks: "Why do girls fall in love with men like that?"

Perhaps, mother, some one on the sidelines at your own wedding asked a similar question. If we could tell why girls fall in love with this man and that, we'd know what no one now knows, namely, why people fall in love with each other. And why daughters are so prone to upset mamma's applecart.

We don't know a thing about why this girl and that boy fall for each other. Why the man of big brains falls for the little nitwit; why nice girls give their hearts to ne'er do wells; why "the last girl in the world you'd expect" draws the season's ballroom prize. Just that strange is this phenomenon known as love!

But we do know that there is nothing more natural about the phenomenon than that a beautiful girl of fine character fall in love with a nice boy of her own age, or near it, and that all the cold blooded persuasion of financial security and mamma pressure is as naught compared to the thrill of love's young dreams—in a three room apartment, if necessary.

You "executive" mothers annoy with your highly commercial plans. You annoy me—and you annoy the young to the point of revolt, luckily for them. You forget that twenty, twenty-five years are between you and that youth that builds glorious dreams and glorious futures without help of cold cash in the initial days. There is such a tragically growing crop of you mothers who interpret your own money wants as daughters' marriage duty to herself!

Official Contract

By Charles True Adams

(International bridge authority; author of "Official Contract at Sight")

There is no question that a finesse is a most useful strategic device in bridge. It is, however, foolish to finesse when such action is unnecessary. Moreover, even when the finesse should be used there is usually a definite place and time to use it. Using the play before it is necessary or waiting until the psychological moment has passed simply adds to the already sufficient dangers of the play. Yesterday's play-a-problem showed both when not to finesse and when to finesse. This was the hand:

NORTH [Dealer].
♠—A,5
♥—A,K,J,10,5,4,2
♦—6

♠—Q,7
♥—9,8
♦—K,J,10,7,4,3
♣—Q,10,2

EAST.
♠—K,J,10,3
♥—Q,7,6,3
♦—8
♣—9,6,5,4

SOUTH.
♠—9,8,6,4,2
♣—K,7,3

North dealt and opened with a game invitational bid of two hearts. East passed. South took out with three diamonds. West passed and North bid four hearts. After East's pass, South passed, hating to do so but being afraid of any other bid. West passed.

East opened the ♦ 8, which dummy took with the ♦ A. You will note it would have been ridiculous for North to take this finesse, since it was unnecessary, as he held but a singleton of the suit. Dummy returned the ♣ 3, West played the 2, declarer the J, and East the 4. And here is point two. The club finesse must be made sometime, and it should, therefore, be taken at trick two, so that if it loses it will not only lose into the East hand but so that North may also take the third trick and thus lead out trumps at once. To the third trick North now leads the ♥ A and followed with the ♥ K and to the fifth trick led the ♥ J. When East ducked, he led the ♥ 2, forcing out East's Q. East returned the ♣ 6, which declarer took with the ♣ A. To the eighth trick declarer led the ♥ 10 and followed with the ♥ 5, and to the tenth trick led the ♣ 8, which dummy took with the ♣ K. Dummy now led the ♠ 9, which declarer took with the ♠ A. Declarer then led the good ♥ 4 and to the thirteenth trick led the ♠ 5, which East captured with the ♠ K, North and South making five odd—their game and an extra trick. Here is tomorrow's play-a-problem:

NORTH.
♠—Q,J,8,7,5
♥—10,5

WEST.
♠—A,9,6,4,3,2
♥—4
♦—Q,10,8,6

EAST [Dealer].
♥—A,K,J,8,3,2
♦—K,J,9,7,4

SOUTH.
♠—K,10
♥—Q,9,7,6
♦—A,5,3,2
♣—K,10,7

Bid and play this hand and then compare the result with that printed tomorrow.

Drug Company Delivers Toys to Orphanages

Truck Carries Cheer to Many Children.

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

If there is a depression, the many tiny inmates of several orphanages, day nurseries and institutions of the like located in the city are not aware of it. And how could they be when a veritable Father Christmas lands in their midst on a lovely spring day to shower them with dolls, miniature trains, stuffed animals and toys of almost every description. For that's what happened yesterday when the Walgreen company in the guise of an out of season Santa Claus sent out one of its huge trucks laden with the treasures dear to every boy and girl and left in its wake a store of happiness which would be difficult to equal again. And to us fell the pleasant task of distributing this happiness.

The first group of children to benefit by the Walgreen company's generosity were the boys and girls of St. Rose's Day Nursery and Kindergarten, 308 West 25th street. Twenty-five or more shining, expectant faces greeted us on our arrival, and their owners, a little shy at first, eagerly accepted the gifts we placed in their outstretched hands. There were dolls and sewing sets and games for the girls and mechanical toys, golf sets, trains and wagons for the boys. For the tiny children, those too young to manipulate the more complicated toys we found stuffed animals, donkeys that wagged their heads, and the most amusing rattles.

Our next stop in this mission of dispensing joy took us to the Marks Nathan Jewish Orphan home at 1550 South Albany avenue. Here we found 285 boys and girls, all busy about one thing or another. In the refectory one group was having its afternoon milk. Others were getting ready for their light treatment or on their way to the dentist. The little girls were "straightening up" the playroom, and the boys were engaged in one or another of their afternoon duties. Miss Morganstern, the supervisor, assured us that our interruption of all this activity would be a welcome one, and the shouts and cheers that followed the announcement of our arrival confirmed this.

Huge boxes were removed from the Walgreen truck which stood in front of the orphanage, and as toy after toy was taken out shouts of "Can we really keep them?" and "O, I'd like to have one of those sewing sets" reverberated, I am sure, through the entire west side of the city.

News that we were in the neighborhood traveled before us and when our truck arrived at the next stop, which was the Douglas Park Jewish Day and Night Nursery just down the street at 1424 South Albany avenue we found faces pressed against window panes and peering out of half open doors, a trifle anxious that we might ride by.

The rest of the afternoon was spent in delivering other huge crates to St. Joseph's Home for the Friendless, 739 East 35th street; the Protestant Children's home, 6323 Yale avenue; Chicago Home for the Friendless, 5059 Vincennes avenue; Martha Washington Home for Dependent Crippled Children, 4448 South Michigan avenue, and the Morgan Park Home for Dependent Children, 10704 Prospect avenue.

By ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS.

"The 'Whisperer' Crimes" have held London terrorized for months. A bandit, working with few accomplices, has kidnaped and held for ransom numerous wealthy persons. Those who offered resistance have invariably been killed.

Joyce Merrow is "The Whisperer's" latest victim. She is engaged to Roland Blatch, who is secretary to Sir Henry Glazeborough, M. P., a leading philanthropist. Roland receives a small wireless receiving set, by means of which the bandit speaks, using his own short wave, and gives directions for delivering the ransom demanded. In Roland's keeping are valuable jewels, donated to Sir Henry to be sold for charity. Roland is forced to steal them for the bandit, to insure the safe return of his beloved. He is directed to board a train, where he is followed by detectives, who have been called by a taxi driver who saw Roland wearing the headphones of the wireless set. He explains that the jewels are family heirlooms. At a point directed Roland throws the jewels out of the car window. Leaving the police to follow the trail Roland returns to Joyce's apartment and finds her safely home. While there he receives a phone call and is asked to join the Whisperer's band.

INSTALLMENT V.

FINGER PRINTED.

Roland replaced the receiver and stared at it as if it were a living thing.

"My God, I'll do it!" he cried aloud.

"Do what, Roly?"

"Take a chance that's just been offered me to get old Glassy's eighty thousand," he answered. "Do what the crooks call 'play the double cross.'"

"I don't understand a word you're saying," she protested. "What is a double cross?"

"A dead secret," he rapped out. "Incidentally it's now the quickest way of our getting married. Don't repeat a word of what I've said to any one. Joyce—Joyce, darling, do you trust me?"

"With all my heart—you know it." She spoke quickly for his excitement had affected her.

"Then ask me no questions, but just go on believing I'm doing what I think is the right thing. I'm not going round to old Glassy. I shan't see him again until I've got the diamonds back. Probably I shan't see you either. Just——" he kissed her—"go on believing. Good-by."

. . . .

Three o'clock in the afternoon. The Whisperer had done it again—and this time had turned an innocent young man into a felon. In a few hours the public would know—and in the meantime Chief Inspector Larpent was hoping against hope that just a tiny bit of luck would come his way.

In his room at Scotland Yards he was studying a group of photographs. They were all photographs of a footprint. Each photograph was marked with measurements and so exactly did the measurements correspond at every point, including the detail of a tiny rent in the shoe leather, that there could be no doubt that the photographs were all of the same footprint.

"My God! I'll do it!" he cried aloud. "Do what, Roly?"

"Funny thing, Bolsover, isn't it?" he said to the junior who stood respectfully by his side. "With all this science, with wireless and one thing and another, we're messing about with footprints—which every village constable uses when the rector's missed his chickens and can't think who it is."

"Yes, sir. But it looks as if the footprints have done it. If you work it out, it's several million chances to one it's the same foot."

"The foot of a woman! So you think the Whisperer used a woman to collect the ransom this morning, eh?"

"Well, sir, this print was taken on the grass beside the railway line—within ten yards of the black flag used as a signal to Blatch. This other one we know to be the footprint of a woman who calls herself Maviste—at 169 Newport street, Piccadilly."

"Yes, and that means an arrest, if we go by the rules. The trouble is, it's not the Whisperer's footprint. So we're not going by the book of rules."

He nodded dismissal as the house telephone buzzed on his desk.

"Sir Henry Glassborough? Yes. Bring him up."

Larpent had heard of Sir Henry Glassborough. In twenty-five years at the Yard he had seen other careers like that, springing up from nowhere, a rapid rise, social popularity, and a connection with public charities.

"Good afternoon, Mr. Larpent. Forgive me, I beg. I can say without exaggeration that this is the most tragic moment of my life."

Sir Henry, sinking into a chair, seemed as if he were on the verge of crying. Now, Larpent was well used to hysteria; and a long experience had taught him that hysteria was generally shamming.

"Is it likely to put you out of business, Sir Henry?"

"Put me out of business!" exclaimed Sir Henry, his dignity startled. Never before had his social activities been referred to as "business."

"My dear Mr. Larpent, I have considered my own position. I came here in the belief that that poor young man, for some reason of his own, had taken the jewels to my bank—so my butler informed me—and my only thought was the fear that he had been waylaid. And I came to you for his protection, only to hear that he had in a sense stolen them——"

Sir Henry's voice broke, then continued:

"I would not have you think for a moment that I blame the poor fellow. I admit that it hurts me more than I can say that he has not come back. He has, I fear, fled—for I could not find him at his flat. But we are old enough to be generous to youth, you and I, Mr. Larpent. And nothing you can say will induce me to accept the odious rôle of prosecutor."

"That being so, there's nothing we can do for you, is there?" Larpent's tone was cold, for intuition had warned him that coldness was going to pay.

"Nothing! Nothing whatever! To say that I hope you will succeed in recovering the property would be to suggest a lack of appreciation of your brilliant work——"

"What brilliant work?"

It was a brusque, unmannerly challenge and Sir Henry looked hurt.

"Blatch was one of the nicest fellows alive!" he exclaimed. "A distinguished career at Oxford—got his half-blue for boxing. Later on he made quite a reputation as an amateur racing motorist. Then his father died and left him in straitened circumstances. I happened to hear of it and asked him if he would like to help me. A clean, open air young Englishman."

Larpent said nothing. The silence held till the detective broke it.

"We shall have to bring him in on our own account whether you prosecute or not. I don't think we have anything to discuss.

Sir Henry got up, but Larpent saw that he did not intend to go. He put one hand on Larpent's desk and leaned over it.

"When one thinks of the terrible choice that confronted that poor young man!" said Sir Henry. "On one side was his devotion to myself—the knowledge of the terrible injury he was about to do me. On the other, the very life of a most charming young girl—beautiful, talented, womanly——"

Larpent was looking at Sir Henry's hand, spreadeagled on the desk. Had the man come to say something about young Blatch's girl, he wondered?

"Well, thank you for coming to see me, Sir Henry," he repeated.

"Just one request before I go, Mr. Larpent! I am thinking of that poor young lady. She is a Miss Merrow and she lives at No. 5, Porlock Mansions, Bloomsbury. Inevitably she is suffering. If it is necessary for her to be harassed by your department over her experiences, I beg that you will see her yourself."

"All right," said Larpent. "I'll go 'round myself."

"Thank you so much!" said Sir Henry and bowed himself out.

Larpent began to pace the room, trying to puzzle it out.

"I tried to freeze him out. But he would not go—until he had told me that girl's name and address. He came here for that purpose. Why? Sooner or later I should have been bound to know it. That means he wants me to see her pretty soon—for some reason of his own. Funny! I don't see how he can have been playing a game over that jewelry, seeing that he's responsible for it."

He moved back to his desk and stopped, staring at that part of the desk over which Sir Henry leaned.

"I wonder . . . I've had luck before. Tons of it! And I could do with a bit just now . . . Anyhow we'll give it every chance if it is luck."

He opened a drawer and took out a piece of chalk. With the chalk he drew a wide ring round that part of this desk on which Sir Henry had rested his hand.

Then he pulled a lever of the house telephone switchboard.

"You'll find finger prints on my desk—inside a ring I've chalked. I want them photographed."

Then he took a taxi to Porlock Mansions intending to "have a go at the girl and see if there's anything to it."

. . . .

At five minutes to four Roland Blatch was walking towards the telephone box at the corner of Bedford row.

The mood of exaltation in which he had left Joyce had passed away, leaving a cold determination. He was in no sense running away from the consequences of his act, for he knew that if he were tried and sentenced for the theft of the jewels the sentence would be a nominal one. But for him it did not alter the fact that, from whatever motive, he had robbed his employer. "Old Glassy," with all his faults, had trusted him and he had betrayed the trust. The Whisperer had turned him into a thief.

His moral sense was stunned. Quite coolly he was resolved to use any kind of trickery—any kind of treachery—to reclaim the jewels and destroy the murderer who had threatened Joyce's life.

GASOLINE ALLEY—AND THE BALD EAGLE GOT SUNBURNED

Two Features Mark Concert by Orchestra

Stock Presents "Musical Self Portrait."

BY EDWARD MOORE.

There were two matters of extra interest in the Chicago Symphony orchestra concert last night. One was the piano performance by Ossip Gabrilowitsch of the Brahms Concerto in B flat. The other was the debut of a new orchestral composition by Mr. Stock called "A Musical Self-Portrait."

Mr. Gabrilowitsch is entitled to credit himself with two remarkable performances this week. One was the Mozart Concerto which he played on Tuesday afternoon, a perfect example of how Mozart should be projected. The other was an equally fine example of pianistic art in the more elaborate and considerably longer work last night. It is no news to speak of his gifts as an executant. It is hardly more so to refer to his insight and imagination, qualities which he has in a high state of development. Taking one consideration with another, this was about as fine Brahms playing as one is likely to hear over a series of seasons.

Mr. Stock explains that while many painters and sculptors have made portraits of themselves, the autobiographical method through music has been less frequently followed. He therefore desires to express through the tonal medium what he sees or feels in himself as essential in his own personality.

It is a somewhat disconcerting method, because at first hearing the hearer, seeking Mr. Stock's traits, is likely to lose some greatly skilled and attractive music. Speaking from the performance, however, it was evident that he avoids the trite and the obvious, not because of any desire to pose but because his mind runs that way. It leads him to witty utterances in one direction and a tendency toward the abstruse in another, to rather complex utterances in both.

One has to be on the alert to follow him, but one is rewarded for his attention. Incidentally, he has expressed himself in a beautifully written and stimulating piece of music. Both audience and orchestra declared themselves to that effect, the one through long continued applause, the other through a vigorous fanfare, that sign of approval granted only when the players are well pleased.

Elsewhere there was a performance of Walton's "Portsmouth Point" overture and Schumann's Fourth Symphony.

Helen-Mary Burns, contralto, and Edgar Lustgarten, cellist, appeared in joint recital at Curtiss hall last evening. Miss Burns sings the languages well, especially English, has something of a dramatic flair, and projects it through a voice of excellent quality which would be better for a somewhat less forceful drive at the tone. Mr. Lustgarten is said to be 15 years old. He has the makings of a remarkable artist, having developed a good tone and made a considerable advance along the technical path. Boellmann's Variations Symphoniques were particularly well played.

Sorority Spring Dance.

THE STAGE

Guthrie McClintic, the producing manager and stage director who is frequently spoken of as the husband of Katharine Cornell, has just contributed a revival of A. A. Milne's "The Truth About Blayds" to the Broadway playbills. This piece, ten years old, was written before Mr. Milne became an incorrigible whimster, and it tells a story of some dramatic importance.

The Mr. Blayds of the title is a pretentious old dodo of the Victorian period in literature—a Master at whose feet the world has worshiped blindly for many years. He has published certain volumes of poetry that place him in a class with Tennyson—in fact, he seems like Tennyson's more gifted twin brother.

But in the celebration of Mr. Blayds' ninetieth birthday, when his devoted descendants are gathered about him, the truth comes out. He is not the author of the celebrated poems. A fellow named Jenkins, who died young, sang these mighty songs, and Mr. Blayds had published them under his own name and lived with this gaudy lie on his conscience. The hoary patriarch is ready to make a clean breast of it and tell the world that he has been the most ornate fraud in the history of letters. His shocked family, however, insists upon keeping his secret.

O. P. Heggie emerges from the films, in which he has been active for a number of years, to assume his original rôle. The other players give the cast a gilt-edged tone; they are Pauline Lord, Effie Shannon, Ernest Lawford, John Griggs, Rachell Hartzell, Frederick Worlock, and Helen Walpole.

Another addition of the week to the New York stage is a comedy called "Take My Tip," which deals with the stock market crash in the fall of 1929. Donald Meek and Helen Lowell have the central rôles. The Broadway dramatic critics dismiss it with routine pooh-poohs.

Jane Cowl's career in her new vehicle, called "A Thousand Summers," will begin in Princeton, N. J., tomorrow night. A New York première is scheduled for May 2.

The prevalent custom of starting theatrical performances at 8:30 or 8:45 p. m. will be broken next week by Walter Hampden in "Cyrano de Bergerac" at the Blackstone and Katharine Cornell in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" at the Harris. Mr. Hampden will lift his curtain at 8 o'clock; Miss Cornell will begin at 8:15. Late diners might also make note of the fact that Miss Cornell does not have the usual star's entrance in "The Barretts," but is "discovered," as the stage directions say, when the curtain goes up. Moreover, she remains on the scene as Elizabeth Barrett, the sick lady of the sonnets, until five minutes before the play ends. C. C.

Book Explains Trains, Travel to the Children

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Cash in on your child's special interest, or his hobby, if you call it by that name. Or merely his play, if it seems to you less than either of these. Through them all he learns so much.

Take, for example, the widespread interest of boys in trains—that is, a real one. Then, think of the fascination they hold for children as a toy, from the time they pull them with a string, through windups, to electrics. This is a special interest that is not easily outgrown.

For the boy who loves locomotives and everything that has to do with railroading, a fine book is "Trains, Tracks, and Travel," by T. W. Van Metre, published by the Simmons-Boardman Publishing company, 30 Church street, New York, and 105 West Adams street, Chicago.

First, I must mention that this is not a little child's book, nor a story book. It is suitable for boys from about 11 or 12 up—indefinitely up!

The author, as I remember, started to tell the story of railroads to his children and it became this book. Some of the best books for children came into existence that way. It is written in a clear and interesting style and has hundreds of splendid photographs.

To quote a young reader who is devoted to it: "It tells the story of trains and locomotives from beginning to end. It gives descriptions and pictures of tracks, signals, electric and steam locomotives, oil electrics and gas electrics. It tells about the operation of trains and various types of freight cars.

"It's a swell book, especially a swell reference book. And if you want to find out some part of a locomotive it has a good chart."

Besides being so interesting it is authoritative, as Mr. Van Metre is professor of transportation at Columbia university.

Bright Sayings of the Children

Little 4 year old Gordon had never been in the country, so when his mother took him to visit his Aunt Mary on the farm everything was new and wonderful. One morning, after he had been watching the cows feeding in the pasture, he ran to his mother exclaiming, "O, mother, come out and see the cows mow the lawn." R. M.

Title of Book by Van Vechten May Fool You

His 'Memories' Are Essays, Not Biography.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Sacred and Profane Memories," by Carl Van Vechten. [Knopf.] Published today.

IF you jumped with glee as I did [figuratively, for one hasn't enough exuberance these days to do any leaping about anything] at the announcement of Carl Van Vechten's new book, "Sacred and Profane Memories," thinking that, since he had succeeded in persuading Gertrude Atherton to set down HER memories he had been in turn persuaded to make permanent his own, you and I had better take ourselves to a corner of the room, mount the high stool, don very high peaked caps with "DUNCE" engraved upon them and let our fellow students poke their fingers at us.

CARL VAN VECHTEN.
Drawing by Mina Loy, in 1913.

For Mr. Van Vechten has certainly not seen fit to tell the story of his life in this his last volume except in so far as a very brief "Notes for an Autobiography" gives the facts of his literary career, "July-August, 1914," tells of the harassments of being in Europe when a war is getting itself born, and "The Tin Trunk" describes [all too briefly] a few of the author's childhood memories.

"Sacred and Profane Memories" is in no sense an autobiography, or even the notes for one. It is, to our great disappointment, mostly a reprinting of essays which have appeared before in two volumes of essays now out of print and in periodicals.

Finds Essays Misnamed.

Mr. Van Vechten has a pleasant pen at all times and the essays and bits of writing which are not pigeon-holable, written two in 1914, four in 1915, one each in 1918, 1919, 1925, and 1930, and two in 1921, all have the mark of leisurely grace which is one of his characteristics. But they lack the essentially Van Vechten touch of ultra sophistication and almost baroque luxury which his novels have had. They interest the reader, but they do not make the reader feel that if they had not been written, literature, or man's understanding either of himself or of life would have suffered. They are misnamed, for they have neither the impressiveness of the sacred nor the intriguing zest of the profane.

One of the papers, the diary of July and August, 1914, in Italy and the leisurely discussion of abstract art crescendoing into a frantic abandonment of every kind of discussion except that of the imperative business of getting out of Italy and home, has never before been printed, and it should be important. But it is not.

Mr. Van Vechten says in a foreword that all of the papers "have been rewritten, some of them extensively, but in every instance I have striven to preserve the original mood, removing only what time has taught me to believe are excrescences, adding only what may serve to accentuate my primal intention, or, at any rate, to clarify it. Certainly these papers are not to be regarded as essays in my contemporary manner." I contend that if the papers were worth rewriting they were worth rewriting in the author's best manner—and his best manner is not the manner of most of the collection.

Lovers of cats will find "Feathers" a delightful piece about a cat. Admirers of George Moore will find two [at least] rare anecdotes about him. Those who think that "Peter Whiffle" was one of the best books of its kind ever written will be suprised to find in the paper called "La Tigresse" a conversation set down between the author and Peter Whiffle. Their surprise will come from the fact that "Peter Whiffle" was not published until 1922, and the paper was written in 1919 and published in the volume called "In the Garret" in 1920.

Another Volume of Essays.

Another volume of essays by a man well known in New York literary circles as a brilliant writer is "The American Jitters," by Edmund Wilson [Scribners]. It is as different from "Sacred and Profane Memories" as it is possible for two books to be, for while it is garnered [mostly] from the previously published works of the author, those works were all written between October, 1930, and October, 1931, "straight reporting of actual happenings" almost entirely, the author points out. They are concerned with the jittery contemporary life in the slump and are more often pictures of social injustice than anything else.

Mr. Wilson explains in a chapter, "The Case of the Author," his own stand, and how he "got that way," as it were. Interspersed through the book are a few brilliant, trenchant descriptions of persons and places which are literature. The book is a social study burnished, one might say, by Mr. Wilson's skilled polishing hand, but not often enough to make it a memorable piece of writing.

French Chapeaux Designed to See Parisienne All Around the Clock

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS. — [Special.] — The hat, as Paris sees it, is a decoration that can be worn anywhere except in bed. Fashionable women have got so in the habit of spending their evenings in demi-toilettes they refuse to go formal unless absolutely necessary, and this means that hats are allowed out at night. Where, formerly evening meant hatless heads, today, hats are worn for most informal functions, and the Five-to-Midnight hat is très à la mode.

This kind of chapeau is small, and dainty and feminine. The all-flower hat comes back to fashion for informal evening, and the Germaine Page flower toque shown at the top of our illustration is a model that is very smart. It has, as foundation, a shallow, soup plate crown of tulle, worn tilted to the right side of the head. Over this transparent crown are placed garlands of pale blue velvet flowers, one askew to the right side and the other to the left. A dark blue velvet ribbon is twisted between the garlands and knotted at the left side, toward the back.

To wear with the tailored satin, informal evening costume for running about town, Louise Bourbon has designed the hat shown in the center. This hat is called Chin-Chin, and lives up to its name, being Chinese in shape, and worn tilted to the right side. It is made of deep violet blue satin, to match the ensemble it accompanies, and has a blue velvet ribbon around the face, tied in a knot at the top of the head.

At the bottom of our sketch is a black milan brimmed hat from Marie Alphonsine, with the brim rolled up in front. This daytime hat is the smartest type, for brims are in the big style news for practical wear.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., April 14.—[Special.]—President and Mrs. Hoover were hosts at dinner this evening to Mrs. James W. Good of Chicago, widow of the late secretary of war; Mrs. Benjamin Harrison, widow of the former President; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lipmann of New York, Capt. and Mrs. Charles Russell Train, and Col. Campbell B. Hodges.

Mrs. Hoover later took these guests to the concert at the Pan-American union given in celebration of Pan-American day, which is being observed in all Central and South American republics. The United Service orchestra and assisting artists gave the program.

Mrs. Robert Lansing, widow of the secretary of state in the Wilson administration, was hostess at luncheon today, entertaining in compliment to Mrs. Benjamin Harrison of New York. Among the other guests were Mrs. James R. Mann, Mrs. Ross Thompson, Mrs. A. J. McCartney, wife of the pastor of the Church of the Covenant, who formerly lived in Chicago, and Mrs. Allen Dulles of New York, sister of the hostess.

Learn to Walk Well if You'd Achieve Grace

Place Feet Parallel; Avoid Toeing Out.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

In chalking up points of gracefulness or lack thereof, the charming hand gestures and the poise of the head count, of course. But it's what you do with your feet that regulates in large degree the gracefulness or gracelessness of your appearance.

This is proved in the grace of dancing girls and in the awkwardness of other girls who have never learned to manage their feet properly. Here's one point of observation from which you can study the secret of grace, or its lack. Watch coming toward you a girl who keeps the inside borders of her feet parallel and then take a look at the girl who approaches you across the hotel rotunda or your own living room, for that matter, with her toes turned out. Whether standing or walking, the fundamental key to grace of motion is to line those feet up properly with inside borders of the feet parallel—toes never turned out.

When you turn out those toes of yours the body must sway alternately in the direction of each outpointed toe, and the hips automatically lurch ungracefully. The more outpointed the toes the more you waddle. And our best authorities insist that this business of walking with toes turned out widely thickens the ankles and forces the bones to protrude. Too, when you stand with your feet parallel, the weight comes directly over the ankle bones where it should come for proper weight distribution and easier grace of body.

It is amazing how many women you meet on the street have this fault of toeing out when they walk.

When you push off in your first step after placing the feet in parallel position, walk with your legs swinging closely together, the knees almost brushing. This is the way you get that close knit, smart picture in place of the ungainly, shambling gait so often seen. It isn't much of a trick, really. But it makes a powerful lot of difference in the whole appearance.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

P. D. D.: ROPE-SKIPPING AND stair-climbing are good for the legs. Also rising up and down on the toes a hundred times a day has been found by some girls an excellent leg-reducing method. Send a self addressed stamped envelope for other leg exercises.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cincinnati, O., April 14.—The Reds surprised even themselves, not to mention 2,000 assembled Rhinelanders, this afternoon by turning loose a first inning blast of vast proportions. They drove five runners over the plate before Bob Smith could get three men out. No more tallies were needed. The Cubs couldn't get these back and were forced to accept their second beating of the infant campaign, 5 to 3.

Just what it was that inspired the Reds is beyond explanation, but the demonstration at least was impressive. It involved nine Red batters and among the contributions were two triples, two doubles, a walk, and a hit batsman. After that jolt Smith and Jackie May, who succeeded him, did very well, but their effort was merely a case of padlocking the barn after the horse had been stolen.

Mr. Lucas Is in Earnest.

The Chicagoans' attack again was painfully close to feebleness. They got only eight hits, four of which didn't appear until the last two innings. Charles Lucas, the sorrel topped right hander who frequently doubles in the rôle of a pinch batter, was responsible for this modest total. He fooled almost all of the Cubs consistently, the exception being Ki Cuyler, who doubled twice, and Vin Barton, who hit a pair of singles. Today's eight hits gives the Cubs a total of 23 in the three games to date, which is nothing to write home about.

Smith's terrifying first inning didn't start until after he had jinxed himself by fanning Taylor Douthit, the lead-off man. Gilbert doubled to right and romped home on Babe Herman's triple in the same direction. In the excitement Smith plunked Crabtree on the foot with a pitched ball. The Babe and Crabtree scored on Heath's three bagger against the right field wall. Morrissey walked and was forced by Durocher, while Heath scored. Durocher was caught off first base, but outsmarted the Cubs and got back safely. The costliness of this blunder was evident a moment later. Manion doubled and Durocher scored. Grimm made a neat pick up of Lucas' drive to end the agony.

Herman Is Bad News.

The Chicagoans whittled down the enemy lead with one run in the second inning. Gudat was mainly responsible for this. He singled to center. Hartnett walked and Grimm flied to Douthit, Gudat going to third after the catch. Jurges also lofted to center and Gudat sprinted home after the catch. Smith's force of Gabby at

LATER OPENINGS.

SUGGESTION of President Heydler of the National league that opening of the baseball season be set back at least two weeks will strike a responsive cord with those who attended the frigid White Sox opening Teusday and with many thousands who would have attended under less wintry conditions.

Two weeks is about the limit the opening could be put back, even then running into danger of unfavorable conditions in the fall. Possibly even one week would be better. Of course, spring weather is more or less of a gamble anyway. For several years, however—perhaps it's due to the depression—spring has been late, while October has furnished unseasonably warm temperatures.

Objections to later opening center around the world series and conflict with college football. They are objections which must be considered. The present baseball season began April 12. It ends Sept. 25. That gives 177 playing dates in which to finish a schedule of 154 games. Allowing for traveling and a few open dates for playing off postponements, these 23 extra days cannot be cut much, if any. So a later opening, in truth, will delay the world series into questionable weather and also conflict with college football.

Therefore, let's balance favorable and unfavorable arguments. Baseball openings are held in eight of sixteen major league cities. Secondary openings, or first home games, are held in the other eight cities not favored by formal openings. Baseball enthusiasm runs highest in the spring, when nearly all fans think their favorites will do better then in the preceding year. They are anxious to attend these games and to see the new faces. Cold weather certainly is a deterrent.

The world series is played in only two cities of the sixteen. In the latter weeks of the season interest lags, except among the leaders. In fact, attendance becomes almost negligible to those teams which have been distinct disappointments. College football, at that season of the year, will not exert much influence on baseball attendance, because the more important gridiron struggles come later.

From this analysis The Wake feels baseball clubs would gain more than they would lose by postponing the opening one or two weeks and continuing longer the minimum time necessary in the fall.

CLEVELAND GETS WESTERN OPEN TOURNEY JUNE 30

The Western Golf association's tournament schedule for 1932 is complete, Secretary Henry C. Bartholomay said yesterday. The open championship will be decided over the course of the Canterbury Golf club, Cleveland, O., June 30, July 1 and 2; the amateur will take place at the Rockford Country club, Rockford, Ill., Aug. 29-Sept. 3, and the junior event has been awarded to the Medinah Country club of Chicago, and will be played July 26-29.

Outstanding interest in the schedule lies in the awarding of the western amateur to Rockford. It is the second time in the tournament's history that the event has gone to one of the smaller communities, the Rock Island Arsenal club, Rock Island, Ill., having held it in 1908.

Since then it has been held in the larger cities.

Favor Smaller Clubs.

Several Chicago clubs bid strongly this year, according to Bartholomay, but the association's officers felt the smaller enthusiastic communities, which have helped support the association for years, were entitled to see the event more frequently.

The defending champions in the three events are Ed Dudley, Wilmington, Del., open; Don Moe, Portland, Ore., amateur, and Robert Cochrane, St Louis, Mo., junior.

Entries for the western open close June 23, for the junior July 19, and the amateur Aug. 22. The open will be played on a 72 hole medal basis. There will be no flights other than the championship flight in the junior.

Association Grows.

The entry fees for the open will be professionals, $5, and amateurs $20, while entry to the amateur will be $5 and the junior $1. The latter event is restricted to players between the ages of 16 and 20. Entries must be sent to H. C. Bartholomay, secretary of the association, 175 West Jackson boulevard, Chicago.

Beginning with an organization of nine Chicago clubs in 1899, the Western Golf association has grown to such an extent that it now numbers more than 500 clubs, through a territory extending from Buffalo, N. Y., to Honolulu.

WAIT TILL HE GETS GOING!

Ted Lyons, ace of the White Sox staff two years ago, who was handicapped by injuries last season, will be sent in to pitch just as soon as Manager Fonseca agrees with Ted's own pronouncement that he is in top condition.

TURF LICENSE GROUP MUM ON HALF MILERS

BY FRENCH LANE.

The good and the bad boys of the turf—the jockeys, trainers, and what have you about a racing stable who hope to put in part or most of the summer on Chicago courses—will pass in review before the license committee of the Illinois Turf association here next Tuesday.

It is the annual session of the committee and will be more interesting this year than ever before because some of the folks who intend to race at Sportsmen's park, the new half mile track in Cicero, will apply for licenses.

Who's Who on Committee.

There is a representative of every race course in Illinois, except Sportsmen's park, on the license committee.

Charles F. Price, represents Washington park, Roy Carruthers is the Arlington Park Jockey club's representative, Joseph A. Murphy is the man from Hawthorne, Martin Nathanson is the representative from Exposition Park Jockey club at Aurora, C. B. Head represents Lincoln Fields, and John T. Ireland comes from Fairmount park, the track located just across the Mississippi from St. Louis.

Only Mr. Nathanson of the license committee was in Chicago yesterday.

No Hints on Action.

He gave no hint of what was to happen to the turf people that are making plans to race at the Cicero half mile track. Neither would any of the other Illinois Turf association officials who were in the city.

CRANE'S JOCKEY ARRIVES

Steve O'Donnell, among the first flight jockeys in the country, has arrived at the Aurora track and will do most of the riding for the Wild Rose Farm stable owned by Val Crane of St. Charles.

Steve will begin galloping horses within a few days, having been kept on the ground since he arrived here from Agua Caliente by a broken hand which he suffered when a 2 year old he was riding at the Mexican course tossed him into the infield rail.

It's time to quit squawking about those 5 to 1 future book odds which the bookmakers are quoting against Top Flight, the favorite to win the Kentucky Derby.

Clem McCarty has just advised us from New York that the favorite in the future betting on the English Derby is 11 to 5. Our Kentucky Derby will be run in a little more than three weeks. The English Derby is nearly eight weeks away.

America's leading jockey, little Johnny Gilbert, is due at Aurora early in the week. He went into first place in the jockey race at the Havana, Cuba, track during the winter and has been riding at Bowie since the spring season opened. Gilbert is under contract to H. D. Cox, who will race a band of a dozen horses at Aurora during the early part of the Illinois season. Among the campaigners in the Cox stable are Our Sis, Phi Delta, Brave Knight, and Harborton.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Sam Gray, the gent who last season dropped 24 contests to tie our own Pat Caraway as the major leagues' losingest pitcher, was far from his 1931 mood yesterday afternoon. He pitched a brilliant game to whitewash Victor Frasier and associate White Sox, 3 to 0, giving the St. Louis Browns their first win in the season's first series at Comiskey park.

On the productive end, the effort which won the ball game was the first hit off Frasier, a homer by Kress with one out in the fifth inning. It was the first homer of the season in this town, a swat which was well in the left field grandstand. Inasmuch as Goslin previously had drawn the first pass issued by Frasier, Kress' smack was good for two runs. The other St. Louis marker came in the seventh. Kress singled and took second on a balk, then walked home on Levey's triple.

Only Five Sox Hits.

Gray allowed only five hits and two of these were infield scratches. All were singles. Frasier gave up only six hits in the eight innings before Faber succeeded him, but the assortment included that homer of Kress', that triple of Levey's, and a double by Ferrell.

The Sox were shut out by Cleveland in their third game last year, 7 to 0, and the score might have been duplicated yesterday but for the fact that Frasier tossed out Burns and Levey at the plate and Grube twice thwarted Goslin's efforts to steal second base.

In the first four innings only 12 men faced Frasier and only 13 faced Gray. Only three Sox were up in the second inning despite two singles. Jolley made it four hits in a row when he singled to start the second, but Blue hit into a double play, Burns to Levey. Selph followed with a single, but was out trying to reach second.

Lose Chance in Seventh.

So completely was Gray in command that only one man got to third and only two others got to second. The nearest thing to a Chicago rally came in the seventh. Watwood beat out a bouncer to second and Jolley walked. The runners advanced on Blue's tap to Gray and the light went out when Selph flied to Schulte.

Three pinch batters were used by Manager Fonseca and all three of them flopped. Cissell led off the eighth with a single, but Grube fanned. Then Pinch Batter Fothergill tapped to Burns and Pinch Batter Simons fanned. Campbell batted for Hayes to start the ninth and fanned.

Gray pitched an assortment of well directed stuff, choosing on occasion

Wyatt Allows Only 4 Hits; Tigers Win, 3-1

Detroit, Mich., April 14.—(AP)—Detroit evened its opening series with Cleveland at one all by winning today's game, 3 to 1. Whitlow Wyatt had the best of a pitching duel with Willis Hudlin, allowing only four hits, while his teammates got seven, including a home run by Charley Gehringer in the sixth with none on.

Detroit had made two runs in the second on a walk, a sacrifice, and two singles. Hodapp scored Cleveland's run in the fourth after batting out a single. Score:

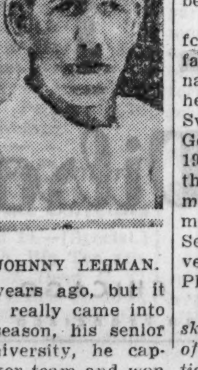
AMATEURS' ALBUM By Charles Bartlett

JOHN LEHMAN.

Olympia Fields' Johnny has come marching home at the head of so many tournaments these last few years that he is one of the two scratch golfers on the C. D. G. A. handicap honor roll, sharing that position with Jack Westland.



JOHNNY LEHMAN.

This smiling Hoosier, born at Crown Point, Ind., twenty-five years ago, has not been content with winning invitational tournaments throughout the Chicago district. He began playing golf about eleven years ago, but it was in 1928 that he really came into his own. In that season, his senior year at Purdue university, he captained the Boilermaker team and won himself the individual championship of the western conference.

That was the beginning of a record which made Johnny known as one of the country's best match players. He shared the medal in the 1930 Western amateur, eliminated Don Moe, the defending champion, and then went on to win the title from Ira Couch. Last year he battled his way to the semifinals in defense of his title before being eliminated.

Another of his achievements is found in the fact that he has never failed to qualify in any of the three national amateur tourneys in which he has competed. He lost to Jess Sweetser in the 1929 meet, and to Gene Homans, an ultimate finalist, in 1930. Last year at Beverly, he shot the lowest medal score of the tournament, a subpar 70, and shared the medal with Ducky Yates and Charley Seaver. He is employed in a loop investment house, and is a member of Phi Gamma Delta fraternity.

MASTRO QUITS IN NINTH; SAYS HE'S THROUGH

Sacramento, Cal., April 14.—(AP)—Earl Mastro, once a leading featherweight title contender, announced he had quit the ring forever after being forced to stop in the ninth round of a ten round battle with Varias Milling, Los Angeles featherweight, tonight.

Mastro, drubbed for eight rounds, walked over to Referee Toby Irwin in the middle of the ninth and said: "I've got enough. Give him the fight." He said he had sinus trouble and was threatened with blindness.

"This is the end of Earl Mastro," he said.

HORSE WINS FIRST RACE AS A 4 YEAR OLD; PAYS $909.30

San Francisco, Cal., April 14.—[Special.]—Nanamay, a four year old filly, running in the colors of the Stevens and Brown stable, established a Tanforan record by paying $909.30 on a $3 straight ticket in the third race today. Six persons held tickets on the winner.

Nanamay, running in a three year old and up claiming race, covered the Spreckels course in 1:12 2-5.

It was the fourth time Nanamay has started in a race and the first time she has finished in the money.

Plans $1,500,000 Track in Southern California

Los Angeles, Cal., April 14.—[Special.]—There is going to be horse racing again in southern California if the plans of J. M. Smoot are perfected. Smoot, former president of a Miami, Fla., jockey club, said the is planning a $1,500,000 racing plant and intends to start work within two months.

BING MILLER NO LONGER REGULAR WITH ATHLETICS

Philadelphia, Pa., April 14.—(AP)—Connie Mack announced today that Roger Cramer will take the veteran Bing Miller's post at right field in the regular lineup of the Philadelphia Athletics. This marks the second break in the Athletics' championship cast which started winning pennants in 1929.

Cramer, now serving his second year with the Athletics, displaces a player who had his first trial in the big leagues in 1917 and has served regularly with major league teams since 1921. Bing Miller is now 37 years old and has played with Washington, St. Louis and the Athletics. He probably will be in the Mack lineup when the team faces left-hand pitching.

Little Leaves Wisconsin to Assume Rutgers Post

Madison, Wis., April 14.—(AP)—George E. Little, former athletic director at the University of Wisconsin, who resigned several weeks ago, today left for Brunswick, N. J., where he will assume similar duties at Rutgers.

CHICAGO WOMEN BOWLERS BREAK DOUBLES RECORD

St. Louis, Mo., April 14.—(AP)—Miss Betty Ramsey and Mrs. Helen Foell of Chicago set a new record for the women's international bowling congress today by rolling a total of 1,186. They went into the lead in the doubles play of the tournament. The former record was 1,173. The doubles lead had been held by Miss H. Wilman and Miss A. Weiller, also of Chicago, with 1,155. They dropped into second place today.

Except in the five woman team event, Chicago bowlers held all first places in the tournament. Mrs. Theresa Rourke's score of 663 in the singles, also a record, stood unequaled, and Marie Warmbier, Chicago, all events leader, was in second place with 658 in the singles.

Gag on Players Defended by Philly Manager; Rule Hits at Gamblers

New York, April 14.—(AP)—Burt Shotton, manager of the Phillies, took the stand today to deny Rabbit Maranville's complaint that the National league is trying to make office clerks of its players.

BURT SHOTTON.

The controversy concerns the new league rule forbidding ball players to exchange familiarities with followers in ringside seats, sign score cards for youngsters before or during a game, or even so much as pass a word with rival players. The penalty automatically is $5.

"Now I wouldn't argue with the Rabbit," said the leader of one of the league's mystery teams. "There's no sense to argument. The league says so and we do it.

"Just the same, there was a very good reason for that rule. In every ball park in every major league city, in one section of the stands, a group of fans gathers for every game for the sole purpose of gambling. In small crowds there may be 150 of them. In large cities, maybe 1,500.

"Now these fellows like to get the edge on each other. They like sure things. So if they can sneak down to the sidelines and get hold of some ball player they may have done favors for, they sometimes can find out the starting pitchers.

"It was to stop that very thing that Commissioner Landis first ordered all managers to keep their starting lineups secret until they actually handed them to the umpires.

"Now as for talking to opposing players, I'm against that. We had too much handshaking, too much of players from opposing teams standing around a batting cage before a game with arms around each other's necks. It doesn't look good from the stands.

"The kids can get their score cards signed, but now they must wait until the game is over, that's all."

10,000 WATCH FAVORITES WIN CHARITY RACES

Robertson Cinches Award for Leading Jockey.

Bowie, Md., April 14.—[Special.]—Return of spring-like weather and the desire to aid charity and win a bet brought 10,000 persons to Bowie today to see the program of races for the Maryland unemployment fund, which marked the end of the Bowie spring meeting.

Favorites were winning right along and another interesting high light of the day was the three cornered contest among Jockeys A. Robertson, H. Mills, and J. Smith for the gold watch or $400 to be awarded the leading rider.

Seven horses paraded to the post in the Welfare purse, the feature, and Mrs. John Hay Whitney's 3 year old colt, Stephenfetchit, led all the way with Robertson up. The result settled the jockey contest, giving Robertson 13 winners, with Mills and Smith tied at 11.

Pays $23.50 to Place.

Happen, a filly by American Flag, proved the surprise of the race, paying $23.50 for place. My Gergus was third. Stepenfetchit won by two and a half lengths and was the favorite, paying only $2.80. He ran a mile and seventy yards in 1:45, the fastest time of the meeting for the distance.

There was a general exodus of horses late today for Havre de Grace where the racing season opens Saturday.

Stone Martin was the fourth favorite to win, leading all the way in the sixth race, with J. Gilbert up. Finnic was second and Bubola third. Meridian Queen had early speed, but tired. The time was 1:47 4-5, a mile and one-sixteenth. The winner paid $7.10.

Mills Scores Double.

Hank Mills rode Era to victory in the third race. Era was in front all the way and won by three lengths. Essare was second and Nealon Kay third. Passing the stand the first time the order was Era, Nealon Kay, and Moon Phase. Essare moved up to the contending position on the back stretch. The winner paid $8.40. They ran the mile and a furlong in 1:56½.

Mills rode his second winner of the day, Sun Memory, in the fourth race. Sun Memory off in front, won by two lengths over Black Tyrone. Calgary Kay was third. It was a fast race, the time being 1:12 2-5 for six furlongs.

Cary T. Grayson's filly, Precious Dollar, won the second race for 2 year olds, running the half mile in 0:48 3-5. Walter J. Salmon's Performance was second and Laura M. Curtis' Bohemian Grove third.

N.U. School on Football Rules to Open Today

Three hundred high school and college football coaches and officials are expected to attend the school on the new rules to be conducted by Northwestern university at Dyche stadium today and tomorrow.

Coach Dick Hanley of Northwestern will open the school at 2 o'clock today with a lecture on the rule changes, in which he will point out his version of how the new legislation will affect the game. Coach Hanley's talk will be followed by field demonstrations in which Northwestern players will participate.

Tomorrow's session will get under way at 10 o'clock with a talk by Coach Alonzo A. Stagg of the University of Chicago. Coach Stagg, who has been a member of the football rules committee for many years, will present the committee's view on the new rules.

The school will terminate tomorrow afternoon with a regulation game between two Northwestern elevens who have been engaged in spring practice for several weeks. Special stress will be placed on the rule changes in this game, and an opportunity will be given to see the rules in operation under actual playing conditions.

This game will be officiated by John Schommer, Joe Lipp and Meyer Morton, all Big Ten officials.

St. Peter, Minn., April 14.—[Special.]—Roy T. Lindenberg, head basketball coach, and Miss Barbara Register, women's athletic director, at Gustavus Adolphus college, will be dropped from the staff next year, because of the new economy program.

Travers Decides to Make Golf a Business Now

Jerome D. Travers, the Bobby Jones New York, April 14.—[Special.]— of golf 20 years ago, has decided to turn his skill and fame into capital by following the footsteps of George von Elm and becoming a "business man golfer."

JEROME TRAVERS.

In anticipation of the step, brought on by economic conditions which forced him to sell his seat on the New York Cotton exchange, he has been playing considerable golf recently and found, according to those who have played with him, that he still retains the old-time skill which won four national amateur crowns and gave him the reputation of being one of the greatest man to man golfers of all time.

When reached at his home in Montclair, N. J., tonight, Travers made a terse statement as follows:

"I have decided to give up my amateur standing and become a business man golfer. I do not care to add to that statement nor to make known my plans at this time."

SPORTSMEN HEAR NEWELL, RIPLEY AT ANNUAL FETE

Four hundred sportsmen attended the annual spring round-up of the Sportsmen's club of Chicago at the Morrison hotel last night. Big game hunters, fishermen, and explorers from all parts of the country were in attendance.

David Newell of Florida, recently returned from a hunting expedition in the wilds of Brazil, addressed the assemblage, as did Ozark Ripley of Denver and Ernest Pool of Montreal, Canada, who talked on fishing.

The business of raising and "planting" fish forged ahead last year, M. K. Reckord, general manager of the Izaak Walton league, announced yesterday. He revealed a total of more than 2,747,000 game fish were produced and planted in public fishing waters by league chapters.

Nothing Class B About Ft. Wayne; It Has Own 'Farm'

Fort Wayne, Ind., April 14.—[Special.]—The Fort Wayne Central league club claims the distinction of being the first class B team to have a baseball farm. Manager Bill Wambsganss and Ralph Miller, vice president of the club, are sponsoring the scheme.

Financial conditions make it possible for Fort Wayne to maintain a semi-pro team, outfit it, and book a schedule of games for it. Outstanding players will be given try outs with the league team next spring.

Girl's Family Serves Writ on Primo Carnera

LONDON, April 15 (Friday).—(AP)—The London Daily Mail said today that the family of Miss Emelia Tersini, a British subject, had served a writ on Primo Carnera, Italian heavyweight fighter, charging him with breach of promise.

A report that Carnera would marry Miss Tersini on his return to Europe from the United States was published in the London Daily News on March 11, 1930, but it was denied by Carnera and his manager.

A romance began, the Daily News said, when the heavyweight visited England for a bout with Young Stribling, the American boxer.

On learning that Carnera had denied they were engaged Miss Tersini was quoted as saying:

"Well, Mr. Carnera knows best. We are only friends, anyway."

She was described as of typical Italian appearance, but born in England, where she lived with her uncle, Nani, who kept a restaurant in the west end of London. Her sister, Inez Tersini, was a member of an opera company.

ENSOR RECEIVES LICENSE TO RIDE ON N. Y. TRACKS

New York, April 14.—[Special.]—Buddy Ensor, who ten years ago was rated as the greatest jockey since Tod Sloan, was granted a riding license today.

The Jockey club's decision to issue a permit to Ensor was made after the stewards had tabled his application for further investigation. Extensive inquiries were made and they decided to give the jockey a chance to redeem himself.

A brilliant rider, Ensor became the victim of so-called friends and was indefinitely suspended ten years ago.

Last winter, after galloping horses, he went to Havana where he had a good season. Later on he continued his good work at Miami, and after the season closed there he made his application here. Ensor will probably be seen at the Jamaica meet, which opens Saturday.

BY BETTY ECKERSALL.

The Owl Indians retained the lightweight basketball championship of the Central A. A. U. last night by defeating the Englewood Y. M. C. A., 25 to 20, in the finals of the A. A. U. tournament at the Naval Reserve armory.

The Indians' victory was their 64th straight for the season. Krause, left guard, and Cannizzo, center, were high scorers with 9 and 8 points, respectively.

The Schuessler Athletic club team annexed the heavyweight championship by defeating the Judge Henry Horner Boosters, 25 to 21. Haarlow, forward, and Young, center, starred for the Schuesslers. Gruenig and Schrader led the Boosters' attack.

May and Malone Girls Win.

The May and Malone Girls won the championship in the women's division by a one point victory over the Cooperators of Waukegan, 16 to 15. Kline, center, and Krubacek, left forward, led the May and Malone attack. Jereb led Waukegan with 12 points.

The game was the most exciting of the tournament. The two teams were never separated by more than one point during the second half. May and Malone was ahead, 11 to 10, at the intermission.

BOAT RACE TO BERMUDA SET FOR JUNE 25

New York, April 14.—[Special.]—Conditions for the ocean sailing race from Montauk to Bermuda, starting June 25, were announced today by the Cruising Club of America and the Royal Bermuda Yacht club.

The event, which is expected to attract at least 20 vessels, will start at the Great Eastern Rock Buoy 1, off Montauk, and end at St. David's Head, Bermuda, a distance of about 628 nautical miles.

The race is open to craft in three classes. They are: Class A, schooners, sloops, yawls and ketches not over 72 feet and not under 53 feet over-all length; class B, the same types between 53 and 35 feet, and class C, which is provisional, the same types between 72 and 35 feet having a ratio of ballast to displacement of over 46 per cent.

The sponsors of the contest have drawn up the conditions to make the event a test primarily of yachts of the cruising type, qualified for off-shore cruising and racing. Yachts must be thoroughly seaworthy, properly ballasted, with closed cabins and watertight cockpit.

The combined length of the fore and aft overhangs must not exceed one-third of the over-all measurement. Yachts with glass cabin houses will not be permitted to enter unless such houses are properly protected.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, April 14.—Miss Joyce Wethered, England's foremost woman golfer, will emerge from retirement to captain the British team against the United States in the first official women's match between the two nations to be played at Wentworth, Surrey, on May 21.

The other members of the British team officially announced tonight are Miss Wanda Morgan of England, Miss Enid Wilson of England, Miss Diana Fishwick of England, Miss Elsie Corlett of England, Miss D. Park of Scotland, Miss Molly Gourlay of England, and Mrs. J. B. Watson of Scotland.

With the exception of Miss Wilson, who was then in the United States, and Miss Park, the players nominated represented Great Britain against France last October. Miss Wethered, although she has not competed in recent championships, still plays in championship form. Miss Wilson is the present British champion, Miss Morgan the English champion, and Miss Park the runner-up for the last three Scottish championships.

The team also includes former champions for their respective countries in Miss Gourlay and Mrs. Watson, while Miss Fishwick held the women's open championship. The team was selected by the Ladies' Golf union.

STADIUM OUT TO BOOK PETROLLE, BATTALINO BOUT

Ban on Bat Holds Up the Negotiations.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Mickey Walker and King Levinsky may take care of the Stadium's expenses for April, but Nate Lewis continues angling for a match to attract additional cash next month. Lewis has ideas about the boys he'd like to match for May 18, but then so have the managers of the ring help Nate would employ.

One of the best possibilities would be a Billy Petrolle-Bat Battalino fight. Unfortunately Battalino is under suspension by the Cincinnati boxing commission and the National Boxing association, which, of course, includes Illinois. The N. B. A. edict is a customary formality backing up the Ohio decision, which followed the no contest featherweight championship fight between Battalino and Freddie Miller in Cincinnati.

They'd Be a Good Card.

Petrolle and Battalino would be a nice catch. The pair drew $65,000 in New York's Madison Square Garden several weeks ago. Referee Gunboat Smith stopped that fight in the twelfth and final round when Battalino was punch drunk and helpless. Bat's showing that night caused Commissioner Muldoon of New York to recommend a 60 day vacation in the interest of Battalino's health. Nate Lewis, who saw the bout, believes Battalino, in better condition, might win in ten rounds.

No one has approached the N. B. A. officially with the purpose of removing Battalino's ineligibility. Pete Reilly, Battalino's manager, is in town, however, and as he has no direct interest in the Walker-Levinsky bout it is presumed he has talked shop with Lewis.

Commission Might Relent.

There are those who believe the Cincinnati commission would remove the ban on Battalino if it were asked in a nice way to do so. It is reported that Battalino paid $5,000 to clear up the promoter's costs on the featherweight fiasco with Miller. That might go a long distance in softening the commissioners' hearts.

Jack Hurley, who is in a Rochester, Minn., hospital for repairs, has announced he won't sign Petrolle for future engagements until after May 1, the date of his return to active pursuits. However, Battalino is one of four boxers Hurley has approved as opponents for Petrolle.

Petrolle would meet Sammy Fuller or Kid Berg, but the two gentlemen have a date in New York May 12. Tony Canzoneri, the lightweight champion, is Petrolle's real aim in life, but Petrolle doesn't want to make 135 pounds for that bout at this time and won't consider an overweight fight which would protect Canzoneri's lightweight championship.

Fields Wants the Chance.

Jackie Fields, the welterweight titleholder, who meets Henry Firpo in Louisville Derby eve, would jump at a chance to fight Petrolle, according to Ray Alvis. But, again, Hurley has said no on the basis that Fields would have too great a weight advantage.

If a Battalino-Petrolle bout can't be signed Nate Lewis may seek an opponent for Ernie Schaaf. And it won't be the winner of the Walker-Levinsky bout. That match, a definite possibility, is reserved for the summer season. All of which might bring Max Baer to Chicago against Schaaf. Baer will meet Paul Swiderski shortly on the Pacific coast.

WOMEN COMPETE IN A. A. U. TRACK MEET TOMORROW

Events open to novice competitors are the 50 yard dash and the running broad jump. This novice class is open to any girls who have never won a first, second, or third place in competition.

La Barba to Meet Sarron at Detroit

Fidel La Barba will arrive in Chicago today and start training at Trafton's Loop gymnasium for his bout next Friday night in Detroit against Petey Sarron of Birmingham, Ala. George Blake, La Barba's manager, has been here for several days. The bout Friday night will be La Barba's first appearance in the featherweight championship tournament.

Sig Hart hit the loop yesterday from Daytona Beach, Fla., singing a new verse to the old song in praise of Sammy Mandell. Hart rushed to Florida to see Mandell outpoint Eddie Foster of Boston in ten rounds.

"Better than ever. What a left hand," Hart chanted with appropriate gestures.

Harry Fierro, Chicago bantamweight, and Babe Triscaro were signed last night for a ten round bout at Cleveland May 2. Triscaro, former national amateur champion, has won 12 straight professional matches. Fierro will be making his first start under the management of Billy Stevens.

Ray Alvis did a nice piece of business with Jimmy Dell of Louisville, who is promoting the Derby eve fights. Not only will Jackie Fields headline the proceedings, but Ray Kiser, Carlos Herrera and Babe Colima of the Alvis entourage will be on the card. "Only 200 complimentary tickets and no radio broadcast," were amendments to the contracts. Alvis still remembers the broadcast of the Levinsky-Griffith fight at the Stadium, which he says cost Levinsky money.

Mique Malloy has rushed to the front with the announcement that Jack Kilbourne and Dave Shade will be fighting off the Illinois middleweight title next Thursday night. It's a write off on the tournament Mique started verbally last summer. The winner, Mique concludes, will challenge Gorilla Jones, the N. B. A. champion, and Mique adds he'd like to stage the scrap this summer.

The Catholic Youth organization's boxing team will meet boxers from the Springfield Y. M. C. A. tomorrow night at Joliet. Al Soukop, Golden Gloves flyweight champion, will fight Jackie Sullivan in a feature bout. Eight other matches round out the card. The show is for the benefit of the inmates of the Stateville reformatory.

BOYNTON, FORMER GARDEN OFFICIAL, NOW IS RIVAL

New York, April 14.—(AP)—A rival entry in the outdoor boxing field, expected from the moment Madison Square Garden started building its own stadium in Long Island City last week, developed today in the persons of Joe Boynton and Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankees.

Boynton, head of the Garden box office since Tex Rickard came to New York in 1916, announced he had reached an agreement with Ruppert whereby he would operate a new boxing club for five shows at the Yankee stadium this summer.

PIRATES MUTINY IN 9TH TO NOSE OUT CARDS, 5 TO 4

Harris, French Give Up Only Seven Hits.

St. Louis, Mo., April 14.—[Special.]—After losing two straight to the Cardinals, the Pittsburgh Pirates today adopted the St. Louis style of rallies in the ninth inning to win, 5 to 4. Going into the ninth with the score tied at 4-all, the Pirates pushed over a run and Larry French kept the champions away from the plate in the last half.

St. Louis could collect only seven hits off the combined efforts of Bill Harris and French, while the Pirates pounded Paul Derringer for 15. Snappy fielding by the Cards snuffed several promising rallies and prevented the winners from piling up a larger score. Score:

Lane to Start Drive for 8th Title Today

Prep Games Today

Tilden vs. Lindblom at Gage park.
Phillips vs. Hyde Park at Jackson park.
Fenger vs. Bowen at Bessemer park.
Morgan Park vs. Parker at Hamilton park.
Lake View vs. Schurz at Kilbourne park.
Marshall vs. Crane at Mills stadium.

Lane Tech will set out on its campaign for its eighth Chicago Public High School league baseball championship this afternoon, meeting Senn High school in Lane's first game of the season at Logan Square park.

Lane, the league champion last year, enters this season's race with several practice victories to its credit, and the manner in which it accomplished these triumphs indicates it will be a strong contender for another title.

Hari or Brooks to Pitch.

Bullet Hari or John Brooks will pitch for Lane against Senn, which lost its first game to Schurz. Brooks pitched for the defending champions when they won from Evanston in a pre-season contest last Wednesday.

Crane will seek its second consecutive victory against Marshall at Mills stadium in one of the six other games on today's schedule. Marshall was defeated by Harrison, the defending west section titleholder, in the league opener, while Crane scored a 3 to 1 victory over McKinley.

Bowen Plays Fenger.

There will be two games in the south section, Bowen meeting Fenger at Bessemer park and Morgan Park facing Parker at Hamilton park. Jimmy McKirchy probably will pitch for Bowen, which has hung up six straight triumphs.

Another section champion, Tilden, is expected to score its second victory when it meets Lindblom at Gage park in one of the two central division games. Tilden overwhelmed Hyde Park, 15 to 3, for its first triumph. In the other contest, Phillips and Hyde Park will meet at Jackson park.

FERGUSON AND HUNTER TO MEET IN POLO MATCH

With Lieut. Col. R. G. Hunter and George L. Ferguson playing on opposing teams in the third round of the indoor polo tournament for the Gen. Frank Parker trophy tomorrow night at the 124th Field Artillery armory, polo enthusiasts will see one of Chicago's leading army stars in action against Milwaukee's outstanding civilian player.

Col. Hunter leads the 124th Field Artillery trio, just returned from the world's championship tournament in New York, while the Milwaukee star rides for the Meadowbrook Shamrocks.

MANY OF MOTHER CAREY'S CHICKENS WILL LOSE HEADS

New York, April 14.—[Special.]—Max Carey, Dodger manager, and Dave Driscoll, secretary, are spending these days in sharpening the official ax.

That ax is due to fall shortly, for the Dodgers, with more than 30 players on the roster, must soon begin to whittle down to the National league limit of 23 by June 15.

At present there are thirteen pitchers, four catchers, nine infielders, and six outfielders in the group, in addition to the incapacitated Del Bissonette and the absent but not yet disposed of Max Rosenfeld.

McCann Wins 3d Game Straight in Cue Tourney

Joseph McCann of Detroit won his third straight game when he defeated Coy Julian of Springfield, Ill., 100 to 48, in 14 innings, in the nine handed pocket billiard tournament at the Woods billiard room yesterday. His high run was 47, Julian's 16. In another game J. Simon of Pittsburgh was the victor over N. Poulos of Chicago, 100 to 98, in 28 innings.

MOON MULLINS—MOON'S AN OPTIMIST ANYWAY

second put an end to this incident. The Cubs uttered another faint peep in the third. After two were out Cuyler walked and went to third on Barton's single, but Gudat rolled to Lucas.

Smith was in trouble again in the fourth inning, but he got out by making the rambunctious Babe Herman his victim. The inning opened with Manion walking. Lucas popped out and Douthit came through with a long overdue single. Gilbert hoisted to Jurges. This brought up Babe, but Smith fed him nothing except curve balls and the ex-Dodger slugger didn't come close on any one of his three swings. Another possible threat developed in the fifth inning when Crabtree unexpectedly laid down a perfect bunt, which he beat out easily. Smith induced the next three fellows to boost lazy flies to the outfield.

Hartnett Plays Inside Baseball.

Smith had to contend with the Babe Herman threat again in the sixth. Manion opened with a single and Lucas walked. Douthit endeavored to sacrifice, but the agile Hack swooped down on the bunt and whipped it to Jurges in time to force Lucas at second. Jurges charged back into short left and gathered in Gilbert's fly, for which Gudat was waiting. The Babe was next and the attending citizens were highly hopeful their new found favorite would get results. All he did was to bounce one back at Smith for an easy out.

Pickings for the Cubs from the start of the fourth inning to the end of the seventh were so slim that only one hit was recorded. This was achieved by Barton, who singled with one out in the sixth. Nobody assisted him. The eighth, however, brought a slight improvement. Hack flied out and Billy Herman doubled to center. Cuyler's double to left scored him. Then Barton hoisted to center. Gudat walked, and Hartnett, after running the count to 3 and 2, didn't offer at the third strike.

Pinch Hitters Revive Hope.

Hornsby was still hopeful enough in the ninth to believe that some pinch hitting might bring about a last minute change. It helped, but not enough. After Grimm's demise Harry Taylor was permitted to bat for Jurges. He singled past Heath. Moore then batted for May, but forced Taylor. Hack sent Babe Herman in pursuit of a triple into the right field corner, Moore scoring. The party broke up a moment later on Billy Herman's pop to Durocher.

KEOGAN PREDICTS NEW RULES WILL CUT CAGE SCORES

Notre Dame, Ind., April 14.—[Special.]—Extreme dissatisfaction with the recent changes in the basketball rules was expressed today by Coach George Keogan. The new code includes two drastic changes.

One demands that a team taking the ball in its own back court must move the ball forward within ten seconds and that it may not pass the ball backward until it has passed the middle of the floor.

"This rule," said Keogan, "will result in a less interesting game, one in which fewer baskets are made. It will do away with the man for man defense. All a coach will have to teach is a zone defense, set his men in position, and wait for the rules to force the other team to advance. Excellent defense play with all of its fine points, will lose its value to a great degree. The new rule will, of course, do away entirely with the delayed offense, and finally it will result in more running up and down the floor and wild shooting while doing away with attempts to make a scientific advance down the floor by the team in possession of the ball."

HANS STEINKE TO MEET BRONOWICZ ON FRONTON CARD

Hans Steinke and Frank Bronowicz will meet in the semi-windup of the wrestling show a week from tonight at the Rainbo Fronton, Clark street and Lawrence avenue.

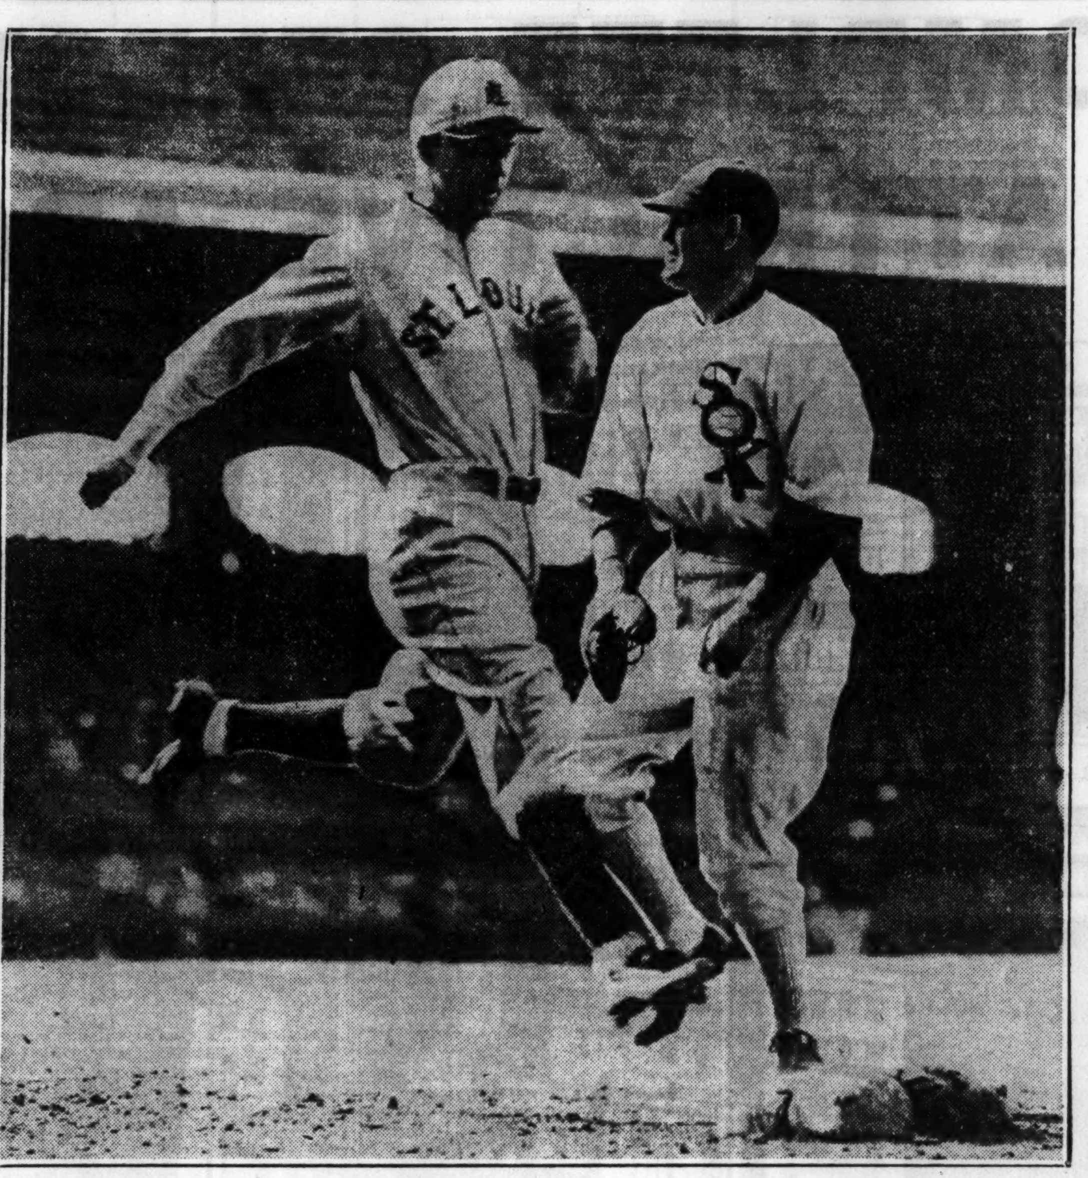
Golf Season Officially Open Now; Here's 1st Hole in 1

The Mid City course of the Chicago Daily Fee Golf association chalked up its first hole in one membership of the season yesterday when Mrs. Katherine W. Shield made an ace on the 135 yard fourteenth. This hole is the most difficult on the course, rising on a plateau and being surrounded by bunkers. Mrs. Shield, a former Californian now residing at 5555 Sheridan road, has been playing golf for a year. Her partner yesterday was Mrs. Dorothy Lorraine.

St. Viator Nine Leaves on Michigan Trip Today

Kankakee, Ill., April 14.—[Special.]—St. Viator college baseball team will invade Michigan tomorrow for a series with Hillsdale and Michigan State. Tommy Ahern, catcher, will captain the Viator nine on this trip.

THIS WAS GREAT WHILE IT LASTED



Rick Ferrell, St. Louis Browns' catcher, out at first in the second inning of yesterday's game with the White Sox at Comiskey park. Lu Blue, Sox first baseman, has taken Bill Cissell's throw on the grounder which Ferrell slapped at the shortstop. Pitcher Vic Frasier had all the Browns doing this for a while but not long enough, for St. Louis won, 3 to 0. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Jurges Plays Roving Center; Gets Offside

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cincinnati, O., April 14.—If Bill Jurges plays shortstop much longer the other Cubs are going to demand permission to wear football armor. Yesterday Jurges ran over to the right side of the diamond and knocked over Billy Herman. Today he ran back and crashed into Marvin Gudat, who was trying to catch a short fly.

Ernie Lombardi, the Reds' huge catcher, caught the last half of yesterday's game without knowing he was injured. A tip foul caught him on the index finger of his bare hand, but he thought nothing of it until this morning. He requested an X-ray and the negative revealed a fracture.

George Grantham, the other Red cripple, was hobbling around on crutches today. He suffered a sprained ankle in yesterday's game and will have to rest for at least a week.

Burleigh Grimes, the Cubs' spitballer, was still confined to his room today, but was reported to be making headway against an influenza attack.

The Cubs will close their affairs here after tomorrow's game. The next stop will be St. Louis, where the world champion Cardinals will be encountered for three days. From there the Cubs will proceed to Chicago for their home opening.

Mainly because he wants to save his good pitchers for the series at St. Louis, Hornsby plans on starting Lon Warneke tomorrow. The Reds threaten to start Walter Hilcher, a rookie from Peoria.

Kiki Cuyler tried to bring on a run or two for the Cubs in the first inning. He doubled past first base with two out and died when Vin Barton popped to Durocher.

The bugs in the right field pavilion had a lot of fun with Jakie May, once a local favorite. Every time Jakie would start warming up in the bullpen his admirers rendered a salvo of raspberries.

Nevers to Be Assistant to Pop Warner at Stanford

Stanford University, Cal., April 14.—(AP)—Ernie Nevers, former Stanford athletic star, today was appointed assistant director of physical education for one year beginning with the fall term. Nevers also will be an aid to Glenn [Pop] Warner, head football coach.

How I Got My Start in Baseball

BY BURLEIGH GRIMES.
[As Told to Irving Vaughan.]

Cincinnati, O., April 14.—What I would call my start was the day I discovered I could throw a spitball. My dad managed and played with a sort of semi-pro team at Clear Lake, Wis., where we lived, and, although I was determined to be a pitcher, if anything, he made me play every other position, first base excepted. I was permitted to pitch occasionally when we were away from home, but never where the home folks could see me. That was back in 1910 and '11.

BURLEIGH GRIMES.

Gets Results with Clover Spitter.

There was a young fellow in Clear Lake who had played around a bit with different teams and he knew how to throw a spitter. It became a habit with us to warm up whenever we had the chance. To do this I had to ride in from the farm on horseback. One day he threw me a spitter and then told me to try it. I couldn't make the first few "break," but I stuffed a handful of clover into my mouth and got results immediately. I worked on the delivery steadily after that.

By the spring of 1912 I figured I was good enough to branch out and made inquiry of Mike Kelley at St. Paul as to my chances for a trial. He advised me to get some experience in a small league. I sought the manager of the Green Bay, Wis., team and he asked me what I could do. I told him I could play any position and his encouraging reply was, "You can do too many things."

My next appeal was to Russ Bailey, manager at Eau Claire. He didn't care about spending any money on a raw rookie, but when I told him I'd pay my own expenses if he'd permit me to tag along he gave his consent.

Called from Ticket Gate to Stop Rally.

They had been using me to take tickets at the gate, but one day shortly after that a fellow came running out to tell me I was wanted. I was shoved into the middle of a rally and the first batter I faced singled. After that they didn't get a hit.

The league blew up before the season was half over, so I drifted over to Austin, Minn. The following spring, 1913, I was with Ottumwa in the Central association. Then it was a case of moving fast. From Ottumwa I went to Detroit and from there to Chattanooga. I broke my left arm logging during the winter of 1914 and Chattanooga waived me to Birmingham. The latter club, thinking I had a sore pitching arm, shipped me to Richmond, Va., but recalled me, and in the fall of 1915 I was purchased by the Pirates. That ended my minor leagueing.

to make the Sox tap tiny grounders, then make them loft easy flies to the outfield. None of his supporting staff had to exert himself to accomplish any of the 27 putouts. Sam's walk to Jolley was the only one he gave and he did that apparently because he was trying to learn if J. Smead had corrected his old passion for going after bad balls.

Goslin's a Pesky Gent.

Goslin got to first base after every one of his trips to the plate. In the second he was hit by a pitched ball, in the fifth he walked, in the sixth he got on through a force out, and in the eighth he beat out an infield single. In the three games of the series Goose has made 13 trips to the plate and after nine of those trips he has reached first.

Former Negro League Stars Face Florals Sunday

Five players who were stars of the Negro National league when they played with the American Giants will be in the lineup of the Colored All Stars when they face Ted Blankenship and the Duffy Florals at Shrewbridge field Sunday. Jackson, shortstop; Bray, catcher; Sweatt, first base, and Harney and Curry, pitchers, are the five and their presence with the All Stars is one reason why the team is rated one of the strongest colored nines in the country.

Tilden Tech to Sponsor Charity Boxing Show

A charity amateur boxing show will be held next Wednesday night under the auspices of Tilden Technical High school at the Midway Masonic temple, Cottage Grove avenue and 61st street. There will be eight bouts. Larry Strong, Tony Muscarello and Tony Sutton are among the boxers who will appear. Proceeds of the show will go to the fund to keep needy students in school.

Blaeholder and Hadley Pitch Brown Finale

The Brownies go away after today's game at Comiskey park. This afternoon Hadley will pitch for the Sox and Blaeholder for St. Louis. Tomorrow the Cleveland Indians come to town for four games.

It still was too chilly for baseball purposes yesterday. About 2,000 of the 3,700 Eskimos in attendance sought the sunny spots.

Radio baseball announcers have been kept busy apologizing for not being able to sing out the scores of games other than the one being broadcast. It is said that the new rule is the result of a protest from the telegraph company which has a franchise providing for exclusive rights to dispatch news from major league baseball parks.

Though he lost 24 games last season, yesterday's hero, Sam Gray, really lost the booby prize to Pat Caraway. Pat nosed out Sam by winning only 10 games, whereas Sam won 11.

Frank Grube is the only Sox player who has participated in more than one of the season's three games who hasn't made a hit. Frankie, however, is earning his dough by remaining able bodied, he being the only catcher in shape for duty.

The Sox goal of at least one double play a day was not realized until the ninth. After Kress had singled off Faber, Jenkins grounded to Cissell. Bill stepped on second, then threw to Blue for the double play. The Sox have made five double killings in three days.

The Sox are better off than they were after their third game last year. In 1931 Ferrell beat Braxton, 5 to 4, in the Cleveland opener. The next day McKain won for Chicago, 7 to 6, but in the third game Faber went down, 7 to 0.

The Sox won their first four games with the Browns in 1931. On April 19 McKain beat Gray, 12 to 6, and in the second game between the teams on April 30 McKain again was the victor, this time over Kimsey in 11 innings. The next day Frasier beat Coffman, 6 to 2, and the day after that Caraway beat Blaeholder, 2 to 1.

HUSING'S RADIO REPORT OF GAME STIRS UMPIRES

Philadelphia, Pa., April 14.—(AP)—Ted Husing, whose choice of an adjective in a football game last fall stirred Harvard university authorities, has aroused a couple of umpires through his reported radio description of the American league opener at Washington last Monday.

George Moriarity and William Dineen, after perusing their "fan mail," today registered a protest against Husing with Tommy Connelly, umpire in chief.

Both umpires, who officiated at the Washngton opener, illustrate "Yer out!" with a sweeping gesture of the right arm. It starts down by the left knee, with the hand flat, and ends, after a wide arc, with the thumb jerked over the right shoulder.

Moriarity and Dineen said letters from listeners-in indicated that Husing pronounced base runners safe when he saw the start of the gesture, and then told his audience the umpires changed their decisions when he saw the players waved out.

MICHIGAN RAISES NONRESIDENT FEE FOR FISHERMEN

BY BOB BECKER.

Nonresident fishermen who go into Michigan to fish this year are not going to find "bargain priced" licenses. Michigan has raised the price of a nonresident fishing license to $4, an increase of $1 over last year. All nonresidents over 18 years of age must purchase licenses. Facing decreased revenue for conservation work Michigan has been obliged to increase the cost of fishing.

The state conservation department has issued a digest of the fishing laws which are available at the department at Lansing, Mich. This little booklet not only gives the regulations, but also lists the open trout streams in all the counties. Inasmuch as Michigan has a system of closing feeder streams as well as some pretty good sized streams from time to time, anglers who plan an extended trip through Michigan should familiarize themselves with the open and closed trout waters.

The trout season opens as usual on May 1. [Same opening date for Wisconsin]. The bag limit is fifteen trout and all fish kept must be at least seven inches long. Large and small mouth black bass may be taken on June 25. Michigan has put the lid on large daily catches of bass and only five may be taken each day. The size is ten inches.

On May 1 the wall eyed pike fishermen are permitted to get busy in Michigan as the open season begins at the same time that it is legal to take trout. However, there is a catch in this regulation. If you want to take wall eyed pike on May 1, you can fish only in lakes classified as pike lakes by the department of conservation. These have nothing but wall eyes or northern pike [pickerel] in them.

In all other lakes it will not be legal to catch wall eyes or pickerel until June 25.

COURT TO PICK RECEIVERS FOR MIDDLE WEST

Insull May Be One Named Today.

BY O. A. MATHER.

The Middle West Utilities company, a holding concern built up by Samuel Insull to link together a 2½ billion dollar system of public utilities, will go into receivership today. This was decided on late yesterday by Mr. Insull and the Chicago bankers. A petition for a recevership was filed in the United States District court on behalf of the Lincoln Printing company, which listed claims of $8,000.

That the petition for a receivership was in the nature of a friendly action was indicated by the fact that Martin J. Insull, president of Middle West Utilities and brother of Samuel Insull, who is chairman, is a large stockholder in the Lincoln Printing company. Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson immediately set today for a hearing and is expected to appoint the receivers, as the company will consent to the action. Samuel Insull is expected to be one of the receivers, while others will be chosen from a list of business men and lawyers.

Action Indicated Wednesday.

A receivership for Middle West Utilities had been foreshadowed by events on Wednesday, when Mr. Insull and the bankers came to the conclusion that a financial reorganization of the company could not be effected without recourse to the courts. It was made certain yesterday when Mr. Insull issued a statement to the effect that whatever happened to Middle West Utilities would not involve the three big operating companies in the Chicago district—the Commonwealth Edison company, the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company, and the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois.

May Involve Other Trusts.

It is expected, however, that the receivership for Middle West Utilities will involve the two big Insull investment trusts, Insull Utility Investments, Inc., and the Corporation Securities company of Chicago. Both of these companies are large holders of the securities of Middle West Utilities and of its subsidiaries, as well as of Commonwealth Edison, Peoples Gas, and Public Service of Illinois. A receivership action now is pending in the Illinois courts against Insull Utility Investments. It was reported in La Salle street yesterday that receiverships for both investment trusts would follow that for Middle West Utilities.

It was said yesterday that the Middle West Utilities receivership will be the largest in the history of American corporations. The company itself is a 300 million dollar concern. However, its system of 119 subsidiary holding and operating companies represent approximately 2½ billion dollars in assets, according to bankers. To what extent these subsidiaries may be affected remains to be seen. The whole Middle West Utilities system has securities totaling $1,249,546,552 now outstanding in the hands of the public.

The Investment Groups.

If the Middle West Utilities receivership is coupled with similar actions against the Insull investment trusts, the total capital involved will be considerably greater.

Insull Utility Investments, which organized in 1928, reported assets of $252,027,336 at the end of 1931, while Corporation Securities showed assets of $153,850,144. But these assets were based on the prices at which securities of the various Insull companies were purchased and subsequent shrinkage in value has practically wiped out the capital of both trusts. Their holdings at the end of 1931 showed a depreciation of nearly $335,000,000 and have shrunk considerably more since then. Practically all of their holdings of securities are pledged to secure bank loans.

Ten Million Due in June.

A receivership for Middle West Utilities results from its inability to pay off $10,000,000 of notes maturing on June 1. These are part of an original issue of $50,000,000 floated in 1930, with $10,000,000 due each year thereafter. The first maturity was met last June, leaving $40,000,000 outstanding.

The collapse of market prices of stocks of the Insull companies, starting with Insull Utility Investments and Corporation Securities, then following through Middle West Utilities and its subsidiaries and most recently in Commonwealth Edison, Peoples Gas and Public Service of Northern Illinois, made it well nigh impossible to refinance Middle West Utilities through a public offering of securities.

Moreover, the Chicago and New York bankers that have financed the company in former years felt themselves unable to make additional loans, as the company already has bank loans of about $27,000,000. These banks also are carrying large loans by other Insull companies.

Board Explains Problems.

The situation confronting Middle West Utilities and the receivership action were explained in a statement issued by the directors.

"The action seemed unavoidable as the first step toward a reorganization of the company," the statement said. "The action in no way affects utility operating companies which are subsidiaries of Middle West Utilities company. These subsidiaries, whose business, generally, is eminently satisfactory in view of economic conditions, will function as usual, financing themselves as heretofore."

The board emphasizes the fact that the eastern properties of the company which are not included in the National Electric Power group, are not involved in the receivership. Middle

Peoples Gas and Edison Shares Climb; Insull Makes Statement

The pressing financial problems which brought on the receivership proceedings against Middle West Utilities company yesterday do not involve the big Insull companies which operate in Chicago and the surrounding area. This was emphasized in a statement made yesterday by Samuel Insull, who holds the position of chairman in each of the three big operating companies as well as Middle West.

SAMUEL INSULL.

Shares of the operating firms, Commonwealth Edison company, Peoples Gas Light and Coke company, and Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, had been under severe selling pressure during the last few days as a result of the uneasiness over the Middle West situation.

A bear rout developed in Edison on the Chicago exchange yesterday, and the issue soared 15 points to reach a high for the day of 70½. The necessitous liquidation which had forced the price down to the low fifties earlier this week spent its course. Speculators who attempted to capitalize on the situation early yesterday were caught when the issue suddenly started upward. A scramble by the shorts caused the sensational rise. In the late trading the issue sold off to 65½, a net gain of 10½ points for the day.

Peoples Gas Advances.

A similar situation developed in Peoples Gas on the New York exchange. After being under severe selling strain for several days the issue rallied to close with a net gain of nearly 9 points. Shares of Public Service company showed gains ranging from 4 to 9 points for the day.

The drastic sacrifice of values in the securities of the three companies was a matter of deep concern to him, Mr. Insull declared in his statement.

"The extent to which the market price of these securities has declined can only be explained by the existence of confusion, misunderstanding, and misapprehension in the public mind," he said, "as to the relationship between these three companies and Middle West Utilities company, Insull Utility Investments, Inc., and Corporation Securities company, I can say this positively: Whatever may happen in the affairs of these latter companies will absolutely have no effect intrinsically upon the standing of the three operating companies which serve Chicago and the surrounding area."

Commonwealth Edison and its affiliate, Commonwealth Subsidiary corporation, own no securities of Middle West, he declared. The investment of the subsidiary company in the investment trusts amounts to less than one-tenth of 1 per cent of its total investments of $113,000,000, he pointed out.

Hold 20 Millions.

Edison and its subsidiary, he added, have $20,000,000 in cash at the present time and no bank loans outstanding. Earnings for the first quarter of 1931 were more than $5,129,000 or only $98,000 less than in the comparable period last year.

Peoples Gas has absolutely no interest in the securities of the two investment companies or in Middle West Utilities, he pointed out. At the present time the company is carrying a cash balance of more than $8,000,000 and is free of bank loans. Peoples Gas Subsidiary corporation, with total investments of $46,700,000, has less than 3½ per cent of the total in the securities of the two investment firms. Net earnings for Peoples Gas for the first quarter were $1,692,000, or about $80,000 less than in the same three months of 1931.

Public Service Company of Northern Illinois has no investment in the investment trusts or Middle West, and its subsidiary investment has about two-tenths of 1 per cent of its total holdings in the securities of those companies. Neither the parent firm or the subsidiary have any loans from banks and together they have cash at the present time of upwards of $7,000,000.

Net earnings of Public Service in the first quarter amounted to more than $2,423,000, or more than $282,000 ahead of the comparable period of 1931.

Refunding the maturing obligations of the three companies can be readily effected despite the prevailing conditions in the bond market, Mr. Insull stated.

Elliott-Fisher Reports Decline in Earnings

last year. "This may really be a bless-report for the quarter ended March 31 net income of $49,540, compared with $705,600 in the corresponding quarter in 1931. The above results are after charges, depreciation, and federal taxes. The balance for the common stock for the quarter after preferred dividends was equal to less than one cent a share, compared with 94 cents a share earned in the 1931 quarter.

Middle West's Set-up

Illustrated above are the utility properties which are controlled by Middle West Utilities company, the vast holding company for which a receivership bill was filed yesterday in the United States District court here. The value of these properties is estimated to be in excess of two and one-half billion dollars. The properties include electrical generating and distributing companies, bus lines, electric railway systems, ice companies, pipe line concerns, and investment affiliates. Subsidiaries of subsidiaries and even subsidiaries of second and third subsidiaries are shown in the chart. The size of the company and its vast ramifications make the receivership the most important in the history of finance.

A. & P. TEA SALES FOR FIVE WEEKS BELOW 1931 MARK

Sales of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company for the five week period ending April 2 were $88,912,192. This compares with $104,742,250 for the same period in 1931, and is a decrease of $15,830,058, or 15.11 per cent. March sales, expressed in tons, were estimated at 520,198 this year, compared with 552,825 in March, 1931. This is a decrease in quantity of merchandise sold of 32,627 tons, or 5.90 per cent. Average weekly sales in March were $17,782,438, compared with $20,948,450 in 1931, a decrease of $3,166,012. Average weekly tonnage sales were 104,040, compared with 110,565 in March, 1931, a decrease of 6,525 tons.

Deny Plea for Temporary Bellas-Hess Receiver

New York, April 14.—(AP)—An application for a temporary receiver for the National Bellas Hess company, was denied by Justice Frankenthaler of the New York county Supreme court today. A similar suit is pending before the Supreme court in Brooklyn. Justice Frankenthaler said the plaintiff, Louis Steinburg, a stockholder, had not produced any facts in justification of his charges. A group of stockholders brought actions in both New York and Brooklyn, obtaining a temporary injunction to prevent sale of properties, and seeking appointment of a receiver. These stockholders objected to the plan of the management of liquidation of the concern, which has been rated as the third largest mail order house in the United States.

BOX MAKERS SEEK LOANS AT FEDERAL DOOR

The extension of credit as a means of stimulating business was discussed at the thirty-third annual convention of the National Association of Wooden Box Manufacturers at the Congress hotel yesterday.

A resolution previously adopted by the Chicago Wholesale Lumber association will be presented today and the box manufacturers will be asked to endorse it.

The resolution reads: "That whereas our national government has recently made additional credit available to the sound banking and financial interests of the country, and, whereas, the said banks are now in position to extend credit to sound manufacturing, or merchandising corporations, or individuals, be it, therefore, resolved, that we recommend a policy of reasonably liberal loans to corporations or individuals whose character and statement of fact regarding their business would justify the accommodation sought."

Seventy-five members of the association are attending the convention. F. S. Knapp of Omaha, Neb., president of the association, presided at the opening session this morning.

Graham-Paige Has Profit for 1932 First Quarter

Reports received yesterday from Joseph B. Graham, president of Graham-Paige Motors corporation, state that the company's profit for the quarter ended March 31 exceeded $165,000. The exact amount will be made known by President Graham Monday at the annual meeting of stockholders. George H. Bird, president of Bird-Sykes company, Chicago territory distributors, attributed the corporation's showing on the profit side to sharp nation-wide sales gains due to introduction of a new line of eight cylinder Graham models of streamline design. Cook county registration figures revealed a 62 per cent gain during the first quarter as compared with the same period last year. Orders for the new eights accounted for a dominant proportion of the total number signed, declared Mr. Bird.

Illinois Mfrs. Would Abolish Army Transports

The Illinois Manufacturers' association went on record yesterday as being in favor of abolishing the army and navy transport services and the Panama steamship line. These curtailments have been urged by Representative John McDuffie. Views of the association were contained in a telegram sent to the congressman by Samuel M. Hastings, association president. The message stated that the services in question are a deterrent to the development of the merchant marine and are disproportionately costly.

RESERVE BANKS OPEN THEIR WAR ON DEPRESSION

Take First Steps to Expand Credits.

The federal reserve system has lost no time in embarking upon the broad credit expansion program announced by the Hoover administration as its latest effort to turn the tide of depression. The weekly statement issued by the reserve banks yesterday shows they have begun to throw their vast resources into the money market.

Within the last week the reserve banks have purchased $100,010,000 of government securities through their open market operations. The result of these purchases has been to throw that amount of credit into the market. The effect of this action has been twofold. It has resulted in easing money rates, as evidenced by the decline in rates on bankers' acceptances and it has continued the upward trend in prices for government bonds.

Respond to Movement.

The reserve banks' response to the new movement to make credit plentiful and cheap is shown by the fact that their purchases of government securities in the last week have been about four times as large as in previous weeks, when the average purchases ran about $25,000,000. The consolidated statement, compiled as of last Wednesday, shows that the twelve reserve banks held a total of $985,024,000 of government obligations.

The extent to which the reserve banks will ultimately go in expanding credit by buying government securities is problematical, of course. But it is possible, theoretically, under the new Steagall-Glass measure, for the reserve banks to expand their currency greatly before the legal minimum of 40 per cent gold backing is reached. There now is $2,537,075,000 of federal reserve notes outstanding and the reserve banks hold gold reserves totaling $3,018,312,000. Despite the heavy purchases of government obligations in the last week, federal reserve currency declined $24,498,000, while gold reserves receded $13,890,000.

Credit Shows Increase.

The total volume of credit being extended by the reserve banks last Wednesday was $1,686,000,000, which marked an increase of $87,000,000 for the week and also an expansion of $709,000,000 over a year ago. However, total money in circulation declined $35,000,000, which was regarded as a further sign of success for the anti-hoarding campaign and contrasted with an unseasonal increase of $19,000,000 in the previous week. The country's stock of monetary gold declined only $16,000,000 in spite of considerable foreign withdrawals, mostly by France.

Borrowings of the member banks from the reserve banks continued to decline in the last week, the recession totaling $6,672,000 and the total now standing at $628,602,000. It is expected

So. Pacific Now Controls Cotton Belt

New York, April 14.—(AP)—The Southern Pacific company, which is America's largest railroad system in terms of total assets, today formally assumed control of the St. Louis Southwestern railway, known as the Cotton Belt.

After a meeting of the Southern Pacific executive committee it was announced that the company had "today filed with the interstate commerce commission at Washington its final acceptance of the commission's order in the proceedings instituted by it to acquire by purchase of capital stock the control of the St. Louis Southwestern Railway company."

The merger represents one of few to be consummated in the railroad field since the world war. As a result of its acquisition, Southern Pacific will add 1,900 additional miles of lines to its system. The consolidation will increase Southern Pacifics assets to approximately 2½ billion dollars.

Government Loan Guaranteed.

In compliance with the interstate commerce commission's provisions laid down before the merger could be completed, Southern Pacific also agreed to give its unrestricted guaranty of an 18 million dollar loan which the Cotton Belt has asked from the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

Southern Pacific originally purchased 87,200 shares of Cotton Belt preferred and 42,600 shares of common. It also obtained an option on 59,380 additional shares of preferred and 24,700 of common. This gave Southern Pacific control of 58 per cent of the stock. In addition, it was said today, Cotton Belt stock outstanding had now been deposited in favor of the plan to approximately 80 per cent.

In a recent statement to stockholders Mr. Upthegrove contended that the merger would distinctly benefit the Cotton Belt. He estimated that it would increase Cotton Belt traffic by 100 per cent within two years.

Would Enjoin Merger.

Determined efforts to keep the Southern Pacific from gaining direct access to the great Mississippi river crossing from Memphis to St. Louis were revealed today with service of an injunction suit on the interstate commerce commission by the Missouri Pacific and Texas and Pacific railroads.

The two Van Sweringen controlled lines filed the action in the Federal District court at Frankfort, Ky., yesterday. The papers were served on T. W. Knowlton, chief counsel for the commission, late last night.

Approve Rock Island Plan.

Fort Worth, Tex., April 14.—(AP)—Stockholders of the Chicago, Rock Island and Gulf railway today approved the merger with the parent organization, the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific.

The action was part of a project for direct assimilation of 11 subsidiaries by the parent company, for economy of operation, and greater facility in meeting financial requirements. Approval by the interstate commerce commission will be necessary.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 14.—The news from Washington was somewhat more cheerful today and the share market signified its appreciation by the smartest rally in some six weeks or since around the beginning of March. Recoveries from the lowes of the day amounted to as much as 8 or 10 points in some instances and net gains of from 1 to 3 points were the rule for the active list.

Previous to the turnabout more than 150 separate issues had sloughed into new low ground, the good suffering with the bad alike in the drain of irresistible liquidation.

Oversold Market.

In all likelihood, the market's oversold condition was as much responsible for the upturn as anything else. Those pretending to feel the pulse of events in the street agreed, however, that the federal reserve board's so-called "anti-deflation" campaign plans announced overnight, the improved outlook on the soldiers' bonus, and the brightening prospects for balancing the national budget had lifted drooping spirits all around the circle.

The statement of Samuel Insull in Chicago, pointing out that the difficulties of the holding companies of his system did not in any way affect the position of the three principal units of the chain, Peoples Gas, Public Service of Northern Illinois, and Commonwealth Edison, gave the utilities new strength and thus lightened one of the heaviest drags on the entire market.

Leaps up 10 Points.

Peoples Gas, which had sold down to a new bear market low of 50¼ in the early dealings on talk of a receivership move, rebounded more than 10 points on the strength of the Insull statement, to close at 80½, up 8¾ points on the day. Mr. Insull informed those concerned that the first quarter report of this company as well as that of Commonwealth Edison would show net practically the same as reported for the corresponding period of last year and that Public Service had done even better in comparison.

Other utilities perked up sharply in the wake of the big midwestern favorite, Consolidated Gas rising 3 points, Public Service of New Jersey 2⅞, and Standard Gas and Electric a point.

Advancing wheat prices were a fac-

LOAN $565,000 ON 1260 ASTOR STREET CO-OP

By Metropolitan Life at 5½ Per Cent.

BY AL CHASE.

In these days when cash for anything connected with building or real estate seems hard to locate, it's interesting to hear of a $565,000 nineteen year loan being negotiated on the sixteen story coöperative apartment building at 1260 Astor street at 5½ per cent for the first ten years and 5 per cent thereafter. The loan was made by the Central Republic Bank and Trust company with the Metropolitan Life Insurance company of New York.

POTTER PALMER JR.

The trust deed was given by the 1260 Astor Street Building corporation, of which Barrett Wendell Jr. is president and Louis C. Sudler, assistant secretary. The term is from April 11, 1932, to Sept. 1, 1951. Prepayments of $8,500 quarterly are provided beginning Sept. 1, 1933. The loan is to refund a temporary construction loan.

At Goethe Street.

The building known as 1260 Astor street is at the southwest corner of Goethe street and contains eleven coöperatively owned apartments, four of which occupy two floors. It was designed by Philip Maher. Some of the apartments have not yet been entirely completed although a few families have been living in the building for several months, according to Sudler & Co., managing agents of the property.

It contains one of the most imposing list of tenant-owners in the city. Some of them are: Potter Palmer Jr., Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick, Mrs. Fred W. Upham, George A. Ranney, Barrett Wendell Jr., Sterling Morton, Wallace C. Winter, and Mrs. J. S. Stone. The latter owned the site and the residence which occupied the corner before the coöp was erected.

Beachton Court Apartments.

Holders of two Straus Brothers Investment company defaulted bond issues, the Beachton Court apartments, Pratt boulevard and Ashland avenue, and the Winchester Arms apartments, at Winchester and Wilson, are urged in letters sent out yesterday by the protective committee, of which Barnet L. Rosset is chairman, to hasten the complete deposit of all outstanding securities against these properties in order to bring about early reorganizations.

Bondholders of the Beachton Court have deposited $258,300 of the $350,000 outstanding issue, but a date for foreclosure sale is being delayed to permit further participation by owners of first mortgage securities. The building has been about 85 per cent occupied, it is stated.

CONSTRUCTION NOTES

During the month of March 720 building projects, involving an estimated expenditure of $1,220,025 were authorized by building permits issued throughout the state, the labor division of statistics and research stated yesterday. This represented an increase of 31.1 per cent over February in the number of projects contemplated but a drop of 16.5 per cent in valuation from February and of 94.1 per cent from March, 1931. The report said the slowup in Chicago and suburban construction was chiefly responsible for the losses.

Reporting a construction contract volume of $286,078,700 for the first quarter of 1932 in the thirty-seven states east of the Rockies, the F. W. Dodge corporation foresees a second quarter gain over this of from five to fifteen per cent in general construction. Expectations are that residential building will show a gain which will range from ten to twenty per cent over the figures for the first quarter.

N. Y. Stock Exchange Seat Rise Reflects Trade Gain

New York, April 14.—Some reflection of the improved sentiment shown today in the financial district was found in arrangements for the sale of a New York stock exchange membership for $81,000, which was an advance of $1,000 from the last sale. The high price for a big board seat paid this year was $175,000 last February and the low was $80,000 on April 9. This compares with a low price paid in 1919 of $60,000 and a high price paid in the same year of $110,000, the all-time high price paid for a membership on the New York stock exchange was $625,000 early in 1929.

Borden Company Acquires Chicago Dairy Concern

An application of the Borden company to the New York Stock exchange for the listing of an additional 3,900 shares of common stock reveals the company's acquisition of the Beverly Hills Ice Cream company of Los Angeles and the Crown Dairy Products company of Chicago. In the last year Borden has acquired several other companies, for which payment was also made in stock.

COURT TO PICK MIDDLE WEST RECEIVERS TODAY

Result of Depression.

"Receivership is the result of the company's inability to finance its obligations," it was said. "Economic conditions make it impossible to work out an immediate plan for the payment of about $22,000,000 in well secured bank loans, slightly over $7,000,000 in partially secured loans, and meeting of a maturity of $10,000,000 notes in June 1.

"With the company's assets conserved through protection of the federal court, reorganization plans for the company will be developed as rapidly as economic conditions permit. Details of the plan will be announced as they become available."

The building of the Middle West Utilities system has been one of the marvels of modern industry. The company itself was founded in 1912 to acquire public utility properties in the smaller communities which were not reached by power lines of the lagre metropolitan generating stations. It started out by linking properties in ten middle western states and serving 100,000 customers.

Links Over 100 Companies.

In the 20 years of its existence, the Middle West Utilities system has linked up more than 100 operating companies and ramifying over an empire. Its subsidiaries serve 1,811,179 customers in 32 states and even extending into central Canada. Its territory extends from the Atlantic seaboard to the Rocky mouutain tier of states and from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico. The system has 45,187 miles of electrical transmission lines.

In addition, it furnishes gas, ice, water and transportation to some communities. Indeed, one of the subsidiaries has invested nearly $28,000,000 in industrial enterprises in New England, including the textile and newsprint paper industries. The electricity output of the system in 1931 exceeded 4½ billion kilowatt hours and its gross earnings were nearly $173,000,000. It expended nearly $48,000,000 in extensions and improvements.

The Middle West Utilities company and its subsidiaries have more than 381,000 stockholders and securities held by the public consist of $653,349,748 in bonds and notes, $420,970,078 in prior lien and preferred stocks, and $175,226,726 in common stocks. Middle West Utilities company alone has $266,996,210 invested in its subsidiaries. In addition to its $40,000,000 funded debt it has outstanding $60,771,445 of preferred and $156,419,830 of common stocks, the latter carried at $10 a share on its books.

AMERICAN TELEPHONE REPORTS $38,699,204 FIRST QUARTER PROFIT

New York, April 14.—(AP)—The American Telephone and Telegraph company today reported net income for the first quarter of the year of $38,699,204, as compared with $45,440,578 in the corresponding period of 1931. The earnings amounted to $2.07 per share against $2.04 a share reported for the previous quarter. The figure was $2.53 a share in the corresponding quarter of last year.

After deduction for the quarterly dividends of $2.25 a share, the quarter resulted in a deficit of $3,285,044, in contrast with a balance after dividends of $7,138,885 in the like period of 1931. Total earnings for the quarter were $66,924,638, as reduced from $76,260,244 in the first quarter of last year.

The report explained that the earnings the first quarter of this year included dividends received from subsidiary and associated companies aggregating $35,174,104, which were not fully earned by those companies by approximately $5,000,000. It also pointed out, however, that the statement for the first quarter of last year reflected receipt of $5,900,493 in dividends paid by the Western Electric company, from which source no dividends were received this year.

"During the first quarter of the current year," the report said, "the number of telephones disconnected throughout the Bell system exceeded those added by 280,000. The number of telephones now in service is approximately 4 per cent under the high point reached in May, 1930. The number of long distance calls for the first three months of this year was about 13 per cent less than for the same period last year."

Tomorrow the company is paying the dividend of $2.25 per share to more than 665,000 stockholders, the largest number yet.

Another Group of Utilities Gets Longer Loans

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 14.—Arrangements have been made to extend the maturity of the $50,000,000 bank loans of American and Foreign Power Company, Inc., and $21,250,000 bank loans of the United Gas corporation for one year, it was announced late today at the offices of the Electric Bond and Share company. The $50,000,000 loan has been extended to Oct. 26, 1933, and the $21,250,000 loan to July 20, 1933.

These are the only bank loans of any of the companies supervised or controlled by the Electric Bond and Share company, according to a report for the year ended March 31, 1932, issued today.

Net income for the twelve months ended March 31, 1932, was $23,412,235, equal after preferred dividends of $8,249,308 to $3.05 a share on 4,965,490 shares of new $5 par common stock outstanding on March 31. This compares with $25,050,084 for the calendar year 1931, equal after preferred dividends to $3.41 a share on the present number of common shares. Surplus after common dividends was $8,261,892, against $8,215,343. Gross income was $30,484,225 in the year ended March 31, against $32,560,483 in 1931.

Shows Large Assets.

The balance sheet of Electric Bond and Share as of March 31, 1932, shows current assets of $93,121,273, against $90,166,884 at the end of 1931, and current liabilities of $6,317,326, against $6,229,011. None of the company's investments or other assets are pledged or encumbered.

Current assets include $17,827,086 cash, $13,392,334 bankers' acceptances, and United States government securities, $150,000 time deposits, and $3,152,443 state, municipal and other short term securities, or $34,521,843 quick assets, comparing with $32,588,647 at the end of 1931.

Notes and loans receivable total $56,550,300. Of that sum $30,000,000 are due from American and Foreign Power company, Inc.; $25,925,000 are due from United Gas corporation, and $625,300 are due from wholly owned subsidiaries.

Market Value Shown.

Investments are carried at $461,917,691, against $462,705,923 at the end of 1931, and had a market value on March 31 of $169,915,000, including at book value Cuban Electric 6 per cent debenture bonds in the amount of $20,000,000 and securities of wholly owned subsidiaries in the amount of $5,084,940. Market value of investments at Dec. 31, 1931, was $217,957,000.

The investments at March 31 included certain miscellaneous marketable securities of companies other than client companies and wholly owned subsidiaries, which at that date had an indicated market value of $31,757,128. Taken with quick assets, the company has over $66,000,000 available for its financial needs.

Ratio of Assets to Stock.

On the basis of March 31, 1932, market quotations, as outlined above, net assets of the company on that date were equal to $176.86 a share on all outstanding preferred stocks, and after deducting $100 a share for all outstanding preferred stock were equivalent to $22.39 a share on the $5 par common stock outstanding on that date. Lower prices prevailing for securities subsequent to March 31 have decreased the market value of the investments, and as calculated at April 11, on the above basis, the asset value of the preferred stock was $155.48 a share and the common stock $16.26 a share. The market has rallied substantially from those levels.

The balance sheet gives effect to the change in number of common shares recently voted by stockholders, an amount of $124,137,238 having been transferred from capital to capital surplus. At March 31 earned surplus was $50,446,600 and capital surplus was $323,401,672, a total of $373,848,272.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, April 14.—(AP)—Cotton goods ruled quiet today, with prices rather steadier in some gray goods divisions. Finished goods are being sold in small lots at concessions. The largest rayon producer is operating on a basis of 65 per cent capacity and smaller factors about 60 per cent. Silk was slow with prices and silk goods erratic. Wool goods values for fall are uneven with trade light. Burlaps showed little change for the day.

LONDON WOOL MARKET.

LONDON, April 14.—(AP)—The small selection offered at the wool auction today met a good demand. Fine greasy crossbreds sold at slightly firmer rates while scoured kinds were irregular and were bought in on low bids. A large supply of Cape of Good Hope and Natals had a quiet sale at opening rates. There were 8,140 bales offered and 6,261 were sold.

WILLYS LANDS IN U. S. MONDAY; RUMORS BUSY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 14.—John N. Willys, ambassador to Poland, is returning to this country on Monday on an indefinite leave of absence from his Warsaw post, according to reports circulated in Wall street today.

Much significance was attached to his impending return in view of reports that Mr. Willys and his associates contemplate return to active participation in the affairs of the Willys-Overland company, of whose directors he is chairman. This group owns a majority of the preferred stock, and charter provisions vest priority rights in that issue after the omission of four quarterly dividends.

Through these preferred holdings the Willys group will come into control of the company on July 1, should dividends on the shares remain unpaid up to that date. There appears little probability at the moment that dividends will be resumed by that time. The preferred dividend was passed in September, 1931.

According to the voting provision, holders of common stock shall possess exclusive voting power, except when four quarterly dividends on the preferred stock are in arrears. In that case preferred shall vote exclusively.

Mr. Willys and his associates in July, 1929, sold about 700,000 shares of their common stock holdings to a syndicate which included Field, Glore & Co., George M. Jones of Toledo, and C. O. Miniger, president of the Electric Autolite company.

Top yesterday, $7.65; average, $7.20.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 2,000; hogs, 13,000; sheep, 13,000.

Demand for hogs, on both local and eastern account, advanced yesterday and elevated values 5@10c more. The extreme top advanced 10c, to $4.35, equal to the high point of the week, while the general average moved up only 5c, to $3.95, due to the draggy trade for big weights toward the finish. All others closed up active at the high point of the day.

Lightest weight hogs, which were hardest to dispose of on Wednesday's session, showed the biggest gains yesterday and some underweights were sold as much as 15@20c above the midweek low spot. Encouraging reports from the wholesale trade for lightweight cuts added zest to the trade. Fresh pork loins brought 10½@14c.

The range at eastern distributing centers moved up to 11@16c, accounting for the better call from outsiders. Previously this week shipping demand was below normal. Hog receipts are increasing at most of the leading market centers lately. Combined supplies at the 11 markets the first four days of this week at 354,000 show an increase of 55,000 head, or 19 per cent, compared with a week ago. Evidently the movement of the fall crop is reaching full swing.

Lightweight hogs for today's delivery were bid $4.35 on the "to arrive" trade yesterday, but there were no sellers at that figure. Bids and offers in all other contracts were unchanged.

Cattle Trade Is Sticky.

Another slow sticky market for the rank and file of cattle developed yesterday when 6,000 head arrived, which was the second largest Thursday supply since January. The only action was in prime weighty beeves. A few lots of these sold at steady to strong prices, but the proportion was too small to cut much figure in the general market. Steers eligible to $7.75 and above comprised the "cream" and cleared quickly, one load of prime 1,503 lb South Dakota steers going to Wilson at $8.25.

A small lot of four steers reached $8.50, while 11 yearlings averaging 994 lbs brought $8.25. No sharp losses were reported anywhere along the line, but sellers found the going rough in the $6.00@7.00 kinds. Below that level demand was better and large numbers fo plain quality steers were bought fully steady at $5.25@5.75.

Butcher stock sold mostly steady. Calves ruled stronger. Latest advices from the country indicate that marketing is likely to be smaller than in 1931 for some time. There were about 16 per cent less cattle on feed for market in the eleven corn belt states on April 1 this year than on the same date in 1931. This percentage decrease amounts to about 235,000 head.

Lambs Advance 15c.

Gains of mostly 15c were scored in yesterday's all day lamb trade, all interests going up to $7.65 for the best grades of slaughter stock a few minutes before the close. Packers stood pat for a steady basis all forenoon, and occasional lots, mostly shorn lambs, were released at midweek quotations. The bulk of wool stock sold at $7.40@7.65, with shorn mostly at $6.50 and below. Aged sheep and yearlings sold steady. Reeipts at Chicago this week are running largest since January.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 2,000 cattle, 13,000 hogs, and 13,000 sheep, against 1,751 cattle, 14,758 hogs, and 8,366 sheep the previous Friday, and 1,966 cattle, 20,017 hogs, and 13,224 sheep a year ago.

tor of strength in behalf of the farm implement and mail order house shares. Case Threshing Machine recovered some 3 points from its low of the day and Sears Roebuck did almost as well.

U. S. Steel Gains.

Among the pivotal industrials, United States Steel common rose to a final of 34¼, up ⅝, after settling down to a new minimum of 32¼ in the early trading. Rumors of an impending new 10 per cent wage cut in the steel industry was an unsettling influence on the shares of corporations concerned.

Tobacco shares waved aside reports that March cigaret production figures would show a decrease of 13 per cent from March of last year and moved along to the fore with the rest. American Tobacco B showed a net gain of 2½ points on the final sale.

Specialties Advance.

Specialty stocks made a good showing. Coca Cola, and Allied Chemical both showed signs of substantial support. International Business Machine replaced an early loss of some 2½ points with a net gain of about as much.

In the railroad division, Atchison and Union Pacific after plunging to the lowest levels in the present century came back with a flourish, the first named to register a net gain of more than 2 points and the other moving up 3 5-8 above its last night's close. Other rails advanced sharply.

United Gas Improvement.

Will you please let me know what class of stock United Gas Improvement common is? Please give me some information on it. Thank you so much for your advice—Mrs. L. R.

United Gas Improvement company was incorporated in 1882. It was originally engaged in building and operating gas properties and in engineering activities. These are still important, but have since been overshadowed by the company's expansion in the field of electricity.

In 1930 about 74 per cent of revenues was from the sale of electricity and 19 per cent from gas. About 72 per cent of gross from electricity was derived from Philadelphia Electric company.

Subsidiaries serve a population of 5,500,000, largely concentrated in southeastern Pennsylvania, Delaware and Maryland. Service is also supplied in Connecticut, Tennessee, New Hampshire, Missouri and Arizona.

The company has important minority investments in Niagara Hudson Power, Commonwealth and Southern, Public Service of New Jersey, American Superpower and Midland United.

United corporation holds about 26 per cent of the common stock of United Gas Improvement.

Consolidated operating revenues for 1931, excluding Philadelphia Gas Works, were $105,682,000, against $108,374,000 for 1930 and $105,355,000 for 1929.

Net income for 1931 was $37,723,000. This was 9.86 times preferred dividends and equal to $1.46 per common share. Net of $38,416,000 for 1930 was 14.91 times preferred dividends, on a smaller number of shares, and equal to $1.54 per common share. Net for 1929 was $32,519,000.

Revenues of Philadelphia Gas Works company for 1931 were $17,847,000.

On Dec. 31, 1931, total assets of the company were $845,228,000. The parent company has no funded debt. Funded debt of subsidiaries was $247,445,000. Only $1,000,000 of bonds mature in 1932 and $3,311,200 mature in 1933.

There were 765,216 shares of no par $5 preferred shares outstanding and 23,254,424 shares of no par common.

Dividends on the common are $1.20 per year.

Both the preferred and the common are high grade stocks.

that the new policy of the reserve banks in throwing credit into the open money market will result in the member banks being able to reduce their borrowings more rapidly than recently. The reserve banks themselves disposed of $6,137,000 of bankers' acceptances, although the resulting contraction of credit was far overshadowed by the credit expansion resulting from their heavy purchases of government securities.

Deposits Up $103,804,000.

Deposits of the member banks at the reserve banks rose $103,804,000. Total reserves of the reserve banks receded $11,697,000. The ratio of reserves to liabilities eased to 69.4 per cent, compared with 70.8 per cent last week.

The New York Federal Reserve bank yesterday made no change in its 3 per cent rediscount rate, although there had been considerable expectation that the rate might be reduced in furtherance of the new easy money policy and the lower rates on bankers' acceptances.

The further decline in the stock market resulted in another decrease in brokers' loans in the last week, according to the reserve board's weekly report. Such loans on Wednesday totaled only 485 million dollars, which marked a decline of 31 million dollars for the week and 1,364 million dollars from a year ago, when the total was 1,849 million dollars. The New York banks reduced their own loans by 29 million dollars, the interior banks withdrew three million dollars, but nonbanking lenders furnished an additional one million dollars.

LACK OF RAIN IS BOOSTING WHEAT; CANADA DRY

Big Sales to Germans Are Believed Likely.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Continued deterioration in the winter wheat crop is now taken by the trade as an established fact.

The market withstood the depressing influence of an early break in stocks to a new low on the present downturn in impressive manner, failing to break more than ⅛c below the finish of Wednesday, and then soared 2⅜@2⅝c to a new high since Nov. 19 with the July touching 64⅞c on the bulge, and 8⅜c above the low of last Friday.

Price changes in wheat were most erratic during the first hour of trading, aggressive buying by leading local professionals taking the offerings on the breaks due to weakness in stocks, while longs sold on the bulge.

The surplus in the pit was gradually absorbed, and when the stock market started to rebound, wheat, suddenly released from the depressing influence of the latter started upwards and was not headed until near the close.

Evening up operations and selling against offers caused a reaction of around 1c from the best figures, with the close 1¼c@1½c higher. May finished at 60¾@60⅞c; old July, 63¾@64c; and old September, 65⅞@66c.

Dry Area Extending.

An urgent need of rain was expressed in practically all sections of the west and southwest, with parts of Oklahoma and Texas sending in reports of moisture being required to prevent crop damage, and the same applied to parts of the soft wheat territory east of the Mississippi river. The latter section has heretofore sent only favorable crop comments.

After a 1,290 mile trip through 30 counties in Kansas, three representatives of the Kansas State Agricultural college reported that the prospective abandonment of wheat acreage in the state was the heaviest since 1917, and expressed doubts as to whether the yield would come up to the 98,500,000 bu indicated by the government in its April returns. Almost without exception the reports from western Kansas and Nebraska were of a sensationally bullish character.

Toward the last dust storms with soil drifting were reported in the Regina-Moosejaw district in Saskatchewan. That served to call attention to the lack of subsoil moisture in the southern sections of the three prairie provinces. Sanford Evans, the Winnipeg statistician, estimated the dry area at around 10,000,000 acres, or nearly 50 per cent of the total wheat acreage in the Canadian northwest. Surface moisture, however, was generally reported as ample to give the new crop a start.

Move to Finance Wheat Sales.

According to Washington press reports a bill has been introduced into congress by Senator McNary of Oregon, directing the Finance Reconstruction corporation to turn over $100,000,000 to the secretary of agriculture to finance sales of wheat and cotton to foreign countries unable to purchase these commodities in the regular course of trade. The trade expressed the belief that if this bill passed liberal sales of wheat would probably be made by the farm board to Germany.

Wheat bulls had some encouragement in the foreign news. Italy has again revised its quota on the amount of foreign wheat that can be ground by mills, and on April 26 will permit the use of 60 to 90 per cent of imported grain, or 10@25 per cent in excess of the amounts permitted at the present time. Liverpool surprised the trade by closing ⅛c higher to ⅛c lower, ignoring the break in North American late Wednesday. Winnepeg was 1⅛@1¼c higher at the last with May at 65c in Canadian funds. Export sales in all positions were estimated at 600,000 bu, largely Manitobas.

Country Sells Cash Corn.

Corn made a poor response to the strength in wheat, being affected by hedging operations. The country took advantage of a minor upturn to sell cash grain to arrive on the largest scale in a number of days with local handlers booking 175,000 bu. Futures held within a range of 1⅛@1⅜c with the close at net gains of ¼@⅜c. May being, 34¼@34⅞c; July, 38c and September, 40½c.

Oats seeding is completed in parts of central Illinois, and reports of rain being needed to insure even growth were received from some parts. The market, however, was little affected and futures finished ⅛@¼c higher largely in sympathy with other grains. May closed at 24@24⅛c; July, 24⅜c, and September, 25c.

Total stocks of rye in the United States and Canada, based on official estimates as of March 1 and March 31, aggregate 24,000,000 bu, or 20,000,000 bu less than a year ago for the corresponding dates. Futures were somewhat firmer with wheat but showed net gains of only ⅜@⅝c at the last with May at 46¾c; July, 48¾c, and September, 50c.

BUTTER AT NEW LOW

Butter futures declined further into record low ground on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday. Egg futures were easy, but firmed up at the close. November butter fell ¼c to 18¼c, while June reached 17c. Closing levels of eggs were unchanged to ¼c lower. Production reports showed the butter made last year but the four markets reported an inward movement of 120,000 lbs, compared with a slight outward movement last year. Selling on this news became active and buying support was only moderate. The egg report showed fairly heavy receipts, although the storage movement remained sharply under last year. October declined to the year's low of 15⅝c, rallying toward the close. Support has been rather surprisingly good at the lower levels, large orders coming in at or slightly under the market. The price range remains narrow, therefore. Sales: Butter, 68 cars; eggs, 136 cars. Prices follow:

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, April 14.—(AP)—COTTONSEED OIL—Bleachable, today closed steady and unchanged to 4 points net higher, with sales of 18 contracts, or 2,700 brls, including an exchange of 2 May for October at 34 points difference. Firmness of grains and cotton, as well as hogs, and the late rally in stocks offset the heaviness of lard and led to covering and commission house buying. Crude oil was 2½c bid in Texas and 2⅝c in the southeast and the valley. Bleachable spot and May closed 3.50c; July, 3.64c; September, 3.78c; November, 3.97c. There were no sales in the prime summer yellow contract, with closing prices as follows: Spot, 3.50c; May, 3.40c; July, 3.50c; September, 3.60c.

COTTON GAINS FRIENDS

Cotton markets are gaining friends on the belief that a crop scare is at hand and the strength in the market during the day was taken as a forerunner.

Trading was more active and commission and trade buying became more important as the day advanced. The close was at around the best prices, with net gains of 10@16 points on futures in Chicago and 10@13 points in other markets. Spots were up 15 points in New York to 6.40c, with New Orleans up 10 points to 6.35c, with Galveston, 6.35c, and Houston, 6.30c. Liverpool closed 5@12 points net lower, but had little or no effect on American markets. Improved credit conditions were a factor in shaping sentiment at the last.

Consumption of cotton in America in March was 488,655 bales, compared with 450,018 bales in February and 490,500 bales for March last year. Consumption for the first eight months this year aggregated 3,569,845 bales, against 3,384,135 bales in 1930. Stocks in public and private storage exceed last year. Spindles active during the month were under last year's. Prices follow:
